2 BANDITS TAKEN BY OUR TROOPS IN MEXICAN HUNT

Reported to be Members of the Band That Held Aviators for Ransom.

IN TOUCH WITH PRUNEDA

Arrangements Made with Mexican Consul to Prevent a Clash with Carranza Troops.

KAHN WANTS INTERVENTION

Chairman of House Military Affairs Committee Says 100,000 Men Could Really Pacify Mexico.

MARFA, Texas, Aug. 20.—Captain Leonard Matlack of the 8th Cavalry has captured two Mexicans believed to have been members of Jesus Renteria's bandit band, who captured Lieutenants Peterson and Davis, American aviators, and held them for ransom. This information was brought to the border by an American cavalry Sergeant and a guard of enlisted men, who returned to the Rio Grande tonight.

The American punitive expedition camped in the mountains tonight after a trying thirty-six hours of campaigning through rugged country.

Since the troops crossed the Rio Grande early on Tuesday morning they have been riding constantly during daylight hours in pursuit of the bandits.

The only reported contact with the bandits resulted in the killing of one of three Mexicans who fired on an American airplane yesterday. According to the aviators' report upon returning from the field, the fight lasted twenty minutes. The aviators were unharmed.

Reports from the field were meagre. The broken country south of the border compelled the cavalry troops to scatter and follow such trails as they could pick up. The country below the Big Bend is too rough for airplanes to effect a landing without great danger.

Major Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, commander of the Southern Department, is expected to reach here tomorrow morning on an inspection of posts and camps along the border between San Antonio and Marfa.

The commander undoubtedly will go over the entire situation with Colonel Langhorne, district commander. It is not known whether he will go to the border while here.

Reports from Presidio, Texas, told of movements of Mexican Federal cavalry under General Antonio Pruneda today General Pruneda left Ojinaga last night, marching toward Cuchillo Parado, forty miles up the Conchos River.

Reports from the field today told how the Americans spent the night in the Mexican mountains. The troopers slept in canyons, on trails, wherever they happened to be when it grew too dark to continue their pursuit. Sentries were stationed at entrances to canyons, and at high points on trails to prevent an ambush or surprise attack.

No fires were permitted. Horses were picketed in hollow squares and the men, rolled in blankets, slept beside their mounts with rifles and pistols at their sides. Pickets patrolled the temporary camps.

Pack mules were unburdened for the night and the field wireless set was rigged for making reports to headquarters. Before dark airplanes swooped low over the camps, dropping orders. Officers were in conferences during the night discussing orders and planning today's operations.

The troopers, tired out from their long, hard ride, slept as soon as they finished a cold supper of field rations.

Lieut. Col. Royce arrived here in an airplane from the headquarters of the Southern Department Aerial Service at San Antonio. He planned to cross to Mexico in an airplane to make observations and inspect the work being done by the flying corps in the Big Bend district.

Hipolito Villa, brother of Francisco Villa, is believed to be in hiding in the mountains near where the American columns are working. Hipolito is said to have a small bodyguard and to be seriously ill. Army officer here said it was possible American troops might get in touch with these Villa bands while searching for the bandits who held the American aviators. Many bandits in the Ojinaga district are attached nominally to Villa's command and also operate in the country through which the American trrops are passing.

MEXICO CITY PRESS PROTESTS ON CROSSING

Official Bulletin Announces Entry of Americans, but Makes No Comment.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—The Mexican Government announced that American troops had crossed the border in a bulletin issued last night, but has given no indication of its attitude.

El Universal and El Heraldo de Mexico are the only newspapers to comment editorially on the situation. A protest against the crossing is made by El Universal and it demands for Mexico an opportunity to be heard "before being outraged." The paper calls on all Mexicans to contribute to the defense of the country.

El Universal announces that its section

Daylight Saving Act Now Stands Repealed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Repeal of the Daylight Saving act was passed today, the Senate voting to sustain the House in passing the repeal measure over President Wilson's veto. The vote was 57 to 19.

The repeal of the law, which now takes its place among the very few which have been passed over a Presidential veto, becomes effective after the clocks are turned back to normal in October. It will go down in legislative history as one of the very few measures which have twice been vetoed by a President and become a law by the vote of more than two-thirds in both houses of Congress.

PEACE MOVE FAILS IN ACTORS' STRIKE

Negotiations Again Broken Off and Contending Sides Face a War of Exhaustion.

ALL CHICAGO HOUSES DARK

Extension to Vaudeville, Burlesque, and Even the 'Movies' Feared as Inevitable.

All negotiations looking toward a settlement of the strike of actors, stage hands, and musicians were called off last night, and there is every indication that the strike will continue indefinitely.

Stage hands and musicians walked out at the Winter Garden, but a vaudeville show was given with a single set of scenery and a pianist replacing the orchestra. Virtually all theatres in Chicago were closed when the stage hands and musicians were ordered out, and an extension of the strike to vaudeville, burlesque, and perhaps motion-picture houses is thought to be inevitable.

Thirteen of Broadway's best known playwrights, following the collapse of their efforts to make peace between the actors and producing managers, met at the Hotel Astor last night and formed the nucleus of a playwrights' protective organization. They pointed out that they are among the heaviest losers by reason of the theatrical inactivity, and that so far their interests have not been considered.

Inquiries will be made today into the legal aspects of the case to determine how long runs of plays may be suspended before title reverts to the original owners. It was even suggested by one playwright that should the tieup continue the authors band together to produce their own plays if theatres could be obtained.

Up to late in the afternoon there was a general feeling on Broadway that the strike was about to be settled. Rumors that an agreement had been definitely reached, in fact, were sweeping up and down the Rialto. It had been hoped at first that Governor Smith would bring about a settlement, but his departure for Albany in the afternoon left the situation still in the air, so far as official mediation was concerned.

Reject Actors' Offer.

It was from the moves made by a group of playwrights, headed by Eugene Walter and Avery Hopwood, that the most was expected. After meeting with delegations from both the managers and the actors, Tuesday, the playwrights received a visit at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning from Winchell Smith, representing the managers. He informed them that a statement from the Actors' Equity Association renouncing all intention of demanding the closed shop, together with the posting of a $500,000 bond in a guarantee of this pledge and to cover fulfillment of contracts, probably would provide a basis on which the managers would make peace.

Acting on this understanding, a committee of playwrights composed of Eugene Walter, Roi Cooper Megrue, Eugene Buck, Owen Davis, and Guy Bolton obtained from the Actors' Equity Association a letter signed by Frank Gillmore, Executive Secretary, binding the association on these points, provided the managers would put up a similar bond and pledge fulfillment of contracts.

The letter was taken by the playwrights to the managers in session at the offices of Cohan and Harris. Here the offer was flatly rejected and all negotiations were brought to a close. In explanation of their stand the Producing Managers' Association last night issued the following statement:

"The Actors' Equity Association's proposal to the authors that it was willing to furnish a $500,000 bond to guarantee its good faith in the future was looked upon by the Producing Managers' Association as poor security for a business in which over $100,000,000 is invested. The Producing Managers' Association wants no bond. It wants to deal with a body of actors that has not demonstrated its complete disregard of property rights and contract rights. The Actors' Equity Association has branded itself as an advocate of individual contract violation, and has thereby destroyed all confidence the managers may have had in it."

Sole Hope Rests With Governor.

Regarding the efforts of the playwrights, the managers declared further:

"The authors asked the Producing Managers' Association to present their side of the case, only desiring to know the facts and having no intention of interfering. The following day the authors, with none but the best intentions, sought to intervene. The managers impressed upon them that the authors' and managers' interests were identical and that the manager, in fighting for the preservation of the theatre,

COURT GETS NOTES ON AMALGAMATED STRIKE AGITATION

Judge Mayer Has Stenographic Version of Meeting Recorded.

NO STRIKE VOTE TAKEN

Pickets Watch for Interborough and "Green Car" Men at Organization Rally.

ASKS PLOT INDICTMENTS

Justice Weeks Permits Strike Conspiracy Charge to Go to Special Grand Jury.

A meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes was called at the Labor Lyceum in this city last night for the purpose of starting a new strike on the subway, elevated and surface lines. After a stormy session lasting three hours, in which the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes was attacked bitterly, the meeting adjourned without taking a strike vote.

Action on a strike was not taken, it was said, because of the comparatively small attendance at the meeting. Picketing by members of the Interborough union was held to have kept down the attendance.

Officials of the Amalgamated who first addressed the meeting spoke cautiously on the strike question, and devoted their time to attacks on the Interborough and the New York Street Railways Company and on the brotherhoods composed of their employes.

The meeting was attended by stenographers employed in behalf of Federal Judge Mayer. Copies were served on the Amalgamated leaders of Judge Mayer's orders of March 31 appointing Job E. Hedges receiver of the New York Railways Company, in which he ordered every safeguard for the protection of the property of the company. Inspectors of the New York Railways Company and of the Interborough watched the hall inside and out for the purpose of detecting employes who attended the meeting, their discharge having been previously ordered in a public announcement.

Organizer William J. Collins of the association said that the meeting would have been packed were it not for the circulation of threats that traction employes attending the meeting would not only be discharged but arrested by United States Marshals and taken before Federal Judge Mayer on a charge of contempt of court.

Predicts Expose.

"We are not whipped yet," said Collins. "The men of the Interborough who returned to work on Tuesday morning did so with hatred and contempt in their hearts for the corporation. The true story of the Interborough strike has not come out yet, but it will come out later. Time alone and the District Attorney will bring the facts to light."

He called the term "brotherhood" a misnomer, saying that it was used to describe men "who were not on the level with any other workers in the city."

James L. Quackenbush, chief counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, said yesterday that prompt police action would prevent any interruption of service on the Interborough elevated and subway lines in case the Amalgamated Association attempted to call a strike. Failure of the police to give vigorous protection, however, might seriously impede service, he said.

Accuses Amalgamated.

"The Amalgamated has not been successful at all in organizing Interborough employes," he said, "but even if they have only twenty men the professional agitators, their hangers-on, with the help of some members of their newly organized union on the B. R. T. system, might cause a lot of trouble. If the police allow them to enter stations, harangue ticket choppers and guards, threaten to carry them out on a shutter if they don't strike, and proceed to acts of violence, hundreds of men are likely to quit to avoid trouble. Such a condition would cause a serious impairment of service, but early and prompt police work would prevent them from doing any harm.

"The Amalgamated has gained its successes by violence and intimidation, which have prevented loyal employes from taking out trains and scared others into remaining at home. Many employes have promised their families to stay at home in case of trouble and not to risk getting their heads broken. They are motormen and conductors, not prize fighters, and are not anxious to take out trains if it means having a fight on every trip or so. Thus a mere handful of rioters can do serious mischief unless the police nip their activities in the bud."

Louis Fridiger, counsel, and Patrick J. Shea, national organizer, talked with Public Service Comissioner Lewis Nixon in the morning in an effort to induce him to assist in having the members of the association who had been discharged by the New York Railways Company reinstated. There was also some talk about helping the men who had been discharged during the recent strike on the Interborough Rapid Transit lines and who were still out of work.

Mr. Fridiger and Mr. Shea found Mr. Nixon in a very unsympathetic mood. He repeated his statement of Tuesday that the people of the city were sick of strikes, strike troubles, and strike talk.

German Assembly Proposes 9,000,000,000 Marks Credit

WEIMAR, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—Minister of Finance Erzberger announced today that the Budget Committee of the National Assembly had proposed a new credit of 9,000,000,000 marks. The loan would take the form of a premium loan bearing 2 per cent. interest, be repayable at 110, and redeemable in thirty years. The credit would have taxation privileges, the Minister added.

STEEL WORKERS VOTE FOR STRIKE

American Federation Committee to Decide if It Shall Be Called.

GOMPERS ONE OF MEMBERS

Conference with Operators Will First Be Sought on Twelve Basic Demands.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Whether a nation-wide strike of iron and steel workers will be called depends upon a conference which the union leaders hope to obtain within the next ten days with representatives of the United States Steel Corporation. If the corporation officials refuse to meet the union representatives a conference committee of six representing the twenty-four unions involved headed by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, is empowered to call a strike forthwith.

This sums up the conference of representatives of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor which today canvassed the vote of unions on the question of calling a strike as announced this evening by W. Z. Foster, member of the Conference Committee and spokesman for the unions. Without giving exact figures Mr. Foster stated that 98 per cent. of the workers voting on the question had voted in favor of a walkout.

In the absence of Mr. Gompers, who is returning from Europe, Mr. Foster intimated that other members of the Conference Committee might proceed to arrange for the meeting with representatives of the Steel Corporation. He said, however, that Mr. Gompers is expected to arrive within a day or so, in which case Mr. Gompers may conduct the overtures himself.

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, probably will be first approached on the subject of a conference to take up the twelve basic demands of the unions, Mr. Foster intimated.

The Conference Committee, Mr. Foster stated, is to hold another meeting within a few days, when the method of approaching the Steel Corporation will be determined. The date and place of this meeting was not announced.

Whether the Conference Committee will call a strike at the end of ten days in case it has arranged a meeting with the Steel Corporation but has failed to obtain an agreement on the demands made by the unions, Mr. Foster said he could not state. "That would be a new situation, and the course of action would have to be decided after the situation appears," he said.

Decision to attempt to arrange the meeting was arrived at late this afternoon and superseded the contemplated calling of a strike forthwith in case the strike vote favored a walkout. No announcement was made by officers as to why the decision for a conference was decided upon in preference to calling the strike forthwith.

Twelve basic demands would be made on the manufacturer, Mr. Foster said, in addition to minor demands to be formulated by the twenty-four unions which have members working in the steel industry. The basic demands are:

1. Right of collective bargaining.
2. Reinstatement of all men discharged for union activities with pay for time lost.
3. The eight-hour day.
4. One day's rest in seven.
5. Abolition of 24-hour shifts.
6. Increases in wages sufficient to guarantee American standards of living.
7. Standard scales of wages for all crafts and classifications of workers.
8. Double rates of pay for all overtime work and for work on Sundays and holidays.
9. Check off system of collecting union dues and assessments.
10. Principles of seniority to apply in maintaining, reducing, and increasing working forces.
11. Abolition of company unions.
12. Abolition of physical examination of applicants for employment.

These propositions are subject to development when the demands are presented.

Chairman Gary of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, declined yesterday to make any comment on the labor situation in the steel industry. The opinion of the officers of steel companies, however, in the last two weeks has been that there was little danger of a nation-wide strike of steel workers. They have contended that the union workers make up less than half of the total number of men employed by the industry. The United States Steel Corporation maintains the open shop.

The following question was submitted to Mr. Gary some time ago:

"Do you think that the movement now under way to unionize the employes of the Steel Corporation and to bring about a general strike, will meet with success?"

"I do not," he replied, "for the reason that the employes have received and will continue to receive better treatment and better working conditions of employment from the Steel Corporation under its principles and policies pertaining to labor than they could expect through the efforts of labor unions. The majority of workmen are not members of labor unions."

BILL TO PUNISH RETAIL PROFITEERS TO BE REPORTED

"Little Gougers" Chief Cause of Complaint, Palmer Asserts.

PLANS TO SMOKE THEM OUT

House Agricultural Committee Also to Include Clothing in Food Control Measure.

FARMERS ARE EXEMPTED

Plan to Have President Fix Prices Abandoned—Independent Packers Defend Big Five Before Senators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—At the suggestion of Attorney General Palmer, the House Agricultural Committee decided tonight not to exempt retailers doing a business of less than $100,000 from the anti-profiteering sections in the Food Control act. This means, as Mr. Palmer told the committee this afternoon, that the Government will be able to "go after the little fellows as well as the big ones." The penalty of two years' imprisonment with an alternative fine of $5,000 will thereby be imposed on all offenders, and this will be applicable to the corner grocery store as well as to the great packers.

Up to this time, the section of the Food Control act that would apply to these small dealers has been worthless because it contained no penalty clause. But if the committee makes the necessary changes—and Chairman Haugen of the committee said tonight that it would probably do so tomorrow—it is expected that the Department of Justice will be armed with the power it desires against the "little gougers."

The committee abandoned its idea of a price-fixing scheme on the advice of the Attorney General. He said such a change would involve bringing to life once more the elaborate machinery of the Food Administration or the licensing authority. In addition, he said that the power thus authorized would be so drastic that it would not be sanctioned by Congress without long delay. Chairman Haugen has been an ardent advocate of such a system, but he said tonight that the committee would not now insist upon it.

While the committee took the Attorney General's counsel in the two particulars mentioned, it rejected his suggestion that farm corporations organized for profit should be included in the anti-profiteering extension. The members of the committee are chiefly from agricultural districts and have great sympathy with the farmers. Mr. Haugen said that no evidence had been submitted showing profiteering by the farmers, and that they had in some States been "persecuted, not prosecuted."

While the committee was working this afternoon on the changes in the bill, which it expects to report tomorrow, Representative MacCrate of New York put in a resolution on the House floor asking the Attorney General for specific details on all prosecutions for violations of the Food Control act. He even asked for the names of the persons and firms indicted.

Penalty for Retail Profiteering.

The section of the act under which the department will be able to fight the "little gougers" is No. 4, and reads as follows:

"That it is hereby made unlawful for any person wilfully to destroy any necessaries for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof; knowingly to commit waste or wilfully to permit preventable deterioration of any necessaries in, or in connection with their production, manufacture, or distribution; to hoard as defined in Section 6 of this act, any necessaries; to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, either locally or generally, any necessaries; to conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person, (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, harvesting, manufacturing, supplying, storing, or dealing in any necessaries; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessaries; (c) to restrict distribution of any necessaries; (d) to prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessaries in order to enhance the price thereof, or (e) to exact excessive prices for any necessaries; or to aid or abet the doing of any act made unlawful by this section."

This section had applied to all dealers, irrespective of the amount of business they did. But as it had no penalty attached it was not enforceable. Section 5, which provided a licensing system, exempted from its provisions retailers doing less than $100,000 annual business.

The committee announced that there would be no objection to the inclusion of clothing in the Food Control act, as recommended by Mr. Palmer.

The Attorney General, in explaining how the plan to get at the retail dealers who profiteer would operate, said the decision as to guilt or innocence would be left to a court and jury. The Fair Price Committees, which would have the Government's aid, were composed, he said, of representatives of the wholesalers, retailers, housewives, and labor. They would fix fair prices and the majority of dealers were expected to observe these prices.

"Where there is a black sheep, a dealer who refuses to accept the fair prices," he said, "action will be begun in the courts. The information on which the fair prices are based will be dumped

SENATE REPUBLICANS UNITE TO INSIST ON FLATLY AMENDATORY RESERVATIONS; ATTACK PITTMAN'S COMPROMISE OFFER

Text of Pittman's "Interpretative" Reservations Offered to Placate Opponents of the League

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Senator Pittman of Nevada today offered the following resolution embodying four "interpretative" reservations to meet Republican objections to the League of Nations covenant:

That when the Senate of the United States shall advise and consent to the ratification of the treaty of peace with Germany, signed at Versailles on the 28th day of June, 1919, now pending in the Senate, it be done with and in consideration of the following understanding as to the present and future construction and interpretation to be given to the treaty:

1. That whenever the two years' notice of withdrawal from the League of Nations shall have been given by any member of the League, as provided in Article I., the Government giving such notice shall be the sole judge whether all its international obligations and all its obligations under the covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of withdrawal.

2. That the suggestions of the Council of the League of Nations as to the means of carrying into effect the obligations of Article X., the execution of which may require the use of military or naval forces or economical measures, can only be carried out through the voluntary separate action of each of the respective Governments, members of the League, and that the failure of any such Governments to adopt the suggestions of the Council of the League, or to provide such military or naval forces or economical measures, shall not constitute a moral or legal violation of the treaty.

3. That all domestic and political questions relating to the internal affairs of a Government which is a member of the League, including immigration, coastwise traffic, the tariff and commerce, are solely within the jurisdiction of such Government and are not by the covenant of the League of Nations submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the Council or Assembly or the League of Nations, or to the decision or recommendation of any other power. If a dispute arises between parties with regard to a question other than those which are herein specifically exempted as domestic questions, and it is claimed by one of the parties that such question is a domestic and political question, relating to its internal affairs, then the Council shall not consider or make recommendation thereon, except upon the unanimous vote of the Council other than the representatives of the disputants.

4. There shall not be submitted to arbitration or inquiry by the Assembly or the Council any question which, in the judgment of the United States, depends upon or involves its long established policy, commonly known as the Monroe Doctrine, and it is preserved unaffected by any provision of the said treaty.

TO RULE KOREANS LIKE JAPANESE

Emperor and Premier Announce That All Distinctions Will Be Removed.

CIVIL AUTHORITIES NAMED

Police to Take the Place of Present Gendarmerie—Text of Imperial Rescript.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Japanese Embassy today received and made public the texts of an imperial rescript and a statement by Premier Hara, issued in Tokio yesterday, announcing the abolition of military administration in Korea and the introduction of a civil administration. It is specifically declared by the Premier "that Korea, and Japan proper, forming equally integral parts of the same empire, no distinction should, in principle, be made between them, and it is the ultimate purpose of the Japanese Government, in due course, to treat Korea as in all respects on the same footing with Japan proper."

Distinctions between Koreans and Japanese, it is promised, are to be obliterated, the rescript saying that "no distinction or inequality should be allowed to exist between them as loyal subjects of the same sovereign, whether politically, socially, or otherwise." It is added that the Government will adopt in Korea eventually a system of provincial and municipal administration similar to that in operation in Japan proper.

The system of gendarmerie in Korea is to be replaced by a force of police to be placed under the control of local Governors, just as in Japan proper. It is stated that the disturbances which broke out in Korea last March retarded the introduction of the reforms. It is asserted in that connection that the Government will admit no excuse for any guilty person, whether he be a Government official or a private citizen, and already certain responsible officers have been cited to appear before a court-martial.

Two civilians, Baron Saito and Mr. Midzuno, have been appointed respectively Governor General and Director General of administration. Mr. Midzuno will be in fact charged with the actual administrative work and has had training for the post, having served twenty years in the Home Office and having been Secretary of the Interior in the Terauchi Ministry. He has been a frequent visitor to Europe and is noted for his democratic ideas.

Text of the Imperial Rescript.

The text of the imperial rescript follows:

"We have ever made it our aim to promote the security and welfare of our territory of Korea and to extend to the native population of that territory as our beloved subjects a fair and impartial treatment in all respects, to the end that they may without distinction of persons lead their lives in peace and in contentment. We are persuaded that the stage of development at which the general situation has now arrived calls for certain reforms in the administrative organization of the government general of Korea, and we issue our imperial command that such reforms be put into operation. The measures thus taken are solely designed to facilitate the working of administration and to secure good and enlightened government in pursuance of

PUTS 2-YEAR CURB ON IMMIGRATION

Bill by Representative Johnson of Washington Aimed Especially at Japanese Coolies.

TIME LIMIT ON RESIDENCE

Failure to Acquire Citizenship After Lapse of Eight Years Made Cause for Deportation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—No immigrants would be allowed to enter this country to settle here permanently until two years have elapsed, if a bill introduced today by Representative Johnson of Washington is successful in Congress. During the two years certain immigrants would be allowed to come into the country, but only with the understanding that they could not remain more than six months.

The bill, while applicable to emigrants from all countries of the world, is manifestly aimed at the Japanese. Representative Johnson, who is the Chairman of the House Committee on Immigration, comes from a Pacific coast State. He is opposed to a great influx of Japanese coolies, and regards the bringing in of the celebrated "picture brides" as an absolute menace. If the bill ever reaches the Senate it is certain to have the approval of such Senators as Mr. Chamberlain of Oregon, Mr. Phelan, and Mr. Johnson, both of California.

While Mr. Johnson specifically provides in his bill for the two-year suspension of the immigration law, he said, in a statement issued today:

"Members of the Immigration Committee say that it is not likely that a bill suspending immigration for any stated period of years could pass both House and Senate now, although a year ago such a bill could have been passed."

Temporary and Permanent Settlers.

Another extremely important feature of the bill concerns immigrants who come to the United States succeeding the two-year period. Mr. Johnson would divide these strictly into two classes, temporary and permanent settlers. Those who contemplate permanent settlement must take out citizenship papers before the end of three years or suffer the penalty of deportation. Another requirement is that they must learn the English language. In addition they must state at the port of entry their intention to become citizens, and thus be assimilated as actual Americans.

The provision limiting immigrants to a six months' residence during the two-year suspension is hoped by Mr. Johnson to act as an effective barrier against the increase of the Japanese. Announcing today that he desired Congress to appoint a sub-committee to visit the Pacific Coast and study the Japanese question, he said:

"It is hoped that this time limitation will end the coming to the United States of Japanese under the exemption clauses and cause a literal fulfillment of the so-called 'gentleman's agreement,' which exists between the United States and Japan. The latter country is under obligations to send no coolies to this country, but it has been disclosed that many

OPPOSITION STRENGTHENED

"Mild Reservationists" Against Administration Concessions on League.

DISTINCT LINEUP EVIDENT

Battle to be Fought for Drastic Changes as Against Mere Interpretations.

PITTMAN'S PLAN ASSAILED

But It Meets Demands Previously Made by Moderate Republican Critics.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—As an outcome of the White House conference of yesterday between President Wilson and members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a distinct lineup of the forces for and opposing the League of Nations covenant in the Versailles treaty was today evident at the Capitol.

In a speech, Senator Pittman of Nevada, a stanch administration supporter, sounded the keynote with four interpretative reservations which he urged as embraced in a resolution independent of that for the ratification of the treaty, pursuing the policy outlined by the President as having his approval.

After Mr. Pittman's speech, Republican Senators in the reservationist camp, including the group of seven led by Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, openly declared their opposition to the interpretative method. They came out, for the first time in the League fight, for reservation that would comprise actual amendments to the resolution of ratification, which most Senators think would have the effect of recommitting the treaty to the principal signatories.

The developments indicated to leaders that the battle from now on would be fought on the issue of drastic reservations, as against those of a merely interpretative character, which, as President Wilson explained, would simply express the understanding of the United States on the features objected to. There was every indication of the various elements among the Republican reservationists now uniting on a common ground.

Senator Pittman, in a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES, said that the interpretative reservations, while drawn precisely along the lines suggested by the President yesterday, could not be regarded as having emanated from Mr. Wilson. They had the President's approval, he said, and might be considered as the groundwork of an effort to unite upon reservations that would save the treaty from being recommitted to Paris.

The Nevada Senator talked with the President on the scheme for interpretative reservations last week, and he gave the impression that his resolution was drafted in accordance with intimations given him by the President at that time, as well as the opinion expressed by the Executive at the conference with the members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Mr. Pittman's reservations, being embodied in a resolution independent of the ratification resolution, would not affect the treaty itself, he explained, and would not make it imperative that the other signatory powers to the treaty, including Germany, give their acquiescence to them. The necessity of not adopting reservations as amendments to the treaty, so that it would have to go back to the signatory powers, was emphatically urged by the President in yesterday's conference.

"No Compromise," Republicans Say.

The sudden interjection of the four Pittman reservations into the Senate was accepted by the Republican opponents of the League covenant as indicating that the President had decided to adopt that policy as a means of placating its opponents. But they all insisted that the program, if it was the one upon which the Administration would fight, would not be accepted.

Senator Lodge, majority leader, as well as other Republican Senators, notably the so-called "mild reservationists," openly insisted that the battle would be waged with renewed vigor for emphatic reservations to be adopted as a part of the resolution of ratification. Failing this, some of the leaders said, the League of Nations covenant would be rejected.

"No compromise," was the slogan of the Republican reservationists.

Aside from the Pittman reservations, a set of eight was offered by Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma, also interpretative in nature, to be embraced, like the Pittman reservations, in a resolution separate from that ratifying the treaty. Mr. Owen explained that he was not willing to follow the Republicans in their program for reservations apart from the ratifying resolution, on the ground that, as the President had said, it would entail sending the treaty back to the other signatories.

Owen Suggests a Protocol.

Mr. Owen suggested that his reservations might be embraced in a protocol which would be referred to the four principal powers allied with the United States in the war. In that event, he said, they would be passed upon by the powers that would control the League Council. But he explained that, no matter whether they were adopted in a resolution apart from the ratifying resolution or as a protocol, they would be only an expression of the understanding of the United States or the matters touched upon.

Mr. Pittman's reservations embrace understandings as to the Monroe Doctrine, purely domestic questions, such as immigration, commerce, and the tariff; withdrawal and Article X., involving the guarantee of territorial integrity, and the political independence of members of the League. These are exactly the provisions embraced in the reservations urged by the "mild reservationist," and, in effect, by the group led by Senator Lodge. The only difference is that the Republicans want to make sure that the reservations are included in the ratifying resolution, so there shall be no opportunity later for the League Council to ignore them as being only "interpretative."

The reservations of Mr. Owen touch upon four points not explicitly mentioned in Mr. Pittman's. These contemplate a reservation declaring that the League of Nations shall not interfere in any internal revolution of a nation, excepting as to a backward nation under a mandatory; that reduction of armament proceed as rapidly as the safety of the world permits; that the United States regards the obligation under Article XXIII., to "undertake to secure just treatment of the native inhabitants under their control, as a moral obligation of the highest character," and that the Senate understands that Japan will speedily carry out the pledge given the Chinese Government in 1915 to return the former German rights in the Shantung peninsula within a reasonable time.

Mr. Owen deals with Article X. in a general way, not mentioning the article specifically, but providing that Congress determine the use of its armed forces. The effect of this would be to put the United States on record as understanding that the League Council could not force its soldiers to fight in foreign wars unless Congress assented.

In his speech Mr. Pittman, pursuing the argument of President Wilson at the White House conference, urged his reservations as carrying out what he called a plan suggested by the President to provide a means for those who favored the League of Nations and wanted to see the treaty ratified. He referred to the conference as having cleared the air and removed many obstacles.

Senator Pittman's Argument.

"The President," Mr. Pittman said, "has suggested a plan that should make it easily possible for all those who desire a League of Nations to join their efforts and ratify the treaty. While personally satisfied that the terms of the treaty are not subject to misconstruction, in his intense desire for harmony and early accomplishment of peace he has given his approval of the substance of the reservations urged by Senator McCumber and Senator Kellogg and other revisionist supporters of the League of Nations.

"While he has given his approval of such reservations, he is opposed to the plan of inserting these reservations in the resolution of ratification. He favors the adoption by the Senate of a separate and contemporaneous resolution, setting forth the construction and interpretation of the treaty as understood by our Government. He contends that the same result will be accomplished, as far as the protection of our Government is concerned, by either plan. He holds, however, that, if the reservations are included in the resolution of ratification, it necessitates the return of the treaty for further consideration and approval, not only by all of our friends who are parties to the treaty, but by Germany; while a separate resolution, not being a part of the treaty, would not require further consideration by the other parties thereto, or their consent or approval.

"It is true that the President stated that he was confident from the discussions that took place at the time of the adoption of the covenant of the League of Nations that all of the framers of the covenant place upon it the same construction that he does; but the treaty, if reservations be contained in the resolution of ratification, must go back to Germany, and Germany has expressed no opinion upon the construction to be given to the covenant of the League of Nations. We do not know whether she would accept our construction or not. We do know that Germany is longing for an opportunity to attach to the treaty hundreds of reservations which she urged upon the Peace Conference and which were denied.

"It is conclusively evident that the inclusion of reservations in the resolution of ratification would long delay peace, and it might result in the abandonment of the League of Nations. I am aware that this latter result would not be displeasing to some of the Senators.

"If, then the interest of our Government, that some believe is jeopardized by indefinite articles in the covenant, can be protected in a resolution of interpretation which will not bring about the results that must accrue if placed in the resolution of ratification, there will be no hesitation, in my opinion, upon the part of two-thirds of the United States Senate. I believe that such a resolution will accomplish such a result."

Pittman Would Rush Reservations.

When Mr. Pittman had finished Senator Brandegee asked if the reservations he proposed were to be incorporated in the ratifying resolution.

"I do not propose that," said Senator Pittman. "My purpose is to have my resolution considered as soon as possible and passed in advance of action on the treaty, so that other nations having representatives on the Council of the League of Nations would have the opportunity to pass identical resolutions or some of the same purport. Under no circumstances would I have the reservations a part of the ratifying resolution."

Senator Pittman spoke of the League of Nations as "hardly more than a meeting place where the consensus of opinion of the civilized world may be obtained and its moral force brought to bear."

"Is the Senator willing to write a section in the League covenant that the jurisdiction of the League shall be limited to that effect?" asked Senator Reed.

"There would be no trouble about that. I will write that into the League," said Senator Pittman.

"If it is written into the League covenant that it is only a 'meeting place for consultation' without power of coercion or compulsion, there will be no difficulty," said Senator Reed.

The Pittman reservations, along with those offered by Mr. Owen, went to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Pittman's Proposals Attacked.

When Mr. Pittman was through Republican Senators, led by Mr. Poindexter of Washington, attacked the program of interpretative reservations as not adequately protecting the United States against possible action by the League of Nations in the event that the obligations of the United States under the treaty were brought under consideration in the case of any war or other emergency arising.

Mr. Reed of Missouri joined in the debate, asking Mr. Pittman if he would consent to a clearly-written reservation stating that the Senate understood the function of the League of Nations to be merely a "meeting place for consultation," without power to enforce any decision against the United States. Mr. Pittman replied that he would consent to almost anything Mr. Reed might suggest, so long as it would not constitute anything but an interpretative reservation.

In the course of the debate Mr. Pittman became involved in an argument with Senators Poindexter and Reed over "moral obligations" implied in the League covenant as against "legal obligations" as enunciated by the President at the conference at the White House. Mr. Pittman agreed with the President that the obligation imposed upon the United States under Article X. was merely a moral one. The two Senators challenged this view, contending that the covenant legally obligated the United States to abide by any decision of the League Council.

The debate on the Pittman reservations indicated the bitter opposition that will be raised in the Senate against any interpretative reservations. Senators representing all the camps among the reservationists, and the opponents who want drastic amendments, such as Mr. Borah and Mr. Johnson, listened to it with keen interest.

Later the opposition Senators showed, in comment in the lobbies, that they would fight the interpretative reservation program to the finish. The so-called "mild reservationists" were found to be, without exception, as much opposed to reservations of "understanding" or "interpretation" as the more radical Senators. In fact, as one of the group of seven put it, the "mild reservationists now appear to have been transformed into wild ones."

Comment in Senate Lobbies.

Senator Lodge said, after the debate: "I do not think the situation is in the least changed by the White House conference or by the interpretative reservations as put in by Mr. Pittman. In fact, I judge the situation with respect to those who favor emphatic reservations as having been strengthened in the last two days. The Pittman reservations will get no Republican support. Expression of our opinion, in a separate document, such as he proposes on the meaning of the treaty, means nothing whatever. It would be utterly worthless."

Mr. Lodge added that the Foreign Relations Committee was expediting its deliberation over the treaty, and that he expected it would be reported out "soon." The impression is that the treaty, which the President wants acted upon at once, will be reported to the Senate by the end of next week.

Here is some comment from the "mild" reservationists:

Senator Spencer (Missouri): "The resolution proposed by Senator Pittman never will be adopted. It is impossible. The sooner the President realizes that he must get down to a real, genuine, American protecting reservation and not jeopardize the treaty further, the better it will be. Every day he delays getting back of American safeguarding reservations he endangers the League of Nations and the treaty. He is mistaken about sentiment for the League increasing and pressure resulting on Senators. It is certainly not so in my State. An interpreting clause such as introduced by Senator Pittman would be absolutely valueless. It would be like a man signing a lease and saying at the same time he thinks he is paying twice too much."

Senator McCumber, (North Dakota): "I would not say that I am going to vote for the Pittman resolution, but whether I do or not I shall vote for reservations in the resolution of ratification itself. Anything else would not be binding, and would be a mere expression of the opinion of Senators. For instance, such a resolution could be passed by a mere majority vote, whereas a treaty requires a two-thirds vote. I hope for a report from the committee on the treaty within ten days, but unless a closure rule is adopted—and this requires a two-thirds vote—I do not think there will be a vote in the Senate on the treaty before Christmas."

Senator McNary, (Oregon): "I think it is unreasonable to ask that these reservations agreed upon by some of us should be adopted outside of the treaty. They should be a part of the body of the treaty. I have talked with several of my colleagues who favored these reservations, and I am sure that the Pittman resolution will not be satisfactory to any of them, although I only wish to speak for myself."

Colt Calls the President Obstinate.

Senator Colt, (Rhode Island): "I am inclined to agree with my colleagues who favor reservations, that they should be included in the resolution of ratification. I think the President exaggerates the danger of our insisting on reservations intended to protect America's interests. For my part, I would vote for reservations I thought necessary to protect America's interests if forty-five nations objected. I am convinced from the temper of the Senate today that the treaty will never be ratified without reservations, and I do not wish to endanger it. I do not think the President should take such an obstinate position."

Senator Nelson (Minnesota): "The reservations must be a part of the resolution of ratification. Action such as proposed by Senator Pittman would be of no value."

Senator Kellogg (Minnesota): "If we are going to make reservations, why not make them effective by including them in the instrument by which we ratify the treaty? I favor reservations, and not worthless interpretations."

Senator Lenroot (Wisconsin): "I have never been for any other program than that of including strong and clear reservations in the resolution of ratification. So far as I know there is no thought on the Republican side of anything else. The reservations will be adopted as part of the ratifying resolution, and I am sure the treaty then will be ratified. The treaty cannot be ratified unless such action is taken."

Other Senators expressed themselves as follows:

Senator Cummins, (Iowa): "I am for strong reservations as part of the ratifying resolution. I have no doubt that such reservations will be adopted, but I expect to see all amendments defeated."

Johnson's Sarcastic "Chronology."

Senator Johnson, (California): "Chronologically, there was first presented a perfect document incapable of amendment, which forthwith was amended. The amended League then was such a finished product and so plain that, in the language of its advocates, it must be adopted without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't.' Then interpretations might be appended which would clarify its ambiguities. Now definite reservations by resolution are suggested. What next? Those who believe in the preservation of American independence insisted upon safeguarding our nation rather than the nations of Europe and Asia. Perhaps our friends on the other side are gradually coming to the American doctrine."

Senator Hitchcock, when asked for his opinion as to the reservation situation in view of the White House conference and the speech of Senator Pittman, said:

"The matter of reservations, as I said the other day, is a bridge at which we have not yet arrived. The thing before us is to get the treaty out of committee, which I hope will be done within ten days' time. After that the fight will be made by advocates of the treaty for its ratification without change. My position as to reservations is that we cannot consider them until we have acted upon the treaty. We must first consider any textual changes that are to be made, and I hope that they will be defeated.

"I was not consulted by Mr. Pittman as to the interpretative reservations he has suggested, and there has been no conference that I know of upon them. I understand they are his own. I am not willing at this time to say that I would vote for any reservations."

BACKS WILSON'S ARGUMENTS.

League to Enforce Peace Says He Has Removed Excuses for Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The League to Enforce Peace, which has been urging prompt ratification of the Versailles Treaty, tonight issued a statement by way of analysis and interpretation of the conference of yesterday between President Wilson and members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"President Wilson," the League statement says, "by his conference with the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, has shown the Senate the necessary limits of its information, so that investigation can no longer be made a pretext for delay. This suits practically all the Senate but the 'irreconcilables,' led by Senators Knox, Johnson, and Borah, who want to prevent ratification except after amendments which will make new negotiations necessary.

"The main issue today for the country and the world is to get the treaty ratified as it is. There are those who honestly feel that, while they want the treaty ratified, they also want the future safeguarded and the United States promising nothing more now than the American people will willingly perform in the future. The path in the Senate for these the President has pointed out by stressing the difference between a legal contract to do certain definite things (which the covenant does not contain) and the acceptance of a moral obligation by the United States, the obligation in future to use its great power to create and keep a righteous peace, not merely after a world war has begun, but before any war has begun.

"When the President drew the line between the punitive occupation of territory and its annexation he evidently meant to point out that the United States would remain as free as ever to deal with chronic disorder in Mexico as it is now doing.

"When he dwells on the new authority and method for dragging oppression and the denial of the rights of any people before the world's bar he practically says that compromise was made over Shantung at Paris and the door closed to a hearing for Ireland and Egypt and many more or less known lands, because the Paris Conference could deal now only with people and regions already in full revolutionary control of their own destinies; but that in the future sovereignties which denied the lesser peoples their rights could not, as in all the past, say, 'This is none of your business' to all outside comment and protest, but, instead, would have to justify their acts before the public opinion of all nations and men."

WANTS TREATY RATIFIED.

American Rights League Appeals to Senate for Prompt Action.

The Senate was urged to put aside "petty party interests or individual ambitions or antagonisms which have already caused serious and disastrous delay," and to ratify immediately the Peace Treaty embodying the League of Nations, in a statement issued in this city yesterday by the American Rights League, and signed by its President, George Haven Putnam.

"With the acceptance should be connected no reservations which are of a nature to make necessary a reopening of questions, the adjustment of which has been accepted by the representatives in Paris," said the statement. "The League of Nations is striving to place political force under the control of international law. The world is looking to the United States to do its part."

OPPOSES COVENANT IN LETTER TO SENATORS

American Independence League Advises Insistence on Three Reservations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — Colonel Henry Watterson of Kentucky, as President, and the other officers of the League for the Preservation of American Independence, tonight made public an open letter to members of the United States Senate opposing the present draft of the League of Nations Covenant. The League announced that the letter "will be sent broadcast to the people of the United States." Besides Colonel Watterson, the signers are George Wharton Pepper, Vice President; Stuyvesant Fish, Treasurer; Henry A. Wise Wood, Secretary; former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Louis A. Coolidge, former Senator Thomas W. Hardwick, Dr. David Jayne Hill and F. C. Stokes, Directors. The letter follows:

To the Senators of the United States:

The League for the Preservation of American Independence respectfully urges the careful and dispassionate consideration of the following:

We affirm:

1. That no treaty obligations should be assumed which impair:

(1) The right of self-defense and of friendly succor.

(2) The right to refuse to go to war.

(3) The right to manage our own domestic affairs and to maintain our traditional policies.

2. That the right of self-defense and of friendly succor is destroyed by Article 15 of the covenant; that the right to refuse to go to war is destroyed by Article 10 of the covenant, and that the right to manage our own domestic affairs and to maintain our traditional policies is imperiled by Articles 16, 21 and 23.

3. That if these provisions of the covenant were good but obscure they would require interpretation, but that as they are vicious and clear, what they need is amendment.

We therefore submit:

1. That the Senate should refuse to advise and consent to the making of the treaty with Germany unless its advice and consent is expressly made subject to such reservations as the Senate shall specify. According to established international usage, acceptance by the other parties signatory of such reservations can be accomplished by the separate action of the several Chancellaries without either reconvening the Peace Conference or jeopardizing the stability of the peace with Germany.

2. That when consent has thus been given to the treaty the Senate should maintain its reservations even if other powers hesitate or decline to approve them, and should not under any circumstances yield to pressure exerted from abroad.

3. That the reservations to be made by the Senate in giving consent to the treaty should include the following:

First Reservation.—The United States expressly reserves its right to resort to war in self-defense, or for the restoration of order in a neighboring territory, or to succor a friendly nation, even if such action is disapproved by the unanimous vote of the Council or of the Assembly; such an exercise of sovereignty by the United States not to constitute a breach of any covenant or obligation under this treaty and not to subject the United States to any of the consequences prescribed therein in the case of disregard of covenants, anything in the treaty to the contrary notwithstanding.

Second Reservation.—The United States expressly reserves its right to ignore a call to arms from either the Council or the Assembly, and to refuse to adopt any military, naval, financial, or economic measures against any nation or nations except such as its uncontrolled judgment shall approve, anything in the treaty to the contrary notwithstanding.

Third Reservation.—The United States expressly reserves its right to determine its own domestic policies and to enforce its own regulations for the control of immigration and of its own coastwise trade and to formulate and enforce its own finance and tariff policies, and in particular the United States reserves its right to act in accordance with the Monroe Doctrine with the same freedom and effect as if this treaty had not been made."

CHINA DELAYS PEACE EDICT.

Will Not Declare War with Germany Ended Till Austria Signs.

PEKING, Aug. 17, (Associated Press.) The edict declaring the war with Germany at an end will not be issued until the treaty with Austria is signed, according to an announcement made today. In the meantime the Government is considering what measures will be taken when the mandate is issued, such as whether Germans will continue to enjoy the right of extraterritoriality.

The Government, it is declared, is still determined not to sign the German treaty. No decision has yet been reached as to the Chinese attitude toward proposals for mediation regarding the signing of the German treaty. The Government, it is added, is determined not to negotiate with Japan concerning the Peace Treaty.

WADHAMS FAVORS TREATY.

Suggests Legal Procedure for Applying Amendments.

Judge William H. Wadhams of General Sessions, a Republican, sent a public letter to Senator William M. Calder yesterday reviewing a course of legal procedure for applying amendments and reservations to the League of Nations covenant and the Peace Treaty, and urging immediate ratification of the treaty and suggesting that action to perfect the covenant follow in the way provided in the covenant itself.

SAYS CHINA DOUBTS JAPAN'S PROMISES

Official Adviser to Chinese President Questioned at Length by Senate Committee.

DISAPPOINTED IN AMERICA

China Was Advised That Declaration of War Annulled Japan's Claims on Germany's Holdings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—China regards the Shantung decision as a "deviation from the policy of friendly support which the United States has heretofore maintained with respect to her and this deepens her sense of outrage," Dr. John O. Ferguson, official adviser to the President of the Chinese Republic, testified today when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee resumed its hearings on the treaty.

"China feels more keenly than anything else the fact that the United States, which has always displayed friendly co-operation and solicitude for China's welfare, is supporting the robbery which was approved by the other great powers at Paris in giving Shantung to Japan," said Dr. Ferguson.

He said that this was the feeling of the President of China, of his Prime Minister and Cabinet, and declared it ran through the Chinese people, business men and others, as was manifested by the tone of the native press.

Dr. Ferguson qualified as an expert on things Oriental by telling the committee that he went to China in 1887, was President of Nanking University and of Nanyang College, and held advisory positions to the Viceroys at Nanking and Wuchang and in the Chinese railway administration. Since 1911 he has been adviser to the President of the republic, having served in four administrations. He speaks Chinese fluently.

He painted for the committee a picture of Japanese economic penetration, declaring that Japan was gradually broadening her hold upon the material resources of China in such a way as to cause great apprehension as to her purposes.

Asked by Senator McCumber whether China was not protected against dismemberment by Article X. of the League of Nations covenant, Dr. Ferguson replied:

"Yes, if the promise therein contained were not accompanied by connivance at what our American conscience must recognize as an outrageous act. What good will it do to promise China not to steal from her in the future if we couple with that a promise to overlook what has been stolen in the past?"

Senator McCumber pointed out that under the terms of the treaty Japan must get out of Shantung when the ninety-nine-year lease to Kiau-Chau is up.

"But China fears," said Dr. Ferguson, "that Japan won't stop there. Japan has gradually broadened her holdings in other parts of China, extending the leases so that some of them will run until the twenty-first century. Under the treaty of 1915, which she exacted from China by duress, Japan made great gains economically. Since then she has penetrated even more effectively, getting the rights of residence, purchase of agricultural lands, railroads and mines in Mongolia and Manchuria. Japan has gained control of six mining districts in Mongolia, three in Kirin, and the right to extend the Kirin-Changchun railroad on to the Korean border.

"Japan also has obtained extensive rights in the Yangtse Valley, chiefly the Hanyehping Iron and Steel Company, which has been converted into a joint Japanese-Chinese concern. It owns the Talyeh iron mines, from which comes most of the iron for two great Japanese factories.

"China has also been forced to give up rights in Fukien province, opposite Formosa. China has agreed not to build docks or port facilities there, or to lease to others the right to build them. Japan reserves all such rights to herself.

"The railroads of Manchuria, over which Japan has gained control, are strategic and are not needed for the present development of commerce or trade."

Dr. Ferguson was questioned at great length by Senator McCumber as to the manner in which Japan obtained concessions. The witness declared that duress was used in every case, sometimes through a show of military force, as at Kiao-Chau, and on other occasions by threatening to withhold financial aid, or to create trouble for China.

"The United States always uttered some sort of protest," Dr. Ferguson said, "when things went too far, and it is for this reason that China feels that in the case of Shantung America has abandoned her ancient friend."

Senator McCumber insisted that under the language of the treaty nothing but German rights were given Japan.

"But under the German treaty, China gave up none of her sovereignty over Shantung province, Kiao-Chau or the city-port of Tsing-tao," said Dr. Ferguson. "Japan, however, has already seized sovereign rights, by establishing civil Government in the province."

"Well," said Senator McCumber, "Japan has said she will give the place back to China, and in any event she must get out when her lease is up, under this treaty."

"China's experience," replied Dr. Ferguson, "has caused her to be wary of such provisions, and has made her seriously fear this one."

The witness said that two eminent French international law experts, as well as one from Russia, another from Holland and one from Belgium, advised the Pekin Government that a declaration of war against Germany would at once end all Germany's rights in China. Not only that, these experts agreed, he said, that the war declaration also vitiated the contracts, made with Japan under duress, by which China agreed to turn over to Japan Germany's rights. "China acted on this advice," Dr. Ferguson said, "believing it sound, and based her case before the Paris Peace Conference on the premise that the war declaration had safeguarded China's rights."

Dr. Ferguson will be questioned further by the committee on Thursday.

ISHII THINKS OUTLOOK GOOD.

Sees No Clash of American and Japanese Interests in China.

TOKIO, July 17, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—In an interview on arriving here, Viscount Ishii, Japanese Ambassador to Washington, said that he held an entirely optimistic view in regard to the relations between the United States and Japan. He said that there was no collision of vital interests between the two countries on any problems, although occasionally propagandists might talk about a Japanese-American war, which might lead some people to believe that the relations between the two nations were badly strained.

He believed that America's vital interests were mainly in the European and Latin-American markets and not in the Oriental market. He thought that the United States was contented with the strict observance by the powers of the open-door and equal opportunity principle in China and had never dreamed of an economic monopolization of the Chinese market. To his mind, America's safety in the Far East lies in her developing China industrially and commercially, hand in hand with Japan, as well as with the other powers.

Continuing, Viscount Ishii is quoted as saying that the "thinking people of the United States feel quite safe and satisfied with the present situation in the Far East." He believed that the American Government and the people in general were confident that Japan would not destroy the principle of the open door and equal opportunity at the expense of the United States. He approved the American proposition for the financial consortium for China.

The Ambassador declined to make any statement concerning his reported misunderstanding with Secretary of State Lansing over the proposal to appoint Baron Sakatani financial adviser to the Chinese Government.

END OF WEIMAR ASSEMBLY.

German Convention Goes Out Today —Votes Weimar 300,000 Marks.

WEIMAR, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.) —Under a sky of dazzling blue, Weimar is awaiting the close of the National Assembly, which has meant so much to the little city in the last seven months. The Assembly officially goes out of existence tomorrow, and unless specially convened before the next regular session of the German legislature will be superseded by the new Reichstag and will become a thing of history.

Weimar, which had been inclined to worry about the disbanding of the Assembly for several reasons, has several compensations for losing its position as Germany's legislative centre. The first of these is that the Assembly will today, as one of its last acts, vote the city a bonus of 300,000 marks, which will be welcome to the community because of the economic stress. A second is that the ban which has been on Weimar since February, by which nobody not connected with the Assembly in some capacity might enter the city, has been lifted. The city is crowded with eager tourists and Summer visitors, anxious to witness scenes that will become historical. Weimar always has been a popular tourist centre, but more for foreigners than for Germans. Every hotel is filled and business, which has been good all Spring and Summer, is now better than ever, and prices are rising accordingly. The Assembly, among its several accomplishments, put Weimar on the map for all time.

President Ebert's program for taking the oath under the new Constitution was postponed until tomorrow, so that final interpellations and bills could first be disposed of.

Today's session was the eighty-fourth, and was as poorly attended as any since the beginning. The House showed only a scattering of members, there being present only four Independents and a dozen women, while there were great gaps in the Majority Socialists' ranks. Only the obstructionist Conservatives were present in nearly full force.

Tomorrow, when President Ebert takes the oath, it is expected more members will be present, and certainly more Cabinet Ministers, so that the Assembly may end its official existence in a blaze of glory. Today, however, only the gallery of the House was well filled, mostly with women in Summery array. The press tribunes were gapingly empty, as were the balconies.

ORDERS NEWS PRINT INQUIRY

Senate Will Investigate Charges of Price Discrimination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Senate today adopted a resolution offered by Senator Reed of Missouri, providing for an investigation into the news print situation, to ascertain if there had been discrimination in prices and "illegal practices." The resolution follows:

"That the Committee on Manufactures or any sub-committee thereof is hereby authorized and directed to investigate the news print paper industry and to ascertain whether it is now or has been engaged in discriminatory, unjust or illegal practices, and whether the prices now being charged for news print paper or similar products are excessive, and the causes for the existing prices.

"The committee shall report to the Senate the result of its investigation, together with such findings and recommendations as it may deem proper to make."

ORDERS RETRIAL OF REGAN.

Jury Disagrees on Charge Against Police Lieutenant's Brother.

A jury in General Sessions last night was unable to agree on a verdict after four hours' consideration of the charge of forgery in the second degree against Peter Regan, arraigned as a second offender. Judge McIntyre discharged the jury and directed a retrial on Sept. 3. Regan's bail of $10,000 was continued. Robert G. Hamilton, Jr., of San Francisco accused Regan of getting five travelers' checks from him of the total value of $250, one of which was cashed. Hamilton further charged that Police Lieut. Martin Regan, brother of Peter Regan, had sought to induce him to refrain from prosecuting the complaint, and this assertion caused charges to be preferred against the officer pending the conclusion of the trial.

Judge McIntyre told the attorney for Regan, William J. Fallon, that he would examine the record and decide whether or not he would punish counsel for alleged contempt of court. While making exceptions to parts of the Judge's charge Mr. Fallon was said to have characterized one ground of exception as "an animated summation for the prosecution." Judge McIntyre said he might refer the matter of the attorney's remarks to the Appellate Division.

ACCUSE VON HEINRICH.

Former Military Governor of Lille May Face Murder Charge.

LILLE, France, Aug. 19.—(French Wireless Service.)—Evidence adduced before the French Military Court inquiring into crimes committed by the Germans durng the occupation indicates that a charge of murder may be brought against Von Heinrich, a former military Governor of Lille.

Testimony against von Heinrich was given today by Mme. Jacques and Mme. Martens, widows of men shot by the Germans. It was testified that after sentence of death had been passed on Jacques and Martens, von Heinrich authorized the lawyers of the condemned men to appeal to the German Emperor. While the appeal was being made von Heinrich, it was declared, ordered that the men be executed, and they were shot 24 hours later.

The Military Court also has heard the evidence against von Zoelne, former Quartermaster General at Charleville. It has been testified that he was responsible for the deportation of girls from Lille in 1916. General von Gravenitz, Governor of Lille at the time, it was declared, held von Zoelne responsible for the order of deportation.

Dr. von Henverhny, a resident at Fives, near Lille, told the court that Captain Himmen le Belafre was responsible for the murder of the doctor's 19-year old son in November, 1916. The boy was bayonetted by a German soldier on the order of the Captain. The dictor testified further that the Captain, the German Governor of Lille and the German Governor of Roubaix were responsible for the torturing of French youths in German work camps.

The court is also inquiring into the case of Lieutenant Boysel von Gymntz of the Eighth Chasseurs of Treves. The Lieutenant is charged with the attempted murder of Abbe Hallinok of Marcq-en-Baroeul. It is declared that the officer while drunk twice stabbed the priest in whose house he was living, and afterward smashed the furniture and stole some money.

SHAH AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

Persian Sovereign Arrives on Board a British Cruiser.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 19.—Sultan Ahmed Mirza, Shah of Persia, arrived here today aboard an English cruiser on his way to visit Europe. While here he is to live at the mansion of his father, the former Shah, who abdicated in 1909.

Tomorrow the Shah will be received by Sultan Mohammed VI. of Turkey.

Quiet on Sonora Border.

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Mexico, Aug. 20.—Colonel Jose Dominquez, a member of General E. P. Calles's staff, said today that peaceful reports continued to be received from the Sonora border districts. The Federal forces in this section were adequate to guard against possible bandit raids, he said.

printed in English will be discontinued until the Americans leave Mexico.

El Heraldo says the situation has assumed a grave character, and declares that the crossing by the Americans was without notice or request for permission to do so.

The Executive Committee of the Federation of Syndicate Workers of the Federal District has issued a manifesto to its members saying the committee is disposed to aid the Government in the present crisis, and asking President Carranza to bend all efforts to secure the co-operation of all the Mexican people.

The American Consuls at Tampico, Vera Cruz, and Oaxaca, the Excelsior says, have instructed Americans in outlying districts to come into populated centres.

General Juan Torres, chief of operations in the State of Sonora, reports to the War Department that the Yaqui bandits who killed an American chauffeur named White (on May 26) had been dispersed with losses.

Aug. 19.—Permission was given to American aviators to cross the international frontier by the Mexican Government to search for Lieutenants Harold G. Peterson and Paul H. Davis, who were captured by bandits, according to a bulletin made public here tonight by General Juan Barragan, Chief of the Presidential staff. The bulletin makes no mention of any permission being given the United States to send troops across the frontier. It also does not mention the exact place where the two American aviators were supposed to have landed, and gives no information as to what band of outlaws is believed to be in that region.

General Barragan's bulletin says that on Aug. 11 General Manuel M. Diegues, commander of military operations in the State of Chihuahua, reported to President Carranza that he had received a message from Andres Garcia, Inspector General of Mexican Consulates, forwarding a note from Colonel George T. Langhorne, American commander at Marfa, Texas. Colonel Langhorne's note stated that an American Army airplane had landed in Mexican territory south of the Big Bend country, as a result of following the Conchos River instead of the Rio Grande. The bulletin continues by saying that the region where the airplane landed is a desert, where it is known some bands of outlaws have their rendezvous and have not been scattered because of the difficult nature of the country. The note from Colonel Langhorne asked permission for other American machines to cross the frontier to locate the lost pilots.

MEXICAN CONSUL URGES WITHDRAWAL

Arrangements Made to Prevent a Clash with Carranza Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—That the presence of the American cavalrymen in Mexico is not welcomed by the Mexican authorities is shown by a telegram made public tonight by Señor Bonillas, the Mexican Ambassador. The telegram was from the Mexican Consul at Presidio, Texas, who said that a force of Carranzistas had gone in pursuit of the bands and that "as General Pruneda is making the pursuit, I have notified Colonel Langhorne, so that he may order the return of his forces, to avoid difficulties," and he asks the Ambassador to obtain an order from the War Department for the withdrawal.

Here is the text of the telegram:

Presidio, Texas, Aug. 19, 1919,
12:30 P. M.

Y. Bonillas, Ambassador of Mexico,
Washington, D. C.:

Colonel Langhorne informs me that the lost American aviators landed near Falomir station, where airplane remains. They were taken prisoners by twenty Villista bandits, who took them over the mountains near Cuchillo Parado toward San Antonio and Pilares, State of Chihuahua.

Jesus Renteria, chief of the band, demanded $15,000 ransom, which was taken by Kilpatrick from Candelaria, Texas, where the aviators remain to identify the bandits.

Colonel Langhorne informs me that American troops will cross boundary in pursuit to avail themselves of the opportunity of capturing the bandits and for no other purpose. As General Pruneda is making the pursuit, I have notified Colonel Langhorne so he may order the return of his forces to avoid difficulties. Please obtain such an order from the department.

COSME BENGOECHEA,
Consul of Mexico.

A telegram received by the War Department today from Major Gen. Dickman, the commander of the border forces, gave Colonel Langhorne's report of the crossing into Mexico. This telegram follows:

Following telegram Colonel Langhorne, Marfa, Texas, received today (Aug. 19), repeated for your information:

"Movement began before daylight this date (Aug. 19). Troops crossed at Candelaria, Ruidosa, Indio. Centre and left columns will join with right after attempting to head off bandits whose trail right column is following. Airplanes keeping in touch with troops.

"Mexican Consul at Presidio and General Pruneda at Ojinaga were notified of our intended pursuit of the bandits at 6 o'clock and their co-operation asked. This morning later the Consul called me up and said that General Pruneda was preparing to leave with a force in compliance with orders from General Bieguez (translation of which was sent you yesterday) to look for the aviators and fallen plane.

"The Consul said that General Pruneda would like to send troops to follow the bandits after the Consul had been informed of our having obtained the lost aviators last night and having been told just where the plane fell with them and how they were captured near Cotame and held and taken to mountains opposite Candelaria for ransom.

"The Consul then suggested that General Pruneda do not move his troops at all in order to avoid any contact between General Pruneda's troops and ours, since Pruneda had orders not to permit any military representative of our Government to accompany his troops in the search for the lost aviators. I agreed with the Consul that this would be wise, that our troops had taken up the trail of the bandits as soon as it was light enough to see the trail and were then in pursuit, that it was impossible to get Mexican officers to accompany our troops, and assured him that efforts would be made by airplane to keep liaison between our troops and the Mexican troops, to which the Consul agreed. The aviators have made two liaison flights, keeping contact with and observing our troops. Shall keep you informed."

DICKMAN.

Another telegram from General Dickman to the War Department repeated a telegram from Colonel Langhorne in which the latter told of the attack on an American airplane by three Mexicans. Colonel Langhorne reports that both wings of the plane were riddled with bullets although the aviator and his observer escaped unhurt. The aviators, Colonel Langhorne added, returned the fire and believe that one of the Mexicans was killed, the others seeking safety in a canyon. This is the only casualty on either side reported to date.

Señor Bonillas gave out two telegrams tonight dealing with ourages against Americans in Mexico. One was from General Juan Barragan, Carranza's military Chief of Staff, who wired that the men who robbed the office of the Pennsylvania-Mexico Fuel Company a few days ago has been identified and two were captured and two others killed in attempting to escape. Barragan said the robbers were not bandits, but employes of the company that was robbed.

The second telegram, also from General Barragan, concerned conditions in the Tampico oil country. It read:

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19, 1919.

Y. Bonillas, Ambassador of Mexico,
Washington, D. C.

Special police force of Tampico and petroleum zone captured yesterday, (the 16th,) in the Cecelia zone, the group of bandits which attacked the oil launches Alma of the Texas Oil Company, Colonel and Rosita of the Aguila Company, Sherlock Holmes of the Texas Oil Company, Clara of the Trans-Continental Company, and which attacked also the launch of the American gunboat Cheyenne, capturing also one of the assailants of the American citizen George McDonald, several days ago. Some of these prisoners have confessed their crime. Agents of the same police force are leaving for Valles, in the State of San Luis Potosi, to investigate murder of the American citizen Catron.

GENERAL JUAN BARRAGAN,
Chief of Presidential Staff.

The State Department is still without advices tonight regarding the fate of Dr. Goenaga, the Porto Rican physician, kidnapped four weeks ago by bandits near Mexico City and who when last heard from was being held for ransom on Mount Ajusco, near Mexico City.

TIME TO INTERVENE, KAHN DECLARES

Congressman Newton Also Demands a Change in Our Policy of Dealing with Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Chairman Kahn of the House Committee on Military Affairs has given assurance to the War Department that, as the head of that committee, he stands ready to give the Administration any legislative aid that may be necessary to straighten out the tangle in Mexico. Mr. Kahn said that in his opinion, the time for decisive action had arrived and added that "if we go into Mexico in a business-like way it will all be over in a very short time," and until this country took a determined stand normal conditions, he said, would never be restored in Mexico. Mr. Kahn estimated that 100,000 regulars would be an ample force to restore law and order in Mexico.

No comment was forthcoming from the War Department on Mr. Kahn's estimate of 100,000 as a sufficient force. It was pointed out that there are now between 50,000 and 60,000 regulars on, or near, the border, another 50,000 are within a few days' ride of the border, while the State of Texas has organized a force of 14,000 cavalrymen ready to join the regulars whenever their cooperation is asked.

"I am very, very tired of fooling with Mexico," said Mr. Kahn. "Villa and his bandits will continue to cause trouble for a century unless we take action worthy of the name. It is an act of war every time we send soldiers across the border, but we accomplish nothing by sending them over and bringing them back every few hours. If we go in in a business-like way it will be all over in no time. It never will be over until we do get down to business.

"President Wilson should notify the Mexican Government that if another bandit crosses into the United States and destroys lives or property or if they shoot across the border and kill or wound American citizens and the Mexican Govenment is unable to restrain its citizens in these matters, the United States will take a hand and will not stop until American lives and property have been safeguarded.

"Such action as this may mean invasion, but in my opinion the time has come when we should act decisively.

"As Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, I stand ready to give the Administration any legislative aid needed in securing the protection of American lives and property. Conditions will continue to go from bad to worse just so long as we continue to mark time. If we take a hand now I am convinced that 100,000 men will be able to do the job."

Congressman Newton, Republican of Minnesota, introduced a resolution in the House today in which complete information is asked concerning the capture and ransoming of Lieutenants Davis and Peterson.

"The ransoming of these two men reminds one of what the Secretary of War said a few days ago when he advised payment of ransom in another case involving the life of a civilian," said Mr. Newton. "That merely furnished an example for other bandits to make similar demands.

"How long is this to continue? The situation is intolerable to any one knowing anything of American history. One longs for the diplomacy of Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, when he told the French Directorate, demanding money bribes, that America would give millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute.

"There is also the case of Theodore Roosevelt. When the American citizen Perdicaris was held for ransom in Morocco, a message on June 22 to the American Consul, sent by John Hay, was, 'Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead.' On June 24 the Consul wired back that Perdicaris would be released the next day, and three days later Perdicaris wired his thanks to the American Government, which then protected the lives of all its citizens. It is time to get back to that type of American diplomacy."

CAN'T PAY BANDITS' BALANCE.

No One to Take Money Captain Cheated Them Out Of.

CANDELERIA, Texas, Aug. 20.—Mexican newspapers received here today announcing General Dickman's trip to Marfa and possibly to Candelaria in connection with payment of the remainder of the $15,000 ransom for Aviators Peterson and Davis, created a discussion as to how and to whom the money could be paid. After securing the release of Lieutenant Peterson Monday night Captain Leonard Matlack escaped with Lieutenant Davis without paying $6,500 of the $15,000. Captain Matlack returned the money to H. M. Fennell, the Marfa banker, who brought it here.

According to reports, the United States wants the total amount delivered to the bandit Renteria.

No associates or relatives of Renteria live near the border. Dawkins Kilpatrick, a storekeeper, mentioned in the message the aviators were forced to write asking for ransom, refused to have anything to do with the transaction. Kilpatrick, who now is with the American cavalrymen acting as a guide, declared he knew nothing of the matter. It is not believed Kilpatrick would consider receiving the money for the bandits.

100 Small Tanks Sent to Border.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Sixty-two more tanks recently were shipped from the Army Reserve Depot here to forts on or near the Mexican border, it was learned today. During the last week 100 of the one-man whippet type fighting machines were shipped to the border. Three thousand rifles also have been shipped to border points within the last few days.

CONSPIRACY CASES BEFORE GRAND JURY

Inquiry Starts Into Interborough Strike and Charges Against Milk Distributors.

INDICTMENTS DEMANDED

District Attorney Swann Says He Can Show Conspiracy by Transit Officials Under Two Laws.

Charges of conspiracy between officers of the Interborough Company and leaders of their employes in the recent strike were placed before the Extraordinary Grand Jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Bartow S. Weeks at the request of District Attorney Edward Swann.

Justice Weeks, at the District Attorney's behest, also charged the Grand Jury with the reviewing of evidence tending to show a conspiracy on the part of milk distributers to raise their prices. Both of these charges are to be taken up by the Extraordinary Grand Jury, which was recalled yesterday from a vacation, in addition to the investigation of anarchistic activities, for which purpose it was convened by order of Governor Smith.

Justice Weeks gave the District Attorney to understand that he would countenance no ordinary Grand Jury "investigation," as the term has often been used, but that the sessions must have for their object the indictment for conspiracy of certain individuals. District Attorney Swann, on his part, expressed an assurance that the Grand Jury's activities would end in indictments, both in the Interborough matter and in the milk case.

"The public of this county has been most grossly outraged," the District Attorney said in court. "The object of placing this matter before this Grand Jury is to compel by subpoenas the attendance of witnesses who would not otherwise appear and to wring from their unwilling lips the facts about these conspiracies."

Mr. Swann declared that he would not only show conspiracy in the Interborough matter under Section 380 of the Penal Law, covering inducements to labor representatives to cause a strike, but also under Section 860, having to do with intimidation of public officers. He alleged that both the railway officers and the strikers had tried by intimidation to compel the Mayor and the Board of Estimate to grant an 8-cent fare.

Section 380 of the Penal Law says: "A person who gives or offers to give money or other things of value to any duly appointed representative of a labor organization with intent to influence him with respect to any of his acts, decisions, or other duties as such representative, or to induce him to cause a strike by the employes of any person or corporation, is guilty of a misdemeanor." Embodied in the section is a provision that no person shall be excused from testifying on the ground that his testimony might tend to convict him of a crime, but no testimony given by any person in such a proceeding shall be received against him in any criminal proceeding.

Section 860 provides that any one "who directly or indirectly addresses any threat or intimidation to a public officer, or any person authorized by law to hear or determine any controversy or matter with intent to induce him, contrary to his duty, to do or make, or to omit or delay any act, decision or determination, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

The penalty provided is a penitentiary term for a maximum of three years, or a fine, or both.

Relies on Circumstantial Evidence.

District Attorney Swann, in his argument yesterday, indicated that he was depending largely upon circumstantial evidence. He asked Justice Weeks to charge the Grand Jury upon that point, and the Justice instructed them that circumstantial evidence was sufficient to cause an indictment.

The Grand Jury will meet again Monday at 11 o'clock. In the meantime Mr. Swann's process servers are seeking some fifty witnesses for which subpoenas have already been issued.

Mr. Swann, in asking Justice Weeks for permission to lay the matter before the Grand Jury, asserted that he already had facts in his possession which, connected together, "go beyond the question of suspicion." "The evidence which the District Attorney has gathered," he said, "is not, however, sufficient in itself. The use of mandatory subpoenas to bring the witnesses before the Grand Jury is necessary to make out a sufficient case."

Justice Weeks said that the Grand Jury had been called by proclamation of the Governor for a specific purpose and that he had serious doubts as to the power of the Grand Jury to take up an investigation in these other matters.

"If, however, you believe that the evidence will result in indictments," he said, "I will present them."

Justice Weeks Cautions Jury.

Justice Weeks charged the Jury with regard to law in both the subway and milk cases. He explained that, while no person might be excused from attending or bringing records bearing on the case on the ground that it tended to incriminate him, no person who so testified could be indicted on his own evidence. District Attorney Swann asked the Justice to emphasize this point. "You must not call any one included in those whom you intend to indict," Justice Weeks told them.

Justice Weeks asked that the Grand Jury expedite the investigation. Mr. Swann indicated later, however, that it might take many weeks. Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley will assist Mr. Swann in presenting the evidence to the Grand Jury.

INDICTED FOR ANARCHY.

Three Russians Accused of Urging Violent Overthrow of Government.

Three young Russians were indicted for criminal anarchy yesterday by the Extraordinary Grand Jury which is invesigating seditions activities and were held in $5,000 bail each for trial by Justice Bartow S. Weeks in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. They are charged with teaching the duty of overthrowing organized government by force and violence.

Churches, as well as prisons, police stations and barracks, should be destroyed, according to an article the three men are alleged to have been instrumental in circulating. "God is just as much as sworn an enemy of the fundamental joys of life as the gendarme or capitalist," the article said.

The men were Peter Bianki of 316 East Fourteenth Street, Secretary of the Federation of Russian Unions in the United States and Canada; Naum Stepanik of 180 Avenue A, editor of Bread and Freedom, the publication in which the seditious article is alleged to have appeared, and Michael Kravchuck of 239 East Twentieth Street. They were seized in a raid on the Russian People's House, at 133 East Fifteenth Street, on Aug. 15.

Bread and Freedom, which is a weekly publication, is dedicated to "all indigents of contemporaneous society." It announces that its aim is "the dissemination of the theory and philosophy of the ideas of anarchy," but that it is giving place for articles about art and literature, "which tend to affect the esthetic taste of the workers and develop a need for the beautiful and elegant."

The articles all appeared in Russian.

NEW CAR STRIKE THREAT.

Queens and Nassau Trolley Line Operators Demand Higher Wages.

George A. Stanley, President of the New York and North Shore Traction Company, which operates lines of trolley cars in Queens and Nassau Counties, will today issue an appeal to the employes of his road in an effort to prevent their threatened strike. Although the men are not organized in a union, they have combined in demands for a wage increase. Benjamin Fletcher, leader of the employes' organization, declared that the men must be answered by tomorrow. Otherwise, he said, they would strike.

In the ultimatum addressed to the company the employes demand a minimum wage of 48 to 50 cents an hour. They are now receiving from 33 to 35 cents an hour.

A hearing on the company's application for an increased fare will be held by Deputy Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett in Flushing Saturday night. President Stanley will urge the men to refrain from taking any action until after this meeting. He stated that the company was in financial difficulties and could not operate after Sept. 1 without an increased fare.

INDIANA TROOPS OUT IN STEEL CAR STRIKE

More Disorder Feared at Hammond and Ten Companies Are Mobilized.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 20.—Ten companies of State troops tonight were ordered mobilized for transportation to Hammond, Ind., where efforts to end a strike of employes of the Standard Steel Car Company are said to have failed today. The call for the State troops was received tonight by Governor James P. Goodrich from Sheriff Barnes of Lake County and Mayor Dan Brown of Hammond, who stated that they believed the situation would be beyond their control by tomorrow morning. The troops are expected to reach Hammond by noon tomorrow.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 20.—City and county authorities tonight called upon Governor Goodrich at Indianapolis for troops to aid in coping with the situation here due to the strike of employes of the Standard Steel Car Company, who last Friday stormed the streets in the vicinity of the car company in defiance of efforts of police and deputy sheriffs to maintain order.

The action of the authorities followed rejection tonight by the strikers of a compromise offer of the car company officials made at the end of a series of conferences which began last Friday.

Disorders more serious than those of last Friday are feared by the officials and leaders of the strikers who have tried to conciliate the men and declare that the situation is beyond their control.

YORKSHIRE STRIKE ENDED.

British Locomotive Engineers Also Settle Their Demands.

LONDON, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.)—The strike of Yorkshire coal miners, which has been in progress for many weeks, has been settled. All the Yorkshire pits will resume work as soon as practicable.

An agreement has been reached between Sir Auckland Geddes, British Minister of Reconstruction, and the locomotive engineers and firemen, settling their demands, it was announced today.

The insistence of the railroad men on Aug. 14 that the wage dispute be settled immediately threatened for a time to result in a strike.

The Government offered to the locomotive engineers and motormen of electric lines 15 shillings daily, and to the firemen 11 shillings, these wages being a substitute for the present system of wages and war bonuses. The terms were accepted.

MAIL MEN FIX WAGE DEMAND

Post Office Supervisors to Ask 25 to 50 Per Cent. Increase.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 20.—The National Association of Supervisory Post Office Employes closed its annual meeting here today with the adoption of resolutions demanding increases in their wage scale of from 25 to 50 per cent.

The percentage of increase will depend upon the class of Post Office, as measured by the population of the municipality where it is located, in which they are employed. The delegates to the convention laid plans for a concerted march on Washington by representatives of their own and other organizations of postal employes with the demands.

Within the near future a call will be made for a joint meeting of various organizations of postal employes for the purpose of preparing plans for the campaign for increased wages.

The National Association of Supervisory Post Office Employes includes postal officials from the grade of Assistant Postmaster down.

At the forthcoming meeting the demands of each employes' organization will be taken up in detail and classified. A general committee of one man from each organization will be formed.

The Post Office Clerks will hold their annual convention here during the first four days in September.

Bill Raises Pay in Post Offices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Representative Goldfogle of New York today introduced a bill in the House directing the Postmaster General to pay to the letter carriers, postal clerks and other employes in the postal service an increase of 35 per cent. of their salaries, effective from July 1, 1919. This bill is similar to one now pending in the Senate. Representative Goldfogle's bill was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, of which he is a member.

COURT GETS NOTES ON STRIKE AGITATION

It was said that he suggested that the leaders of labor should let matters rest for a time so that the peaceful occupations of the people might be carried on without interruption.

The union men told Mr. Nixon that it was undoubtedly the desire of the organizations created by the Interborough and the Railways Company to keep the Amalgamated out of contact with their employes, but Mr. Nixon expressed himself as having no interest in this phase of the situation, and no interest in any question connected with it except to see that the traction lines were kept in operation. Mr. Nixon refused to say anything about the conference after it was over, and the two labor representatives were similarly reticent.

Mr. Fridiger said, however, that the talk had related to the restoration of the men who had been discharged by the Interborough and the Railways Company because of their activity in behalf of the national organization. He expressed the opinion that the effort to disrupt the Amalgamated Association, "the only true labor body of street car employes," would fail. He stated that Thomas M. Fazakerly, President of the New York Electric Railways Brotherhood, had told four of the Amalgamated members that he would refund the money paid for membership in the association if they would return their cards, and that he would save them from being dismissed by the Railways Company.

Asked if the Amalgamated would order a strike on the lines in this city, Mr. Fridiger replied that the men themselves would have to determine this.

President S. W. Huff of the Third Avenue Railway system announced an increase of approximately 25 per cent. to his employes yesterday, stating at the same time that only an increase of fare could save the company from disaster. His statement was as follows:

Huff's Statement.

"In our notice to you advising you of an increase of wages of approximately 10 per cent., effective Aug. 13, we told you that we were unwilling that you should be paid less than the prevailing rate of wages in the immediate vicinity; and complying with this assurance to you, your rate will again be increased, so as to make a total increase within the last month of approximately 25 per cent., including starters, inspectors, switchmen and plowmen.

"This increase will become effective as of the date of the former 10 per cent. increase, namely, Aug. 13, 1919.

"The financial condition of this system is not such as to justify such a large increase, and without an increase in fare it is simply a question of how long we will be able to meet these largely increased expenses before disaster overtakes the system.

"I believe that the large majority of our men are satisfied with their pay and working conditions, and do not wish any interference from the outside with their relations with the management of the system, and particularly in view of your past experience with the Amalgamated Association, you are not willing that they should again take possession of you and use you for their own selfish purposes in the great gamble with the New York transit situation that they have been engaged in for the last several years.

"Since they violated their contract with the companies of this system and called you out in a sympathetic strike three years ago and threw you down, you have remained independent of the various brotherhoods, both national and local, that have entered into the transit situation. There seems to be ample evidence that during that time a spirit of co-operation and confidence has been developing between the management of this system and its employes, and if this has been developed to a point where you can trust the management to give you a square deal you do not need the Amalgamated Association or any other outside influence to control your course.

"As you well know, the policy of the Amalgamated Association has been to start a strike almost immediately after it gets control of the employes of a system, and in your case they are even now threatening to call a strike before they get control of you, or even before they get a representation among you, trusting to the disorderly element in the community to force you from your positions and into their control. You can rest assured that the management of this system will stand with you in your efforts to keep out these professional agitators, and dismiss from the service those who ally themselves with them."

SALE OF ARMY FOODS BEGINS IN CITY TODAY

Commissioner Day Gives Out Revised List of Schools as Distribution Centres.

MORE SUPPLIES ON THE WAY

Fair Price Committee Investigates Cost of Jewish Bread—Warns Meat Dealers.

The sale of surplus army food will begin in New York City this morning at 10 o'clock, according to an announcement made yesterday by Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, who is in charge for the municipal authorities. Commissioner Day said that the sale would open in fifty-seven schools in the five boroughs today, but that as soon as more of the food which the city has ordered can be transported from the army supply bases in this district other school buildings would be utilized.

The Commissioner said that a great deal of trouble had been experienced in getting the food moved to various distribution points about the city so that some delay was necessary over the time first set for the sale. This transportation question was also responsible, he said, for the fact that the food could not be put on sale in 203 schools, as had at first been planned.

A revised list of school buildings and their locations, where the food may be obtained today, was given out by the Commissioner.

Below Retail Prices.

The distribution of the army food is a part of the effort which Federal, State and municipal authorities are making to cut down the present high price of almost every necessity of life.

The food to be distributed today includes every sort of canned article used by the army—baked beans, corn, tomatoes, green peas, string beans, &c. Also bacon and hams will be sold in many of the schools. The prices are 20 to 30 per cent. less than the prevailing retail prices, according to the army authorities.

Arrangements for the handling of the food in each school were completed late yesterday and announced by the Commissioner, after he and Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley, in active charge of the work of distribution, had had a conference with Mayor Hylan. The Mayor, said Commissioner Day, expressed himself as well pleased with the preparations.

At each school there will be two employes of the city, one a stock clerk and the other acting as cashier. These will be assisted by volunteer workers, chiefly members of the New York City Women's Police Reserves. Men have also been hired to attend to the work of shifting supplies in each building according to the exigencies of the sale. Policemen will be on duty to keep order and to give information to the crowd of purchasers.

According to instructions made public at the office of Commissioner Day yesterday the procedure will be as follows in each school:

The buyer will give his or her order to the clerk who will write it down in a sales ticket book. At the same time a volunteer worker will write the order in a duplicate sales ticket book, passing the duplicate ticket to the customer. These tickets will be numbered. When the order is filled the number of the sales ticket will be called and the customer will receive the supplies by surrendering his duplicate ticket with the money required to the cashier.

City Orders 400 Car Loads.

The city has ordered 400 car loads of food for this first sale and the distribution will continue until that amount of food has been disposed of.

Capt. J. R. Hebelwaite of the Quartermaster Corps announced yesterday that the Government had a great quantity of frozen meats, chiefly fowls and mutton, which would be placed on sale later. According to Capt. Hebelwaite, there will be 3,000,000 pounds of poultry, 1,000,000 pounds of pork loin chops, and 250,000 pounds of mutton to be distributed in this zone as soon as the municipalities can assure the army that they have cold storage facilities to handle the food so as to prevent its spoiling before being all sold. The prices will be 15 to 20 per cent. lower than the prevailing market price when the sale is held.

Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator, announced yesterday that the Fair Price Committee had received notice of another refund for overcharging in a sugar transaction. In this case, said Mr. Williams, a complaint had been made to the committee by the National Licorice Company of 106 John Street, Brooklyn, that for a purchase of 20,000 pounds of sugar they had to pay 13 cents a pound. The dealers selling the sugar, S. B. Thompson & Company, of 100 Wall Street, told representatives of the Fair Price Committee that they had to buy the sugar from Hasse & Koehl, of 88-89 Cambridge Avenue, Jersey City, for 10½ cents a pound.

Under the sugar regulations in force under the Food Control act, the price of the commodity at wholesale in a transaction like the above should not have exceeded 9.35 cents a pound. When this fact was brought to the attention of Hasse & Koehl, they agreed to refund the difference to the S. B. Thompson Company, who promised to make a refund to the National Licorice Company. The amount involved is approximately $600.

To Watch Prices of Meats.

The situation in the price of meats was gone into by the Fair Price Committee yesterday, with the result that in one case a concern, the Washington Beef Company, wholesale and retail dealers in meats, operating three stores, one at 892 Third Avenue, another at 767 Ninth Avenue, and a third at 541 Ninth Avenue, wrote to the Food Administrator, promising to be more careful in their quoted and their selling prices of meat hereafter.

The Fair Price Committee, according to Mr. Williams, learned that in the Third Avenue store of the concern were signs attached to the window quoting prices of meat much lower than those given out by the committee. An investigator was sent up who bought meat in that store. She learned from the clerk that the quoted prices were merely put in the window as an advertisement while the real price of meat inside was equal and in some cases higher than the fair margin listed.

Mr. Williams had a conference yesterday with a number of prominent bakers to discuss the situation as regards the price of Jewish bread, which, the bakers told Mr. Williams, will have to be raised if the bakers are to continue to make a living from its manufacture.

Tell of Cost of Breadmaking.

According to the statements made by the bakers conditions in the Jewish bread-baking industry have changed materially since pre-war days. For example: Where bakers formerly got wages of from $25 to $30 a week, they were now being paid from $58 to $61. Also, before the war, a baker was permitted under his working agreement to carry home 20 cents worth of the bread a day, or $1.40 worth a week. Now a baker demands the right to take home $4 worth of bread each week. In addition, in the time before the war, the working day in the industry was nine hours. Now it is six and a half hours.

The bakers asked Mr. Williams for permission to call a mass meeting to discuss the situation and he agreed. The Fair Price Committee is to give the fullest possible publicity to the side presented by the bakers, and after hearing other interests will fix a price for Jewish bread. A promise was given to the Food Administrator that the bakers would abide by any decision the Fair Price Committee made in the matter.

Mr. Williams stated that he would make an effort to remedy the situation in regards to the high prices asked for frozen fish. George T. Moon, Chairman of the Fish Trade Committee, has been asked to serve on the Fair Price Committee.

BILL TO PUNISH RETAIL PROFITEERS

into the jury box and the jury will decide whether the black sheep is a profiteer or not."

"The entire Food Control act will be waste paper if the Government cannot reach the retail gouger," the Attorney General told the committee. "The Department of Justice has had more complaints against the retail gougers than any other class. We have found that thousands of corner stores are taking advantage of the situation to charge exorbitant prices, and this is what the people are protesting about.

"The small dealer is the man they come directly in contact with, and it is he as much as any other dealer in commodities that they are demanding action against. These dealers often control their surrounding localities, and while the majority of retail merchants are fair, there are many black sheep among them, and we have found that in nearly every town there is a corner store informing people prices must be high and taking advantage of this to extort large profits.

"We have already started actions against the big packers, but it is obvious that it would not be fair to prosecute only them and the large department stores with an annual business of more than $100,000, and let the 'little gougers' go free.

Opposes Price Fixing.

"I am willing to exempt the farmers from the hoarding provisions of the Food Control act, but not from straight-out profiteering, and I see no reason why the Government should not exercise control over corporations of farmers organized for profit. I was informed today that such a corporation has had in storage 2,000,000 sacks of the 1918 California bean crop.

"The proposal to have the President fix all prices and then give the department power to prosecute all violators is so drastic and far-reaching, constituting a new Government policy, that I am sure it would not be passed until after long delay. I don't see how we could prosecute until the President has determined these prices, and the President, of course, couldn't in a day fix those prices. He would have to have complete investigations by an agency such as the Food Administration, which would require three or four months to put on a working basis. We prefer to leave it to a court or jury to determine what prices are fair in each locality, because they do vary considerably, and this would be determined in our prosecutions against the profiteers."

Mr. Palmer said investigations were being made of several industries, including coal, hide, and leather.

Representative Siegel of New York expressed the belief today that New York City's Fair Price Committee, appointed by the Federal Food Administrator, Arthur Williams, would do little to lower the prices of food, clothing, and other necessities.

"The very men who compose the committee," he said, "are the men who are profiting most by present high prices. It is utterly absurd to expect them to recommend lower prices than they are now charging. A wholesale propaganda campaign is now being spread by manufacturers to induce retailers to write their Congressmen protesting against the scheme of having every article labeled with its production price. The Garment Maker and other trade papers are openly appealing to all retailers to protest.

"Their argument is that the average workingman should not be told what the production price is, because he is too ignorant to allow the retailer a fair profit by making allowance for overhead expenses. As a result, the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee is being overwhelmed with letters of protest from retailers, stirred by this propaganda."

List of Federal Seizures.

The Department of Justice tonight made public a list of the food seizures which have been made up to this time in various parts of the country, and it is probable that a considerable part of these commodities will soon be marketed. The list includes 24,928,000 eggs and 2,000,000 pounds of pork as the more important items.

The complete list follows:

Date.	Place.	Commodity.
Aug. 1,	Columbus, Ga.,	7,000 pounds sugar.
Aug. 15,	St. Louis, Mo.,	2,000,000 pounds pork.
Aug. 15,	St. Louis, Mo.,	2,000 bags coffee.
Aug. 15,	Detroit, Mich.,	6,000,000 eggs.
Aug. 15,	Detroit, Mich.,	4,560,000 eggs.
Aug. 15,	Detroit, Mich.,	2,300,000 eggs.
Aug. 15,	Detroit, Mich.,	3,000 pounds butter.
Aug. 15,	Chattanooga, Tenn.,	2,268,000 eggs.
Aug. 15,	Chattanooga, Tenn.,	2,800,000 eggs.
Aug. 16,	Chattanooga, Tenn.,	5,000,000 eggs.
Aug. 16,	Kansas City, Mo.,	100,000 pounds beans.

Mr. Palmer said no decision had been reached as to the method of selling seized foodstuffs to the public, whether it would be distributed direct by the Government to the consumer or through ordinary trade channels. This would be determined when the court in which libel actions had been brought determined whether all or any part of the foodstuffs were in fact illegally held.

The greatest care would be taken not to unload food now in storage on a scale that would bring on the danger of a severe shortage at a later season.

"There is nothing that we can hope to do which will change the immutable laws, such as the law of supply and demand," Mr. Palmer said. "We can, however, increase the supply by unloading commodities which are actually hoarded within the meaning of the act and the natural laws will readjust prices. What we can do is to undo artificial effort in other directions which served to keep prices above a fair level."

Through Mr. MacCrate's resolution, the Attorney General is directed to furnish to the House:

The number of violations of Section 2 of the Food Survey law, covering cost, prices and supply, reported by the Department of Agriculture Jan. 1 to June 30, 1919, together with the number of prosecutions and convictions and the names involved.

The number of violations of Sections 4 and 6 of the Food Control act, covering willful destruction, hoarding, limiting of products and unfair price-fixing of necessaries, reported, during the same period, by the Departments of Agriculture, Labor, Commerce and the Treasury, together with details of prosecutions, convictions and names, as asked for in the first request.

The number of violations of Section 13 of the Food Control act, authorizing the President to prevent undue enhancement of prices and other evil practices, reported during the same period, together with the same additional facts.

The total amount of hoarded necessities sold by the courts after proceedings instituted by the Department of Justice.

The number of proceedings brought by the Department of Justice following the recommendations of the Federal Trade Commission in its report of May, 1918, with details as to indictments, convictions, and names.

The number of applications made by the Attorney General to the Federal Trade Commission for investigation of corporations alleged to have violated the anti-trust act, together with the names of the corporations.

SENATORS HEAR PACKERS.

Independents Insist They Compete with Big Five.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Independent packers, appearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee today, challenged most of the statements of the Federal Trade Commission on which proposals for stringent regulation of the five dominant concerns in the industry are based.

The independent representatives insisted that they were meeting and furnishing lively competition at both ends of the industry—in the purchase of live stock for their plants and in the sale of meats to the retailer—and expressed the opinion that the law of supply and demand would serve sufficiently to protect the consumer. Their view was supplemented by that of a retail butcher and received minor support from a vegetable cannery representative and the head of a milk condensing business, who objected to the licensing provisions of the Kenyon bill, which they felt would apply to their business if not changed.

Committee members, particularly Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, author of the regulation measure, and Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, put to the packing representatives questions bearing on the American Institute of Packing and its Washington offices, and activities.

"Isn't the institute office here to fight any kind of regulation?" Senator Kenyon asked T. Davis Hill, who headed a delegation of independent packers of Baltimore.

"I'm not an officer of it," Mr. Hill said, "but suppose they want to be on the ground to be familiar with all legislative proposals affecting the industry.

"We are now passing through a period of inflation," Mr. Hill said. "Prices are abnormal, business is abnormal. This is no time to regulate. Wait until we get through it and have our feet back on the ground, and then see what drastic measures are necessary."

The witness said he bought hogs in competition with the big packers in Kansas City and Chicago and was sure the big concerns could not control prices. Solomon Greenwald, who said his house in Baltimore dealt only in beef, asserted the same was true of other live stock.

H. C. Bertram, manager of an independent concern with packing plants at Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore, was asked if the big packers could not establish a monopoly in foodstuffs.

"There is a very delicate question there," he said. "The packers, with their more efficient organization, might be able to distribute foodstuffs to the consumer cheaper than other men in the specialized lines, I'll admit, and so put them out of business. It's a question of economic law."

All of the independents said their business had reached the apex of prosperity under food administration regulation during the war.

"If that was true when you were being controlled, why do you object to control now?" asked Chairman Gronna.

Jacob Shafer of Baltimore responded that the packers endured the Food Administration control without question because "it was only temporary."

Emmanuel Wasserman, a Norfolk, Va., retail butcher, expressed the opinion that the larger packing houses were a benefit to the industry and the consumer.

H. B. Stausbaugh, speaking in behalf of Maryland vegetable canners, asked that care be exercised to prevent the licensing requirements aimed at the packers from affecting the cannery business. William T. Nardin of St. Louis, for the milk condenseries, brought up the same point.

3,340 TONS OF SUGAR ARRIVE.

Customs Official Says Lack of Ships Holds Vast Supply in Cuba.

Relief in the sugar market is in sight with the arrival yesterday of the first large consignment of the raw product from Cuba. Approximately 6,680,600 pounds of raw sugar was brought into port by the Munamar, and no time was lost after the steamer docked in unloading the shipment, to be hurried away to the various refineries.

Rafael Ramos, Collector of Customs of the port of Antilla, a passenger on the Munamar, said that only a lack of ships stood in the way to shipping thousands of tons of sugar now stored in warehouses in Cuba. He was surprised when he learned that there had been a scarcity of sugar in this country, and he said the United States could have its normal supply if steps were taken to bring the product here for refining.

Andre Armando, Food Controller of Cuba, who arrived in New York yesterday on the Prince de Sastrustegui from Barcelona, said that he had been making an extensive study of the food situation in Europe and would make an official visit to Washington before going home to Cuba. He declared that if the United States as well as his own country would adopt the policy of some of the foreign Governments of jailing the food profiteers for long terms of years, prices would rapidly return to normal.

NEWARK TO CONTINUE SALES.

Gillen Declares City Will Regulate Prices of Foods.

City food sales will continue in Newark even after the army supplies are exhausted. This was announced yesterday by Mayor Gillen in speaking of plans to maintain the city as the middleman between producers and housekeepers.

"Contrary to some statements, we are not going to end food sales soon," said the Mayor. "On the contrary, we are going to remain in the business as long as we can do any good in cutting down the high cost of living.

"We shall continue to sell army food at reduced prices. I will call a meeting of retail merchants to confer on a project to have the city buy direct and sell to them under the supervision of the city. The retailers' profits will be dictated by the city and will be as low as is consistent with their labor and expenses."

MGR. GIBBONS APPROVES.

Commends Wilson and Palmer for Campaign Against Profiteers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—Cardinal Gibbons in an interview today strongly condemned profiteering. The Cardinal, on his way to Baltimore from Spring Lake, where he spent two weeks, visited Archbishop Dougherty at the cathedral for a few hours.

"I would like to speak in commendation of Attorney General Palmer and the Administration in the work of curbing the profiteers," said the Cardinal. "It is necessary that the high cost of living be reduced, especially when it is shown that one of the reasons for it is that certain persons are obtaining excess profits at the expense of the consumer.

"Profiteering can be justified by nothing, and it should be stopped immediately by as drastic measures as are at the command of the Government."

SEIZE PHILADELPHIA HOARDS

First Federal Raid Nets 14,450 Lbs. of Chicken; 52 Calves.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—The Government made its first seizure of food in this city today. As the result of hoarding charges 14,450 pounds of chickens and 52 dressed calves, alleged to have been in cold storage more than a year, were confiscated. The food was the property of two Chicago firms, the chickens belonged to W. G. Howard & Co. and the calves to Morris & Co.

The warrants, which were issued by the United States District Court, charge conspiracy to keep the food off the market until there had been an increase in prices. The court is asked to penalize the owners by allowing the Government to sell the chickens and calves to the public, after a decree has been entered that the owners have forfeited their rights because of alleged violations of the Lever law.

French Organize to Combat Prices.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Citizens and housewives of the Montmartre district have formed the "Consumers League of France" to combat the high cost of foodstuffs. It is the intention of the founders to enlarge the league into the National Buyers' Federation, with members throughout the country.

Indict California Fruit Agent.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 20.—George W. McWilliams, local representative of the California Fruit Growers' Association, was indicted today, charged with violation of the Valentine Anti-Trust law, by the Special County Grand Jury investigating alleged food price profiteering in Cleveland. This is the eleventh indictment on a similar charge returned by the jury.

Suit to Bar Big Packers.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20.—Perpetual injunction against the five leading packers, which would bar them from doing business in this State, is sought in a petition filed in Chancery Court today by the State Revenue Agent. The court is asked to put a statutory penalty of $5,000 a day on the packers.

Orders Seized Sugar Released.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 20.—Release of the 4,500,000 pounds of sugar seized by Federal officials at a Boston warehouse yesterday was ordered by Judge Norton of the United States District Court at a hearing on a libel today. The statement that the sugar was intended for export and that no effort had been made to conceal it was accepted by the United States attorney.

NEWS WRITERS DROP STRIKE

Fifteen Return to Omaha Bee When Five Desert Them.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 20.—Fifteen reporters and desk men employed on The Omaha Bee who struck yesterday for an increase of 35 per cent. in wages, today voted to return to work after five of their number had deserted and obtained their former positions. The writers' union, which the strikers formed, will be continued and will become affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Victor Rosewater, editor and publisher of The Bee, refused the wage demand but offered to discuss the question of salary with individuals. In returning to work today the men made individual requests for an increase, and this will be considered later by Mr. Rosewater.

POLES BREAK OFF PARLEY IN BERLIN

Call for Indefinite Recess of Conference in Berlin Over Frontier Plebiscite.

ACTION COMPLETE SURPRISE

Fighting Going On in Upper Silesia the Reason Given—May Resume Negotiations Later.

BERLIN, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.)—The decision of the Polish delegates to break off negotiations which have been going on during the last few days in Berlin relative to a plebiscite over the ultimate frontier between Germany and Poland came in the nature of a complete surprise to the German officials assigned to be present at the deliberations, as well as the Government, which evidently was wholly unprepared for such action.

While no official statement has been issued, it is asserted in competent quarters that the rupture in the proceedings was unexpected, especially as a day had been set for a specific discussion of the Upper Silesian situation.

While this matter was not really a part of the subject upon which the two Governments are deliberating, the Germans promptly consented to meet the Poles' request, particularly as it was indorsed by the chief of the French mission, General Dupont, who was present at the opening of today's session and who was apparently uninformed as to the decision of the Poles temporarily to postpone the negotiations.

General Dupont was quite as much surprised as the Germans appeared to be when the Poles called for an indefinite recess, in view of the fighting now going on in Upper Silesia, and the absence in consequence of the "atmosphere" required for calm deliberation.

The question of the resumption of the conference will be taken up later between the Polish delegates and Under-Secretary von Haniel.

In addition to the general protest that the German troops are violating the Polish frontier, the delegation now in Berlin will make a formal charge to the effect that a German airplane on Aug. 18 crossed the Polish boundary and bombarded Sosnovice, near Kattowitz, wounding several policemen and civilians.

General Dupont was the only representative of the Entente at the session today.

Dispatches printed in the newspapers today indicate that the insurrection in Upper Silesia continues to spread in the industrial section. The German Government, which is temporarily in Weimar, on the other hand, has issued a statement declaring that the military authorities are masters of the situation.

Rybnik, southeast of Breslau, according to reports, has been the scene of several clashes between Government troops and insurgents, who are attempting to force an entry into the city. In the Beuthen and Kattowitz districts rioting is increasing, the reports say, while the Gleiwitz district is calm. The rural population, it is added, is being victimized by bands of robbers, which include Spartacide agitators as well as Polish insurgents.

Reinforcements for the Government troops are being assigned to the work of clearing out insurgent strongholds, arresting rioters, searching buildings for arms, and placing military guards at mines threatened by mobs.

Schomburg and Karf, it is reported, have been occupied by the troops who are moving on Orzegow, Godullsshuette, and Lipins-Kamin. Their losses are said to have been seven dead and seventeen wounded. A large number of rioters are reported to have been arrested in the vicinity of Beuthen, which is just west of the old Polish border.

Only 408 cars of coal arrived here from Upped Silesia Tuesday. On Aug. 13, 3,385 cars were received.

WARSAW, Aug. 19.—The strike movement in Upper Silesia, which is said to have been developed largely by Spartacide propaganda on one side and the provocative attitude of German authorities on the other, now is reported in dispatches received here to have assumed somewhat the character of a genuine insurrection.

Fierce engagements are said to have been fought between the insurgents and German troops, resulting in the proclamation of martial law by the Germans. Poles are said to have obtained control of a number of important places, including Kattowitz, Boiskow, Jedlin, Cichow, and other points.

Workmen in certain districts are reported to have been compelled to resume their places in factories under threats of court-martial.

Japanese arrive with passports as merchants, students and the like, and once here they remain, send for picture brides, and produce families, the children being citizens of the United States by right and birth."

As set forth in the bill, the section imposing the two-year suspension reads:

"That (except as otherwise provided in this act) from fifteen days after the passage of this act, and until the expiration of two years next after its passage, the immigration of aliens to the United States is prohibited, and during such time it shall not be lawful for any alien to come from any foreign port or place, or, having so come, to remain within the United States."

Exemptions during the two years are granted to Government officials, their families and staffs; travelers, ministers, religious teachers, missionaries, lawyers, physicians, artists, chemists, and other professional men and women from the foregoing prohibition, but they will not be allowed to remain in this country for longer than six months.

Students who come here to American colleges and universities would have to leave the country when their courses were at an end. This part of the bill, too, has a Japanese application, for Representative Johnson believes that many of the students from the Far East remain in this country under that guise.

A radical extension of the passport system is embodied in the bill, for immigrants desiring to come here must submit their passports to the American Consular authorities or diplomatic mission in their native country for examination, giving a complete personal history, the purpose of emigrating to the United States, the place where they intend to reside, and other information that may be requested.

Exemption of skilled labor, as provided in the Immigration act of Feb. 5, 1917, is continued in the proposed bill. It provides that:

"Skilled labor, if otherwise admissible, may be imported, if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country; and the question of the necessity of importing such skilled labor in any particular instance may be determined by the Secretary of Labor upon application of any person interested."

There is a requirement in the bill by which prospective permanent residents must agree that they understand the penalty of deportation rests upon them if they do not take the proper steps toward citizenship. After entrance it is provided that any alien may be taken into custody and deported if he fails to make a declaration of intention to become a citizen before the expiration of one year after he becomes entitled to make such declaration, or if he fails to become a citizen within one year from the date he is first entitled to become a citizen.

Restriction on Re-entry.

No alien who leaves the country before becoming a citizen would be allowed to re-enter unless before leaving he had secured a permit from the Secretary of Labor, whose decision also in deportation cases would be final. Deportation of aliens who withdrew first papers to escape the draft, and who left the country to avoid military service, is also provided for in the bill. It is specifically stated that these persons shall never be allowed to enter the United States again.

Explaining the new passport provision, Representative Johnson said:

"Immigrants now come to the United States freely, and are required to pass mental and physical tests. Many classes such as lawyers, teachers, students, merchants and actors are exempted from these tests. These are the classes that it is proposed to have come in with limited passports. That is to say, they are to come as visitors and not as prospective citizens. If one comes as a prospective citizen, he must so state and agree in writing to place himself under probation, reporting at stated intervals. This is all there is to it. Visitors are welcome. We have room for desirable immigrants, but must have a guarantee as to their continued desirability and their willingness to acquire Americanism; not only American citizenship, but all that the word implies.

"It is proposed in the new bill that aliens who, under present laws, are eligible to citizenship may come to the United States without passports, provided they state in writing their belief that they intend to reside in the United States and become citizens thereof. They must agree in writing to register at least once a year with county clerks and immigration officials. Failure to register is made a cause for deportation. Failure to take out first papers at the end of two years' residence, and before the expiration of three years' residence, is also made a cause for deportation.

"If the intending citizen takes out his papers he must then remain in the United States five additional years for final citizenship, but it is proposed to give him liberal time allowance for his knowledge of the elements of the American plan of Government, and for proficiency in the English language. Failure to acquire citizenship after a total lapse of eight years is also made a cause for deportation.

"The committee hopes to provide a plan by which citizens of contiguous territory, Canada and Mexico, may visit the United States by the holding of cards issued annually."

Chairman Johnson believes that immigration commissioners should not be continued as Presidential appointees, but should receive appointment through the Civil Service and be directly under the Commissioner General of Immigration.

JAIL 118 ALLEGED REDS.

Federal Agents Raid Meeting at Youngstown—Capture Red Flags.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 20.—One hundred and eighteen Russians, alleged Bolsheviki, were held in the county jail today as the result of a raid by Federal officials last night on an alleged Bolshevist meeting in East Youngstown.

The officers broke up the meeting in the midst of a speech said to have been highly radical. An automobile load of red flags and Bolshevist propaganda was seized. The men are held temporarily upon suspicion. Federal officials said charges of sedition would be filed against them later.

PLAY LEADERS BEGIN WORK.

Volunteers Get First Instruction and Are Assigned to Duty.

Thirty young women answered the call for play leaders sent out by Robert Lawrence, founder and head of the Neighborhood Service, which has organized games and community singing at the different social centres of the city, and met at the West Side Branch of the Y. W. C. A., Tenth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, last night, where they took their first lesson in playing mass games. Miss Mabelle Ford, Director of Physical Education, Y. W. C. A., who was in charge of the work, led them in a variety of games.

Mr. Lawrence made an address at the close of the games and told the volunteer play leaders how much they were needed. He told of the disappointment of the children when the Summer School girls who have been acting as play leaders left.

"There is an average of 3,000 people who gather at these neighborhood meetings," he told them. "It is a big work, spreading from city to city, and we need a thousand play leaders right here in New York. It is work that brings great happiness to the people, and it will bring much happiness to you."

The new play leaders will begin their work at Grace Chapel, in East Thirteenth Street, this evening. The next play leaders' class will be at the same place on Friday night, Sept. 5.

GERMAN BISHOP OUT.

Surrenders Strasbourg Post to Frenchman Named by Poincare.

STRASBOURG, Aug. 20.—Pope Benedict, it is announced, has accepted the resignation of the German Bishop of Strasbourg, and has appointed him Archbishop "in partibus."

Last April President Poincaré appointed Mgr. Ruch, Bishop of Nancy, to be Bishop of Strasboug in succession to the German Bishop there. The appointment of a new Bishop for Strasbourg and also one for Metz caused an animated debate in the French Chamber of Deputies on July 2. In answering charges that the Government had engaged in unofficial diplomacy with the Vatican, Foreign Minister Pichon explained that the policy of the Government contemplated the upholding of the Corcordat in Alsace and Lorraine. He said the Bishops were appointed because the clergy had asked that French Bishops succeed the German incumbents.

Austrians Raid Newspapers.

So indignant were the citizens of Wiener-Neustadt, a city of about 30,000 population, 13 miles south of Vienna, at a charge made by the Wiener Neustadtische Zeitung and the Weiner Neustadtische Nachrichten to the effect that the Mayor and several Socialist leadrs had been engaged in smuggling arms into the hands of agents of Bolshevist Hungary that they stormed the newspapers' officers, drove out the editors, and threw their ledgers and other property into the street, reports the Berner Tagwacht in a message dated Vienna, July 30.

TO RELIEVE UNREST

Governor Urged to Call a Conference of Workers and Employers.

The calling by Governor Smith of a State-wide conference of employers, workers, and citizens to relieve the present industrial unrest is urged by the New York State Reconstruction Commission, through its chairman, Abram I. Elkus, in a letter addressed yesterday to the Governor.

"Production," says the letter, "is an essential to any reconstruction of our internal affairs. An industrial policy which will keep the wheels of industry moving and at the same time insure justice to the worker and fairness to the employer, and especially consideration to the State and its people is the need of the hour. If production is maintained the present high cost of living will be speedily diminished.

"To this end we recommend the immediate calling by you of a Statewide conference of representative employers, workers, and public-spirited men and women for the purpose of preparing a program of action, which will endeavor to prevent strikes if possible and to bring about arbitration and mediation of differences and disputes between employer and employe by men and women who are willing to serve the State voluntarily."

Displays of Tailor-mades ready for service are held on the second floor, while those designed to special order are shown in the fourth floor salon.

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN $85,000 ROBBERY

Police Capture Man Two Years After Valuable Jewels Were Stolen from F. H. Allen.

MISSING BUTLER PURSUED

Theft Occurred While Mrs. Allen Was Attending Reception to Gen. Joffre at Newburgh.

A man describing himself as Arthur Gerard, a chemist, living at a house on Seventh Avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets, was arrested yesterday as he got off a municipal ferry boat at St. George, Staten Island, and is held at Police Headquarters on a charge of grand larceny. The police say that the man is the missing butler of Frederick H. Allen of Bolton Priory, Pelham Manor, N. Y., and he is being held in connection with the $85,000 robbery that was committed at Mr. Allen's house in the Spring of 1917.

It was while Mr. Allen was in Washington and Mrs. Allen had accompanied General Joffre and the French Military Commission to Newburgh on May 11, 1917, that some one stole thousands of dollars worth of jeewiry which had been left locked in a drawer in the dresser in her room. At the time it was reported that the robbery totaled more than $200,000, but later some of the gems first thought to have been taken were discovered in a safe deposit box.

One of the butlers employed by the Allens disappeared just after the robbery was committed, and the police began a hunt for him which lasted until last night when, they believe, they got their man.

Among the valuables lost, which were reported to the police of various cities in the United States at the time, were two pearl necklaces valued at $20,000, a diamond ring worth $10,000, and a brooch, pearl and diamond also valued at $10,000. The robber opened the drawer with a skeleton key.

Mr. Allen is a personal friend of President Poincaré of France and during the war was accorded a privilege which few civilians in an unofficial position enjoyed, being permitted in 1916 to visit a sector at the front as a spectator during a bombardment which was in preparation for a grand assault on the German lines. Mrs. Allen comes of a French family.

Mr. Allen is a member of the law firm of Allen & Cammann of 63 Wall Street. He is a member of the Knickerbocker, Union, City, New York Athletic, and Westchester Country Clubs.

Gerard will be taken to Pelham Manor today to be identified by members of the household.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

EX-JUSTICES GIVE AID TO NEWBURGER

Nominating Committee of Six Is Formed to Conduct Campaign for Him and Judge Smith.

WILL RESIST "BOSS" RULE

Supporters Organize Independent Nonpartisan Judiciary Committee in Their Behalf.

A nominating committee of six ex-Justice of the Supreme Court was formed yesterday to advance the candidacies of Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger and City Court Judge Richard H. Smith for re-election. Renomination to both men was refused by Tammany Hall, and they will run on the Republican ticket and as independents. The committee will conduct the campaigns.

The six ex-Justices are George L. Ingraham, former Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division; Francis M. Scott, who held the same office; Samuel Seabury, former Judge of the Court of Appeals; David Leventritt, John W. Goff, and Clarence J. Shearn. All, like Justice Newburger and Judge Smith, are organization Democrats, except Mr. Shearn, who is a Hearst Democrat. All were nominated once or more by Tammany Hall.

The object of the committee, it was explained, is to make a fight for the independence of the courts from political domination.

Plan Meeting of Independents.

After a conference with William D. Guthrie, Chairman of the combined committees of the Bar, County Clerk William F. Schneider, head of the Cleveland Democracy, announced that he had arranged for a meeting of independent Democrats at the Hotel Astor, about Aug. 27. The exact date will be announced later.

At the proposed conference, Mr. Schneider said, independent Democrats from every Assembly District in Manhattan and the Bronx will be represented. Justice Newburger, he said, is expected back in the city by that time.

Leaders of both parties have begun their primary campaign in earnest. There will be contests in every borough. In Brooklyn, a determined fight is to be made by insurgent Democrats to dethrone John J. McCooey, the Democratic leader.

Drawings for position on the ballot resulted in Representative F. H. La Guardia winning first place. His opponent for the Republican nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen, William M. Bennett, will have second place. Mr. Bennett sent a letter yesterday to the sixty-three Republican district leaders, asking the privilege of addressing enrolled Republicans in their district clubhouses. He expressed a desire to have Representative La Guardia attend. Mr. Bennett said he would make his campaign principally on the traction situation.

Warren I. Lee, former assistant counsel to the Public Service Commission, has been substituted for Wilfred Earl Youker as designee for the Republican nomination to the Assembly from the Twenty-first Brooklyn district. Charles A. Griffiths withdrew from the contest for the Republican nomination for Municipal Court Justice in the Fifth District, leaving the field to Alexander U. Zincke and Abram Ellenbogen, with Mark Ellison as an insurgent candidate. Charles H. Hayes was substituted for Anthony P. Ludden as candidate for one of the Municipal Court nominations in the Third Manhattan District.

John N. Knoesel is the designee for the nomination for Alderman in the Eighteenth Manhattan District, left vacant by the death of Alderman Gilmore.

Complete Ticket Against McCooey.

Insurgent Democrats who are fighting "Boss" McCooey in Brooklyn have named James E. Finnegan to run for Surrogate on an independent ticket against Brig. Gen. George A. Wingate, the McCooey candidate.

The insurgents have a complete ticket, except for County Clerk. Edward T. O'Loughlin, former Register of Kings County and former leader of the Hearst organization in Brooklyn, was willing to make the race, but unwilling to ask Hearst's consent. His failure to run is regarded as indicating that the Hearst-McCooey alliance remains unbroken.

Two nominating petitions were protested in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Cropsey. James Gallon opposed the petition of James A. Kelly, candidate for the nomination for Alderman from the Forty-third District, on the ground that many of its signatures were defective. Alexander Bassett, recent Alderman and candidate for renomination from the Forty-eighth Brooklyn District, protested the petition of Joseph De Grace of 307 Graham Avenue, an actor. Bassett said the signatures on the petition were invalid, as they had not been witnessed.

Republicans of Queens have established an unusual precedent by filling all vancancies on their primary tickets with Democrats. For the nomination for Municipal Judge in the First District they have named Andrew J. Caplis of Long Island City; for Alderman of the Long Island City district, Thomas J. Loughlin; for Assemblyman in the Third District, Edward J. Nearing of East Elmhurst, and for Assemblyman in the Sixth District, Assemblyman Henry Baum of Union Course.

Two lawyers, next door neighbors, are opposing candidates for Justice of the Municipal Court in the Second District, comprising the Second and Fourth Wards, Staten Island. The election will be held in the garage of one candidate, Justice Arnold B. J. Wedemeyer, the incumbent. Opposing him is John G. Clark. Both are Democrats.

ROYAL TREASURE SEIZED?

Berlin Believes 20,000,000 Marks Belonged to Ex-Crown Princess.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says it is believed that the 20,000,000 marks, an attempt to smuggle which from Berlin into Switzerland was frustrated by policemen in airplanes, belonged to the former Crown Princess. A highly placed person has been arrested in connection with the attempt to take the money from the country.

Two women police agents recently learned, the dispatch continues, that a person of high social position was drawing on the Berlin banks and endeavoring to get as much money in gold as possible.

The Chief of Police of Berlin, accompanied by Nuremberg police officials, has arrived by airplane at Weimar to report the case to President Ebert.

A Berlin dispatch of Aug 18 quoted the afternoon newspapers as saying that policemen in airplanes overtook an express train on which 20,000,000 marks were being smuggled out of the country and arrested the smugglers at Nuremberg.

To Our 42,000 Tire Dealers

Don't wait for the "word of mouth" advertising, or for our own announcements, to reach all of your customers about the Special Molded 3½-in. Firestone Tire.

Every user of 3½-in. sizes ought to know that he can now get the tire of standard quality at prices he has paid for the "bargain" or "shopping" kind.

The heavy buying season is on. Spread this news in your own locality over your name. The car owner will appreciate your effort to give him this advantage promptly.

Put a sign in your window reading as follows only, of course, as big as you can make it. That will bring them in and give you a chance to explain why Tires and Tubes of Firestone quality can be sold at these prices.

Firestone 3½-inch
Special Molded Tire
At These Prices

	Non-Skid	Gray Tube
30 x 3½	$$18^{00}$	$$3^{25}$
32 x 3½	$$21^{00}$	$$3^{70}$

6,000 Miles

Be sure to present the following reasons, because some car owners can hardly believe that tires and tubes of first quality are offered this low:

Firestone financial resources, $73,000,000;

Firestone organization in Singapore selecting rubber and shipping direct, insuring first quality and saving 3c a pound;

Firestone directing fabric mill to insure highest grade and uniform supply at lowest possible cost;

A $7,000,000 factory separate from the main plant, devoted exclusively to 3½-inch tires and tubes;

A daily capacity of 16,000 tires and 20,000 tubes, all 3½-in. size;

Over 90% of the organization own stock in the Company.

The Firestone system of branch houses cuts the cost of sales and service. The car owner gets the benefit in more mileage for less money.

You know what all these things mean in terms of manufacturing economy. Tell them to car owners now more than ever.

They will understand quick enough that these low prices are possible only because Firestone is years ahead of ordinary practice in organizing, in manufacturing ability and equipment.

Spread the news in your locality. Your customers deserve this tire. You deserve their patronage. It's just one more big chapter in the Firestone program of most miles per dollar.

ROOT DREW LAST WILL OF CARNEGIE

Report That Testament Ironmaster Himself Framed Will Be Filed Is Denied.

MADE AFTER DAUGHTER WED

New Document Prepared Only Recently—$50,000,000 Estimate Also Called False.

The publication yesterday of an account of the alleged will of Andrew Carnegie, which is to be filed in this city next week by Elihu Root, brought forth the statement from an authoritative source last night that the will described had been made some years ago by Mr. Carnegie and represented a long period of careful study on his part before he signed it, but that it has since been superseded by a later will drawn by Mr. Root, with the actual making of which Mr. Carnegie had little to do.

The decision of Mr. Carnegie to revoke the will on which he put so much thought and individual study and to substitute for it a document which merely carries out his ideas but represents the actual labor of Mr. Root, is said to have been due in part to the marriage of his daughter, Margaret, who was his chief heir in the first will, to Roswell Miller. At the time of her marriage Mrs. Miller's father made a generous financial provision for her and for this reason the late Mr. Carnegie found advisable in some respects to modify his final testament.

While the will to which Mr. Carnegie devoted so much of his individual effort was an elaborate document, amounting to more than 4,000 words, the will drawn by Mr. Root, which will distribute the remaining portion of the fortune is not more than half as long, and could be read by the average person in ten minutes. In both documents Mr. Carnegie makes moderate bequests to a score or more of personal friends and associates, and in each the Home Trust Company of Hoboken is named as trustee and executor.

Own Company is Trustee.

The Home Trust Company is Mr. Carnegie's own organization, of which Robert A. Franks of 135 East Sixty-sixth Street, long his business adviser, and Treasurer of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, is the President. Reciprocal legislation in New York and New Jersey, in which a trust company in either State is permitted to act as trustee or executor of an estate in the other, permits the Home Trust Company to qualify here as if it were a New York institution.

It was learned last night that the will which would have been offered for probate had not circumstances induced Mr. Carnegie to request Mr. Root to draft an entirely new document rather than to express his wishes through the addition of codicils to the original document, was drawn entirely in the offices of the Home Trust Company with the trust company's attorneys assisting the philanthropist in putting it into legal shape. Mr. Carnegie devoted many days in a room on the top floor of the trust company's Hoboken building in putting the will into the exact form desired, and when he had finished he felt entirely satisfied. When he decided to make such extensive changes that he felt they could not be expressed properly in a codicil his health would not permit him to do the same amount of labor again, and he turned the entire matter to Mr. Root.

In addition to administering the Carnegie estate, the Home Trust Company will continue to act as disburser to nearly 500 persons who for years have relied almost wholly on monthly checks from Mr. Carnegie for their living. All of these had been known personally by Mr. Carnegie in the early days of his success, and some even dated to the telegraph operator phase of his career, when he manipulated a key on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

To Continue Pensions.

These monthly payments run from $25 to $50 and will be continued during the lifetime of each pensioner from a fund for that purpose established by Mr. Carnegie outside of his will. One of the pensioners is said to be a Scotchwoman born in a high station in life who was abandoned by her husband and left penniless when he absconded some years ago from a position of trust.

A statement that Mr. Carnegie aided hundreds of persons who lost money in the collapse of the Carnegie Trust Company because of their mistaken belief that he was connected with it, was declared last night to be untrue by a person acquainted with the facts. The fact that he did advance a large sum of money in an effort to save the trust company from failure was known at the time, but he has not pensioned any of the depositors who got back only 44 per cent. in the liquidation of the institution.

The statement, based on alleged information from a member of Mr. Carnegie's family, that he paid an income tax on a fortune of only $50,000,000 and that the sum to be disbursed in his will is not larger, was declared last night to be untrue. Mr. Carnegie did not dispose of several times that sum before his death.

The Home Trust Company was organized entirely to care for Mr. Carnegie's financial transactions and he and his organizations were practically the only customers. It was incorporated in New Jersey in 1901 with $100,000 capital, and in response to his wishes has made no statements except those required by law. The officers other than Mr. Franks as President are: George W. King, Secretary; Alexander King, Treasurer, and T. Morris Carnegie, Andrew Carnegie, 2d, James C. Greenway, and Harry Whitfield, Trustees.

The last statement showed total resources of $208,128, made up as follows: Stocks and bonds, $177,500; due from banks, $5,628, and United States certificates of deposit, $25,000. The liabilities included $100,000 capital stock and $108,068 undivided profits.

SANTOS-DUMONT RETURNS.

Urges Developing of Aerial Transport in Southern Republics.

Alberto Santos-Dumont, Brazilian inventor and aeronaut, who built and piloted ten dirigibles and several aeroplanes from 1898 to 1910, who arrived in New York Tuesday night from Brazil, is the guest of the Aero Club of America. Mr. Santos-Dumont returned to the United States from South and Central America, where he had been traveling as Chairman of the Committee on Pan American Aeronautics of the Aero Club of America, studying the possibilities of aerial transportation.

He is very enthusiastic concerning the market for American aircraft in these republics. In an interview yesterday Mr. Santos-Dumont said:

"Only one who is familiar with the economic and sociologic problems of the South and Central American nations can realize what aerial transportation will mean to them, and can understand the tremendous commercial and sociologic development and change to follow as the result of the application of aircraft to transportation. As has been pointed out, building railroads would cost between $100,000 and $200,000 per mile, and years of time, and the subsequent cost of upkeep and maintenance would far exceed the prospective income from countries of such sparse population. On the other hand, the sum of $100,000 would establish an aerial line across a distance of at least 500 miles or more, where rivers or lakes can be used as landing places for aeroplanes.

"While the Pan American aeronautic movement is youthful, having been conceived by Henry Woodhouse in 1911, and evolved by him and the other energetic and farseeing men, who are responsible for so many important aeronautic movements, it is advancing in gigantic strides."

PEACE MOVE FAILS IN ACTORS' STRIKE

was fighting the author's battle as well as his own."

The sole hope for an early settlement of the strike now seems to rest again with Governor Smith, who will return to New York tomorrow. There is believed to be little chance of averting a war of exhaustion.

Both the actors and the managers were making plans yesterday to carry on the fight indefinitely. With the announcement that the first two performances of the actors' show at the Lexington Theatre had brought receipts of $10,000, the association gave out that its program for next week will include Sam Bernard, the Dolly Sisters, Harry Fox, Frank Fay, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore, the Duncan Sisters, the Watson Sisters, Carl Randall, Charlotte Greenwood, Doyle and Dixon, and a group of "Follies" chorus girls.

In addition to calling out stagehands and musicians at the Winter Garden, one actor, Harry Green, walked out of the Playhouse, where "At 9:45" is the attraction. His rôle was a minor one and he was easily replaced.

Many Street Meetings.

There were many street meetings last night, and the crowd in front of headquarters in Forty-fifth Street was larger and more enthusiastic than usual. When announcement of the closing of the Chicago theatres was made a yell arose which could be heard for blocks.

Frank Gillmore, in a statement having to do with announcements of the managers in regard to the Hebrew Actors' Union and the effect of the closed theatre on the Hebrew stage, said the cases were not analogous, as the Hebrew union worked in a definite and small community, and the Actors' Equity, representing activities all over the United States and Canada, could not operate on similar policies.

"The Actors' Equity Association is not holding out for a closed shop," he said. "Neither does it purpose so doing, but it would call attention to the very remarkably organized closed shop that the Managers' Association is indulging in at the present time."

Marc Klaw, Sam H. Harris, and Arthur Hopkins announced that they had resigned from the Lambs as a result of the attitude toward the strike taken by a majority of the members of that club. Six managers have resigned from the Lambs since the strike began, the others being David Belasco, Morris Gest, and George M. Cohan.

Mr. Harris, brought before Magistrate Sweetser on a charge of assaulting Harry Lambert, an actor, was discharged.

Several hundred actors and actresses who are not members of the Equity Association will meet tomorrow at the Hotel Biltmore for the purpose of organizing. Louis Mann is active in this move, and the meeting will be attended by Lowell Sherman, Janet Beecher, Olive Wyndham, and others.

CHICAGO THEATRES CLOSED.

Expect Strike to Spread to All Branches of Stage Profession.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Acting upon instructions said to have come from New York, stage hands and musicians today joined the forces of the striking actors, and as a result every downtown theatre in Chicago, with one exception, was dark tonight. The audiences that were to be stood outside in dismay.

Every legitimate theatre closed except the Olympic. This continued, and 10 per cent. of the proceeds was dedicated to the Equity Association's cause. Vaudeville and moving picture houses continued, but threats were made of closing them tomorrow. All else was forlorn, except the points on the Rialto where the actors and actresses paused. There it was gay. There were music, cheers for the strike, and a parade with a fleet of taxis.

During the day Hazel Dawn of the "Up in Mabel's Room" company, and Tom Wise of the "Cappy Ricks" company were examined before Master in Chancery Seisler in the injunction proceedings against a number of actors at the Woods Theatre. George Parsons, of "A Prince There Was" company, will appear before the Master tomorrow to explain his resignation from the Equity Association following the strike.

Ed N. Nockels tonight declared all actors, burlesque, vaudeville, and film, would close unless the producing managers consent to the actors' demands. Dick Green, International Vice President of the stage hands and film operators, agreed that this was possible since authority over those unions now rests with the Actors' Equity.

AMERICANS EXCEL AT FASHION SHOW

Fabrics Made in This Country and Models Designed Here at Shelton Looms Exhibit.

THROW OFF PARIS YOKE

More Than 100 Types of Gowns Displayed—Will Be Shorter Than Last Season.

American made fabrics and American designed models were features of the Fashion Show of the Shelton Looms, which opened yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton. The independence of the manufacturer in promoting original creations regardless of the trend of fashion as echoed from Paris, was even more pronounced at this affair than at preceding fashion shows, and demonstrated clearly that American designers permanently have turned dictators to women of fashion.

Interest was a bit divided between the creations and the fabrics. The fabrics have been developed so quietly that much surprise was expressed. There were rich velvets that once were considered the sole product of France; heavy plushes, which seem to be great favorites this season; elaborate brocades and trimmings—all produced in the United States.

More than a hundred models of various types and for every occasion were shown, and a score of prizes were offered for the best displays. An effort has been made to suit the gown to the individual rather than fashion women to a certain prevailing style. While the gowns were not so long as they were last season, they were still of conservative length, particularly for street and afternoon wear.

Evening gowns varied considerably in length, running from the extremely decollette to modest high, straight cut effects. A few French models were introduced, but they did not begin to meet with the approval shown for the "Made in America" designs.

"At last we are able to declare our handiwork, and do not have to pretend our things are made in France to have them recognized," said Eddie De May, chief designer for the Shelton Looms. "The American woman has learned that she has a style of her own, which is better understood by American designers. It was difficult to convince her of this when wonderful creations were shown that purported to come from Paris, but since the war closed that country to us, and the charming gowns did not cease to come, the lady of fashion does not question their origin.

"The American women have never been able to wear French clothes successfully. The French clothes are entirely out of keeping with the trim figure and small feet of the American women, and even the French designers have realized this and have fashioned their models accordingly for the American trade. They have made a thorough study of the clothes desired by the women of this country, and have cleverly combined these with their own ideas. Recently they have not been able to do this, and that is why we are so far apart in our ideas, and why we hear that the buyers in Paris are refusing to accept the models being offered them."

An evening wrap of black chiffon velvet received the greatest attention at the show. The velvet was combined with a yoke and sleeves of metal cloth, and was lined with vivid red. There was an afternoon frock of beige with an Eton jacket with a cape in the back, and a full tunic skirt which was trimmed with Russian silver muskrat.

The old-fashioned plush was one of the most interesting features among the materials, and was shown in many attractive top coats, some of them so fine that at a distance they could well be mistaken for seal. The prize winner among the suits was a wine-colored cloth with a straight, narrow, ankle-length skirt, worn with a coat that buttoned up to the throat. It had a panel front and back and rippled panniers.

Red Cross Workers Return After Active Duty in Macedonia.

Nine Red Cross workers, who had been detailed for service in Greece, were among the passengers who arrived here yesterday on the Italian Line steamer Argentina from Mediterranean ports. Lieutenant Williaim B. Reardon of 11 East Eighty-seventh Street, who was in command of the workers, said that he had been supervisor of the district of Musthenia, Macedonia, which embraced twenty-three villages. He said the Red Cross had fed and clothed 50,000 Greeks who had fled from the oppression of the Bulgarians. During an epidemic of typhus several Red Cross workers died of the disease, which they contracted in caring for the sick, he said.

ABSOLVES ACCUSED ENSIGN

Commander Grady Testifies He Promoted Erlanger for His Merit.

Testimony exonerating Ensign Harry Erlanger of 790 Riverside Drive, charged with conspiring with Lieutenant B. J. Ellert to obtain a commission through bribery, was given by Commander John Grady at the continuation yesterday of the court martial trial of Erlanger in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. He asserted that he alone had been responsible for the promotion of the defendant from the rank of Chief Yeoman to Ensign and that Lieutenant Ellert had had no part in the elevation. The witness said he was convinced after watching the work of Erlanger that the man was entitled to a higher rank.

"Do you consider that the promotion of the accused was due entirely to your efforts?"

"Absolutely," was the reply.

Cross-examined by Major Muir, the Judge Advocate, Commander Grady repeated his testimony that his wife had received no presents from Erlanger.

The defense introduced as character witnesses Max Radt, Vice President of the Irving Trust Company, who said he had known the accused twenty years; former Deputy Attorney General Leonard Overmeyer and Max Schwartz, a cotton goods merchant, who said at one time he had given Erlanger $30,000 worth of credit. The trial will be continued today.

Castle Secret Wedding Denied.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Vigorous denials were made here tonight by Captain Robert E. Treman and his wife, formerly Irene Castle, of a report published in New York City that they had been secretly married May 21, 1918, at Pickens, S. C., this date being about a year previous to their marriage a few months ago in the Church of the Transfiguration in New York. Captain and Mrs. Treman termed the published statement "as a willful and wickedly malicious misrepresentation," and denied ever being in Pickens, S. C.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 20.—The Rev. Frank A. Juhan, rector of Christ Episcopal Church here, said today that "under the circumstances" he could not discuss the report that he had married Irene Castle and Captain Robert E. Treman at Pickens, S. C., May 21, 1918. He said he was honor bound not to make any statement, but that the State records could be consulted.

The office of the Clerk of Courts at Pickens was closed today by reason of the illness of the Judge of Probate.

our settled policy and in fulfillment of the altered requirements of the country.

"Especially in view of the determination in Europe and of rapid changes in the affairs of the world, we consider it highly desirable that every effort should be made for the advancement of the national resources and the well-being of the people. We call upon all the public functionaries concerned to exercise their best endeavors in obedience to our wishes in order that a benign rule may be assured to Korea and that the people, diligent and happy in attending to their respective vocations, may enjoy the blessings of peace and contribute to the growing prosperity of the country."

Hara's Statement on New Order.

Premier Hara, in his statement, says:

"Nearly ten years have elapsed since Korea was incorporated into the Empire of Japan, and, in view of significant changes which have meanwhile presented themselves in the conditions of the country a plan of various reforms in the Korean administrative system has for some time been engaging my attention. Unfortunately, in March last, disturbances broke out in several parts of the peninsula which for obvious reasons have retarded the introduction of the contemplated reforms. It will not be necessary at this moment to file a full account of those disturbances.

"It is much to be regretted that, as is generally the case under the circumstances, they gave birth to wild and baseless representations, some of which even went so far as to make new stories out of old incidents antedating the annexation. Being determined to be perfectly just and fair in the conduct of affairs connected with the recent uprisings the Government will admit no excuse for any culprit whether he be a Government official or a private citizen. Take the Suigen occurrence, for instance. There the Government has caused the responsible officers who had already been subjected to administrative censure to be brought for trial before a court-martial.

"In proceeding to the reorganization of the system of the Governor General of Korea, I regret to announce the resignation of Marshal Hasegawa, Governor General, and of Yamagata, Director General of Administration, both of whom have rendered eminent service to the State at the important posts which they have occupied for several years. To fill the vacancies caused by their retirement, Baron Saito and Mr. Midzuno have now been appointed respectively as Governor General and Director General of Administration. Baron Saito, who had long distinguished himself as a Minister of State, requires no introduction for his high personality and powers of statesmanship.

"Nor is there any need to refer to the high esteem in which Mr. Midzuno is held at home and abroad as a public servant who has not only filled with credit several important executive posts during a period of more than twenty years, but also held a Ministerial portfolio in the late Cabinet. I have no doubt that these two gentlemen will prove equal to the trust placed in them for carrying out the contemplated reforms in Korea in conformity with the expressed wishes of the Government. Korea is united geographically with the main islands of Japan and the two peoples are closely related to each other in race, in manners and customs, and in sentiments.

"No distinction or inequality should be allowed to exist between them as loyal subjects of the same sovereign whether politically, socially, or otherwise. These considerations are understood to have invariably been kept in view in the imperial rescript issued at the time of the annexation, as well as in that which has just been issued. It should be noted that the existing administrative system of Korea is not meant to be of a permanent and unalterable nature, but that it embodies provisional arrangements calculated to meet the passing needs of the transitory period until the final goal is reached.

"In pursuance of this policy the Government are now decided to carry out various reforms in Korea, and it is their fixed determination to forward the progress of the country in order that all differences betwen Korea and Japan proper in matters of education, industry, and of the civil service may finally be altogether obliterated. The Government are, moreover, confidently looking forward to the eventual adoption in Korea of a system of provincial and municipal administration similar to that in operation in Japan proper, so far as circumstances would permit. For a speedy attainment of the objects one naturally cannot rely solely on the force of organ and machinery; a great deal must necessarily depend upon the efforts of Koreans themselves toward their own upliftment.

"I am well aware that the system of gendarmery prevailing in Korea is being made a subject of criticism at home and abroad, but I would call attention to the fact that the institution originated in attempts to meet the exigencies of the situation under the regime of residents general and was never intended to be a permanent arrangement. It is now proposed to have gendarmery replaced by a force of police to be placed under the control of local governors in a manner similar to that which obtains in Japan proper, except in districts where conditions make immediate elimination inadvisable.

"It is not possible at this moment to make any further announcement on the details of the contemplated reforms, which it remains for the newly appointed authorities to work out. To sum up, however, it may be stated that Korea and Japan proper, forming equally integral parts of the same empire, no distinction should in principle be made between them and that it is the ultimate purpose of the Japanese government in due course to treat Korea as in all respects on the same footing with Japan proper. In this wise may be attained the only true object of the annexation and on these lines may be expected the permanent advance and enlightenment of the Koreans. I trust that the above brief observations may assist the public at home and abroad to arrive at a full comprehension of the true intentions and policy of the Japanese government."

DOESN'T SATISFY KOREANS.

"President" Says Reforms Only Stimulate Desire for Independence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Dr. Syngman Rhee, President of the "Republic of Korea," whose headquarters is now in Washington, issued a long statement tonight on the Japanese announcements on the future of Korea. Dr. Rhee says in part:

"Speaking for Korea, the announcement means nothing. It is simply substituting other individuals for those previously domineering over Korea. It does not mean that Korea will have any real reform.

"This cable means only that they have added another Governor to Korea, a civil Government, subordinate to the military governor. It certainl does not mean the withdrawal of the military government in Korea and the establishment of a civil one, which Japan promised. The appointment of a civil governor is merely one of those face-saving diplomatic schemes of Japan. To those unsuspecting, well-meaning people of the West it may sound like a fulfillment of Japan's promise for a civil government in military rule.

"Any reform in Korea at this time will stimulate rather than quiet down the spirit of independence on the part of Koreans, and, therefore, the Japanese Government cannot substitute for military rule a civil one.

"Koreans will not be satisfied with anything less than complete independence. They do not want reforms either military or civil emanating from Japanese. They want the right to govern themselves, in their own way, by a representative form of government. They want self-determination. They are entirely competent to do this. They governed themselves over 4,000 years and to their own satisfaction. They do not want to be the instrument and tool of some other nation to further its ambition and desire to be a world power. Their country is their own. They want to govern it and in their own way.

"Japan came into Korea by trick and subterfuge, first claiming a great friendship for the Korean people and loudly proclaiming that Korea was an independent nation; then step by step Japan obtained control, all the time striving to make the Korean people helpless. Now she dominates Korea, not by reason of mental or moral superiority, but by brute force and intimidation."

SOLDIERS PAID DEBTS.

Salvation Army Leader Says Credit to Them Was Justified.

Preparing to close out a business venture that was successfully done in violation of many of the accepted rules of the business world Colonel William S. Barker, in charge of the overseas activities of the Salvation Army, has returned to New York. Yesterday at the headquarters of the Army in West Fourteenth Street he told of some of the things that had been accomplished in France and in occupied Germany. Contrary to sound business principles the Salvation Army overseas did a large credit business and without looking up the reputation for honesty of those who came and asked that goods be "put on the slate." Now when the time has come for casting up accounts the Colonel said that the Army's faith in human nature had been justified and that in a total business of 25,000,000 francs it would break even. And the Army kept no books.

Some of those who were trusted no doubt neglected to pay, but these were exceptional cases, and this loss was more than made up by the generosity of the men who had found the Salvation Army a friend in time of dire need. If a man wanted credit until next pay day he usually went to the Salvation Army, and he found it. On one occasion the organization advanced supplies to a unit of considerable size because its pay had not caught up with it. The men paid up when the time came.

Sick-Lists are Unprofitable to the Man Who Pays Salaries

Right now, in your office, thousands of dangerous disease germs are probably assailing your health and that of your associates — attempting to find a susceptible spot through which to enter and cause serious contagious illness.

A sick-list is not only unpleasant, but it is unprofitable to the man who pays salaries. The sick-list represents lowered or lost efficiency.

Prevent a big sick-list in your establishment. Eliminate the menace of the deadly disease germ. Take precautions now. Avoid regrets later.

DELIVERANCE
THE SCREEN'S SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT

"The Story Grips and Holds"
New York Times

The Morning Telegraph says: "'Deliverance' is a motion picture with a vital, powerful and undeniable message. It crowds into the background all present subjects of riots, strikes, syndicalism and Bolshevism, and presents one of the most remarkable stories ever told on screen, stage, or in fiction. And, best of all, the story, a history of Helen Keller's struggle to find the light in her utter darkness, is a true one."

LYRIC THEATRE

The New York American says: "The big-souled accomplishment of gentle Helen Keller over the obstacles, the wondrous faith and the bigness of mentality that she has developed and then given forth with the hand of largess—these are the lessons that 'Deliverance' strikingly sets forth through the medium of the screen. The picture bears none of the earmarks of preachment. It tells a poignant truth of the power of the mental forces."

GREAT BRITAIN'S FUTURE.

LLOYD GEORGE's Victory speech has the British virtue of plain speaking. Nothing is glossed over, and there are no quack remedies for an outlook little short of desperate. "We are "spending more, earning less; con-"suming more, producing less. We "are borrowing ourselves to death. "We cannot exist without recovering "and maintaining our international "trade." Thus the domestic and external outlook is dark. British workers show no disposition to sacrifice anything of the gains they made in the war. They want shorter hours and higher pay, too, like our own wage earners, and with the like result of reducing production when increase of production is the sole salvation. Thirty thousand more coal miners are producing 87,000,000 fewer tons of coal than before the war, and the price has risen from ten shillings to twenty-six. We are selling both coal and iron in England's markets, and even in England itself. Our wages are higher per man, but our efficiency is so much greater that our unit of cost is lower. The outlook for England's foreign trade is worse, for it depends on others than England, and their conditions are deplorable.

It seems like a deadlock, and yet it is necessary to remember that English common sense and talent for compromise habitually rescues England from disaster at the eleventh hour. The Premier shows his common sense by rejecting the proposal for nationalizing industry on the basis of experience with the railways and the mines. He shows his talent for compromise by accepting the policy of State purchase of mineral rights, (coal,) which was unanimously recommended, but rejects the proposals on which the Sankey Commission was itself divided. Thus the owners' royalties will be lifted from the price of coal marketed, and the inefficiency of Government operation will be avoided.

Probably he could do no less, but it will be necessary to finance the purchase of the owners' rights, the burden being shifted, not removed altogether. The preservation of the principle of protection of property rights is a good example, particularly for other countries where confiscation is recommended as a remedy for poverty. Every communistic experiment has failed through deterioration of the property which belongs to everybody and nobody. Land titles are sacred for the sake of society, not for the profit of the owners. LLOYD GEORGE would never have gone so far as he did if it were not proved that the coal industry has been mismanaged in England, and has gone from bad to worse during the threat of nationalization. There is nothing basically wrong with the industry. There is coal enough, and it can be profitably mined, but the taxes have taken most of the profits recently, and probably would do so in the future. Probably the owners will be glad to retire, and the bargain will be less costly to the State than it would have been earlier or later.

Always the Premier recurs to production, attributing England's depression to labor's indulgences. He saw signs of slacking, and production had declined in close relation to the shortening of hours of work. "It was a "dangerous and fatal fallacy that the "less men worked the more work "there would be for others, and it "is highly important for those hav-"ing influence with workers to do "their utmost to explode this fal-"lacy." Not without reason do British critics find this a sombre speech. But what would they? Only a falsifier could alter the appearance of the facts, and the facts would remain. The stubbornness with which the fight has been begun in the direction indicated by the Premier is shown by the Board of Trade report for the half year ended with June. Imports are still rising, it is true, but exports are leaping upward. For June imports increased 21 per cent., exports 43 per cent., and re-exports 465 per cent. England is the premier world trader, and in the depths of her depression the old temper is plainly to be seen. It is a bold resolve not to borrow more money and to let exchange find its level. There are more signs of stout-heartedness than of surrender to the situation. Does it seem bold to say that British industry and commerce will revive more speedily than expected? England possesses now the industrial capacity which had to be invented and supplied after the Napoleonic wars. That capacity has never been tested, and is great beyond calculation. If labor will heed the advice the Premier gives it, and if capital will co-operate—neither is so difficult if only attempted with good-will—England will yet look back to something like its war production as its normal peace production.

DAYLIGHT SAVING LOST.

Another instance of the too common system of government by minority is seen in the passage by Congress over the President's veto of the bill repealing the Daylight Saving act. "I cannot understand," said Senator CALDER, whose steady services to daylight saving are appreciated by the mass of the people, "how the people allowed it to be defeated." The people did not allow it to be defeated. A great hue and cry was made about the opposition of the farmers—that is to say, some of the farmers. Preposterous reasons were given for this opposition. The poor farmer couldn't get up an hour earlier in the day to do his work. The matutinal dew was too heavy for him to speed the plow. His children, apparently of another race than other people's children, couldn't be packed off to school an hour earlier. His habits of work and his clocks could not be changed. And so on, an infinite deal of nothing.

Some force of conservatism must be allowed for, but the farmers of today are exactly as wide awake and as quick to take advantage of improvement as the rest of us. A small, determined, active minority has worked upon the timidity of Senators and Representatives, made them believe that the farmers were a unit, or nearly so, against daylight saving; and, with their eyes fixed upon the next election, enough of them have been persuaded into passing the repeal bill over the President's veto.

If daylight saving were submitted to the popular vote, it would be carried by a great majority. Even supposing that the farmers were solidly opposed to it, the Congressmen who voted to override the veto have simply favored a class against the majority, have approved a measure virtually of class government.

"Daylight saving, during the two years it has been in effect," says Senator CALDER, "has saved countless "millions of dollars, and has given "the workers many extra hours of "pleasure. It has been a blessing to "us, but the majority of our people "have not recognized it." The majority of the people have recognized it. It is Congress that has not recognized the majority. Mr. WILSON's two vetoes recognized and represented that majority. Next Summer the country will miss what has been a source of health, recreation, outdoor work and play to many millions of people, and has saved many millions of money. The friends of daylight saving will not put up meekly with this defeat. Work should begin at once to collect, consolidate, and strengthen public opinion in favor of this sensible and salutary practice. The daylight saving law should be restored to the statute books. It can be, and it will be, if the majority will make even a tenth the effort that has been made by a clever and loud minority.

GERMANY'S ASSENT NECESSARY.

There is no comfort for the obstructionists in the point Senator FALL attempted to make at the White House conference, that, since Germany is not a member of the League, amendments to the covenant would not have to be submitted for her acceptance. Senator PITTMAN explained that the Treaty already signed by Germany provides that the members of the League may amend its constitution. It is true that in Article 26 provision is made that amendments will take effect "when "ratified by members of the League "whose representatives compose the "Council and by a majority of the "members of the League whose rep-"resentatives compose the Assem-"bly." The amendments contemplated in that provision are those to be made after the League has been formed, after the Council and Assembly have been constituted. Article 26 cannot have any bearing upon amendments of the covenant made by the United States Senate, for as yet there is no League, no Council, no Assembly. The covenant is a part of the Treaty, and any amendment of its provision would necessarily be an amendment of the Treaty. We may be very sure that Germany would take that view of it.

But the amendment most talked about now, the one upon which the obstructionists have concentrated energies, relates to the Shantung provisions, which they would strike out altogether. Those provisions are contained in Articles 156, 157, and 158 of the Treaty, and have nothing to do with the League. Striking out those articles would effect a material change in the compact, a change made by one of the parties after another party had signed it; obviously, the other party, in this case Germany, would have to be approached with a request that she accept the amendment.

Germany might give her assent, for in the Shantung articles she has agreed to renounce in favor of Japan everything she had acquired and held in the Province of Shantung, including the archives, registers, plans, deeds, and documents of every kind. The proposed amendment would make no difference to China, who has so many kind friends in the Senate. It would leave Japan in possession indefinitely, released from her promise to return Kiao-Chau to China, but she would hold all her rights by the title of military conquest unconfirmed by the Peace Treaty. The objection, and it is a very grave one, is that we do not want to go to Germany "hat in hand" to request her consent to anything, and because asking her assent to any amendment would be a direct invitation to her to present amendments of her own, an opportunity of which she would eagerly avail herself.

Senators BORAH and JOHNSON have united in a statement of their views concerning the changes necessary to be made in the Treaty. For whom do these Senators speak? We do not see how they can be regarded as spokesmen of the Republican Party, for it is understood that Senator BORAH declared that if the Treaty is ratified as it stands he will leave the party, while it has been intimated that Senator JOHNSON has secured support for his Presidential aspirations in quarters altogether outside the Republican organization. Manifestly, the acceptance of Senator BORAH and Senator JOHNSON as leaders by the Republicans of the Senate would be dangerous, since their political interests seem to be very much detached from those of the Republican Party.

THE VICTORIOUS DEFEATED.

In the statement made on Aug. 2 by the heads of the four Brotherhoods of railroad employés demanding Federal management of railroads, they said that > Labor faces a persistently serious situation due to the cost of living and the impossibility of wages keeping pace with the depreciation of money. No fundamental changes are being advanced to save workers from a continual defeat in the economic struggle of life. The railroad employés are in no mood to brook the return of the lines to their former control, since all the plans suggested for this settlement of the problems leave labor essentially where it has stood and where it is determined not to stand.

The figures laid before the House of Representatives by the General Manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad show that in thirteen States freight engineers now get $4,704 a year, passenger engineers $4,520, freight conductors $3,768, passenger conductors $3,696. The Governor of the great State of Texas gets $4,000 a year, the Governor of Nebraska $2,500, the Governors of Tennessee, Wyoming, Delaware, and Arizona $4,000, the Governors of Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, and Vermont $3,000. These, it may be said, are political offices and honors not usually held by men who have no other resources than their official salaries. Then compare the pay of these prosperous railway men with the average income of clergymen, physicians, lawyers, college professors. These, as a rule, have had a long and expensive education, collegiate and professional. They have a certain social convention to maintain. They have to have books. Some of them have to have expensive professional apparatus. The great majority of them would regard the pay of these gentlemen who complain of continual defeat in the economic struggle as a Fortunatus prosperity, as a golden, impossible dream.

We will leave it to the school teachers and the clergymen to agree, if they can, which is the worst-paid profession. It is believed that the average clerical income is $600 a year. Passing poor on this, the clergyman is called upon to help all sorts of people, "causes," and organizations. He has to educate his children. He has to try to keep a respectable and not too threadbare appearance before the world. The average school principal, let alone the hundreds of thousans of men and women who have charge of elementary education, the most vital of all, who perform in the State a function as momentous as any, must deem the pay of these railroad men an unattainable fortune. To most of them it would mean not only comfort but, in the course of a few years, competence.

The public hears a great deal about the fat fees of a few famous lawyers and physicians. It forgets the modest, the narrow income of the majority in these professions. We have seen the average income of members of these two professions reckoned at $2,000 a year. By what long, irregular hours that sum is earned in the case of country doctors most people in cities have scant perception.

These railway conductors and engineers, shrewd, intelligent, and forehanded men, must feel that to call them continually defeated in the economic struggle of life is a misrepresentation of fact. Their labor is well rewarded. They are victorious in the economic struggle. As an argument for administration of the railroads by the Government and the employés, these gentlemen, a self-respecting and respected class, cannot regard themselves as convincing.

THE NEGLECT OF AVIATION.

When he appeared before the House Rules Committee on Tuesday Brig. Gen. WILLIAM MITCHELL, Director of Military Aeronautics, had the courage to say that "high War Department officials" failed "to realize the im-"portance of aviation as a fighting "branch of the service." The result is that "we now have only seventeen "skeleton squadrons and 950 actual "fliers." Altogether there are but 1,200 aviation officers left in the army, a number that is too small, according to General MITCHELL, "to maintain an expedition to Mexico." Two of our fliers came to grief the other day forty miles south of the Rio Grande, fell into the hands of bandits, and had to be ransomed. It is not a cheerful reflection that these American officers mistook the Conchos River for the Rio Grande and lost their bearings so completely that, when a mishap compelled them to come down, they thought that they had landed in American territory near Candelaria, whereas the spot was in the vicinity of Falomir, Chihuahua. The unfortunate adventure emphasizes General MITCHELL's statement that our air service has deteriorated from the "war-time standards of efficiency." There must be something wrong with the present organization when aviators do not know whether they are scouting over Mexico or Texas. Perhaps the training was at fault in this case, and it may be that troops on the border are not well supplied with maps of the country. At any rate, the army judgment upon the wanderings of two of its aviators in the "enemy's country," for such Chihuahua proved to be, could not have been lenient.

It was a humiliation to the service to have its lost flying men kidnapped by a casual bandit leader with one arm and one leg and held for ransom while the War Department was deciding whether it would authorize Colonel LANGHORNE to pay over the sum demanded to a go-between and afterward hunt down the ragged Villista—or was the fellow a Constitutionalist? It is to be hoped that this mishap of the air service will make some impression upon those "high War Department officials" who have been cool toward its expansion and improvement. "We have lost many of our best officers," says General MITCHELL, "on account of "the pathetic attitude toward the de-"velopment and maintenance of avia-"tion." Pathetic was euphemistic. Army officers who served in France and know the value of the flying corps would be inclined to use a different adjective.

Secretary BAKER seems to be lukewarm when the maintenance of the air service on a plane of efficiency is urged. Senator NEW reminded him at a committee hearing the other day that of the 11,000 planes finally built for the front in France 90 per cent. had been struck off the service list, and he asked the Secretary if he thought that in the event of another war emergency the delay in supplying the army with machines would be repeated. Mr. BAKER was positive that nothing of the kind would occur. The industry, said he confidently, would survive. There will be dissent by those who know how it is running to seed for lack of interest by the War and Navy Departments. Congress should heed the American mission that came back from a study of aviation in Great Britain and France with a recommendation that the air service of the army and navy should not be neglected. It is certainly in great danger of neglect when the Director of Military Aeronautics can say that the number of aviation officers on the army list is "too small even to maintain an expedition to Mexico." That is so startling a statement that it should dissipate official complacency.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

After-the-War Labor and Production.

In the House of Representatives Mr. RIDDICK of Montana raises the cry that we are permitting a foreign invasion of manufactured articles "which will soon cause a slowing down of American industry." Few things could be more welcome than a resumption of normal trade with France, England, and Italy. In no other way can the wastage of war be repaired. Unfortunately our added labor costs, together with the decline in foreign exchange, are an ever increasing obstacle. Only two countries in the industrial world seem really in a way to put their house in order, Japan and Germany.

The wartime advances of Japan in wealth and in productive capacity have long been known. Her labor costs are only a fraction of ours. And now it appears that Germany is to be reckoned with also. Her Minister of Finance informs a TIMES correspondent that press reports of strikes and general depression have been greatly exaggerated. Labor unrest, which is rampant here as never before, has there been largely subdued. Herr REICHBERG considers Germany "at least a year ahead" of her former enemies in getting back to normal production. The pessimism of the German press was no doubt colored by regard for the terms of the peace; and Herr REICHBERG's optimism, likewise, may have taken a rosier tint in view of the fact that he contemplates placing an American loan. Yet there seems no doubt that of all nations engaged in the war, with the exception of Japan, Germany has been speediest and most businesslike in getting to work again.

Now comes an added evidence of her intelligence and sense of order. The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung proposes to minimize the danger of strikes on public utilities by a system of compulsory labor service. Instead of military training, every able-bodied German is to give a portion of his youth to learning a trade which he may be called upon to practice at the need of the State. In the event of a destructive strike the Government could call out its citizenry so that the work of the nation could proceed until differences were adjusted. Naturally there would be few or no strikes; and it is equally certain that under republican institutions arbitration would have to be fairly conducted. The plan is surprisingly similar to that which WILLIAM JAMES outlined in his luminous essay, "A Moral Substitute for War."

Art and the Producing Manager.

The spectre of the closed shop still hangs over the actors' strike, in spite of the fact that leading members of the Equity Association have now announced that it is no part of their demand. That the managers still fear a restriction of their freedom is evident in a statement made by ARTHUR HOPKINS.

In the Hebrew Actors' Union and the Hebrew Chorus Union, which are conducted on the principle of the closed shop, "no new members are admitted until death makes a vacancy." In the Chorus Union, Mr. HOPKINS says, there are twelve members who are over forty, including one who is fifty-seven years old and a grandmother. Yet the walking delegates insist that all shall receive employment as chorus girls. Is it strange that the theatres of the east side are losing their patrons to Broadway? The Actors' Union seems to have a little more heart for the managers. When a walking delegate insisted, during four consecutive years, that a minor actress in whom he was interested have leading parts, he was expelled.

The evil in such cases is obvious, indeed grotesque, and there is little likelihood that the Equity Association would be capable of it, whatever its power. Yet the manager faces subtler matters of judgment which are scarcely less vital. Despite certain claims of the actors, the casting and rehearsing of a play may be, and should be, as difficult and delicate a work of art as acting or painting a picture. A single error in casting, even in a minor rôle, may ruin an entire production. The members of the Equity Association should lose no opportunity to make it manifest that they regard the producing of plays as an art equal to their own art, and that, as they insist on being free, so they are unalterably resolved to respect the freedom of the producing manager.

Naturalized Citizens and Their Names.

Provisions in the new British Aliens bill with regard to name changes indicate that the national tolerance is finding limitations. That foreigners who become subjects should wish to change difficult and outlandish names is wholly natural, and nothing could tend more strongly toward their assimilation into the national life than to permit them to do so. But a difficulty arose in the fact that upon becoming Anglicized the foreigner showed a marked preference for historic family names.

In a certain Oxford college there were once two STANLEYS, a very popular upper class man who was born with quite another name and a timid freshman chiefly distinguished as a member of an ancient family. They were known as Old STANLEY and Young STANLEY. Young STANLEY bore his comparative obscurity in philosophic calm until an unsuspecting American referred to Old STANLEY as his big brother. Under the new law the altered name must be "the equivalent in English of the former name," and it is provided that old family names shall not be used without the consent of the family.

All this is added in a supplementary clause. The main purpose of the bill is sterner stuff. Persons who are still aliens are forbidden to change the name by which they were known on Aug. 4, 1914.

GEORGE E. MILES.

A Tribute to His Sterling Character from an Associate of Many Years.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the brief obituary sketch of George E. Miles given in THE TIMES yesterday there were a few omissions to which, perhaps, attention may be called.

His work as a reporter on The New York Tribune began about half a century ago, and he early made his mark as a clever and capable writer as well as a conscientious man. While the Tweed Ring was in power Mr. Miles was a law reporter, and his testimony helped materially in bringing about the impeachment and removal of corrupt Judges. In the Presidential campaign of 1872 Mr. Miles accompanied Horace Greeley on his memorable speaking tour through the country and wrote the reports, which were regarded as models of their kind. He was aided in this by his marvelous ability as a stenographer, in which he had few equals.

He never was put to his best in this direction, but in tests he was able to take over 225 words a minute for long periods without being at all pushed. If necesary he could have exceeded this by fifty words or more. His script, too, was the envy of other skilled shorthand men, every character being properly formed and looking like copperplate.

Aside from his skill, Mr. Miles was noted as a man of absolute probity and loyalty, qualities that recommended him to the late Collis P. Huntington and his successor, Henry E. Huntington, with whose enterprises he had been connected for thirty-five years.

As one of those associated with him forty-seven years ago, I deem it a privilege to bear witness to the esteem in which he was held by those who knew him.

The Times Conference Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—THE NEW YORK TIMES was the only newspaper on sale in Washington this morning that carried the complete stenographic report of the conference at the White House yesterday. At 11 o'clock this morning it was impossible to obtain a copy of the paper on many of the news stands. On most of them the paper was sold out an hour earlier. Many of the larger news dealers said they could have disposed of hundreds of additional copies.

DIRECTED IMMIGRATION.

Restriction of Numbers Less Important Than Proper Handling Here.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with a great deal of interest your editorial "Selective Immigration," as well a number of other articles dealing with the same subject. It occurs to me—and as a man who has been engaged in immigration business for years I am speaking of experience—that it is not so much a question of who comes over here than one of what becomes of the immigrant after he has landed.

I have seen thousands of emigrants in Liverpool who had just enough money in their possession to be admitted to this country. From Southeastern Europe, from Russia and Asia Minor they had congregated there, only to be poured into some Eastern American city, to fill the slums and to be exploited in a more or less shameless manner by their own countrymen. Those people, whose standard of living is very considerably below our own, tend to drag down their American neighbors rather than to be lifted up by them.

They continue their old mode of living, and the wages they earn in some sweatshop therefore appears fabulous to them, especially if figured out in their own currency. They are unfair competitors to the American workingman, they remain foreign, and deep down in their hearts they have the one desire to save up a few thousand dollars and go "home."

All that and a good many other things are true, and they are undesirable features of immigration; but cannot they be eliminated here much better than in Europe? Would restricted immigration really eliminate the undesirable features, and how far could selective immigration be carried without causing resentment in other countries?

We need immigration, the more the better, but it must be the right kind of immigration. The right kind of an immigrant is the one who will work for his living, who will become a constructive element in the community and not resist assimilation. However, as long as we encourage the formation of foreign colonies, as long as we leave the immigrant to his fate once he has set foot on American soil, we shall force him to seek advice and assistance with his countrymen, and he will naturally adopt their ways and be as they are.

What we need is not reduced or selected immigration, but carefully guided immigration. What we need is not men—and women—who are handed over to their exploiters as soon as they land here, but people who are taught how to make use of the liberty and equal opportunity afforded them in this country for the betterment of their conditions of living.

Through the distribution of literature on board ship, through lectures during the voyage, and through Government officers who do not consider a newcomer a despised foreigner but a future citizen, we could direct the stream of immigration where it could do most good to our country as well as to the immigrants themselves.

Why should we turn away people we need because we are not using them right? Would it not be the better plan to amend our ways of dealing with them, thus turning a menace into a productive power?

SOME ADVICE FOR MAE.

Don't Envy Rockefeller, and Stay Off the Pickles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I answer the letter of Miss Mae Zalinsky of Aug. 11, and if possible put a higher and broader view of life into her line of thought?

So far as Mr. John D. Rockefeller is concerned, he has a right to what he has as well as Miss Zalinsky, myself or any one else from the wealthiest to the poorest. The struggle for money is not always the highest ambition in life nor are the wealthiest people always the happiest.

Miss Zalinsky would fare better for a higher position, better wages and would write a more educated, refined letter if she used to better advantage what she has at hand and thereby in future come nearer to her ambition of being financially equal to Mr. J. D. Rockefeller.

The lunch for 55 cents would have served her better if it had consisted of a plate of hot vegetable soup, bread and butter, and some fruit or custard; then the brain would have been supplied with fuel, and the eighty-three wrong numbers would not have been on record.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller is doing a splendid work in many ways we know of and in very many ways we know not of; so are many other wealthy men. They all had their struggles as well as you and I, but because they became financially successful is no reason why we should envy them.
F. L. M.
East Orange, N. J., Aug. 17, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue we noted a communication from a young woman, Mae Zalinsky, whose views were to us unpleasant, and we wish to help her, if possible, to a more healthy point of view. In the first place, she should eat something besides pickles and sundaes for lunch; those articles are enough to make one bilious, and to look at life wrongly. A good soup, with bread and butter, a glass of milk, would make a different person, and life would soon be rose color and worth living.

We should never for a moment envy Rockefeller, or any one who has been more successful than ourselves. Just blame ourselves, no one else. We could be just as lucky if we were willing to work and save. Never envy any one, admire their success, take a lesson from them, and do your best; if you do not arrive, it is your fault, and you have not their brains, or you would succeed.
SARAH ISHAM COIT.
Roxbury, Conn., Aug. 18, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the Aug. 12 issue of THE TIMES appeared an editorial headed "Rewarding the Bulgarians," which not only myself, who have spent twenty years in the Balkans, but any other American knowing Balkan conditions from first-hand sources, would read with great apprehension. I would wish to put myself on record, therefore, in protesting against your statement that "Bulgaria sided with the Germans in expectation of sharing the spoils." Nothing of the kind! Bulgarian policy was open and straightforward, since Bulgaria exists, namely, to go with any one who helps redeem the Alsace-Lorraines of the Balkans, the unhappy Bulgarian Dobrudja and Macedonia, stolen from her at Bucharest in 1913.

Now, a word pertaining to atrocities—I rather would take the word of the American Consul to Bulgaria, Mr. Dominic I. Murphy of Washington, D. C., and of Miss Mary M. Haskell of Oberlin, Ohio, and other Americans residing in Bulgaria during the war. They all claim that all this atrocity talk is camouflage, propaganda stuff, and the usual bundle of Hellenic mendacity of the most preposterous kind.

TREATY COBWEBS BRUSHED AWAY.

Washington Observer Sees Ratification Nearer as Result of Give-and-Take Conference at White House.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—After twenty-four hours in which to think it over, Washington has a distinct impression that the cause of ratification has taken a bound forward as the result of yesterday's meeting at the White House. It is true, perhaps, that the opinion of no single Senator was materially changed by the actual information and arguments, but in some way that it may not be easy definitely to analyze or describe the difficulty of agreement has become much less formidable. It seems impossible that a President and opposing Senators who have sat around a table together, and for long hours discussed the pending questions without a trace of bad temper, can fail finally to reach a common ground on a matter of such urgency.

The hostile Senators must have gone to the White House expecting to unearth something that would forward their purpose of defeating ratification. Nothing of the kind developed. It transpired that in the course of the three hours and a half of the freest possible interchange there was nothing that indicated serious fault or weakness in the President's position. Everything that he said was precisely what was to be expected from a President of the United States who had for months been engaged in an earnest and intelligent effort in a foreign capital to bring a great war to an end, and, under circumstances of peculiar difficulty, to find a common ground upon which the warring nations could meet for the purpose of preventing such wars in the future. Many of the suspicions and fears that had been entertained needed neither information nor argument to dispel them. They vanished as soon as they appeared in the open of frank and informal discussion.

The change that has taken place in the treaty situation is one of temper. And it is probable that the change was not all on one side in this respect. It was not alone the Capitol that moved toward the White House. The White House also moved toward the Capitol. The President never before met his opponents in just the spirit he did yesterday. His method was the same that he used in Europe, and he found the same response from the Senators that he had evoked by the same smiling patience and courtesy from the diplomats of the Old World. On an occasion of this sort where he is on his own ground the President is at his best. No one is more generous than he when the matter is one of grace. He was in a sense the host. He met the members of the Senate committee with geniality and charm. Regardless of previous prejudices, every Senator was under the influence of sincerity and fine courtesy—a good combination out of which to make personal magnetism.

Considered merely as an intellectual and physical performance, the President's three hours and a half under examination was something to appeal to fair antagonists. Such a matching of minds on a great subject will be historical. The great strain was naturally on the President. He bore it without a trace of irritation. Several times Senators lost patience with a colleague, but he never. There was not a suggestion of Presidential arrogance, or of superiority of knowledge because of the great opportunity the President had had in his negotiation of the treaty. In the very thick of the battle of wits he won the regard and to some extent the sympathy of those who were fighting him. The courtesy of the conference room was followed by the camaraderie of the luncheon table. Serious subjects were dismissed and gayety prevailed. Every guest went away with a full stomach and the feeling that he had enjoyed himself immensely. Even Lodge's temperature mounted to one degree below freezing.

Some Senators thought it necessary to announce that the White House conference did not change their views on the treaty. The important fact remains, however, that in so far as opposition arose from personal feeling or prejudice of any kind there has been a softening since yesterday's conference. At least one prominent Republican Senator expressed himself quite freely in that sense in his talk with his colleagues. And undoubtedly the President must have modified his own preconceptions as to some of the personalities hitherto counted unfriendly.

Aside from these personal and psychological considerations, it is probable that there have been important results that will show themselves in the future handling of the treaty in the Senate. The President several times made the point in Europe that where opposing minds were brought together all experienced some change through the contact. No man goes into a conference where views are exchanged with good-will and good manners and comes out with precisely the same opinions. He may not be convinced altogether, he may not be even moved from his original position, but his opinions undergo a certain change in quality.

Amid the protestations of standing fast to convictions, despite the President's arguments and information from opposing Senators, one feels that nevertheless the fight against the treaty will not be resumed in the same spirit of bitterness. There are thus these two distinct gains for the President. He is on better personal terms with the Senators who are against him, and they take a less suspicious and broader view of his activities at Paris and his championship of the treaty and League.

In this estimate of the effect of the White House meeting on the ratification of the treaty no account has been taken of its influence on public opinion and the reflex effect on the Senate. Practically every Democrat I have talked with is confident that the Senate will shortly be hearing from the people in a way that cannot be ignored. At no previous time could it be so confidently predicted that the treaty and covenant will be ratified with interpretative resolutions on the side.

M'CORMICK FEARS NEW IMPERIALISM

Says Treaty Will Uphold and Further the Aggressions of Britain, France, and Japan.

CITES THEIR GRIP ON ASIA

Points to Egypt and Korea—Pleads for Unborn Americans Who May Be Dragged Into Future Wars.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Senator Medill McCormick, the junior Senator from Illinois, paid his respects to the Treaty of Peace this afternoon, when he delivered a speech in the Senate in which he denounced the imperialistic ambitions, as he termed them, of Great Britain, France and Japan, ambitions which, he added, he does not believe are indorsed by the great masses of the British and French people. It is, he said, a new imperialism which threatens future wars and that "British liberalism and British labor have joined their protests to that of Japan's against the terms of the treaty."

"For thirty-five years," said the Senator from Illinois, "Japan's foreign policy in Asia has been one of consistent perfidy and aggression. I defy any one to make candid answer to that charge. The wonderful material advance of Japan has been contemporaneous with that of modern Prussia and in close imitation of it. Japanese society, the Japanese constitution, the Japanese junkerdom, the Japanese monarchy, the Japanese Army—all have been molded on Prussian lines. The diplomacy of Japan has been patterned after that of Frederick the Great in its disregard of truth, solemn pledges and human rights. If any one doubts this, let him review his own memory of Japan's relations with China and Korea, her secret and newly discovered violation of the pledges exchanged with the Government of the United States."

Alludes to Conquest of Korea.

Senator McCormick next alluded to the Japanese conquest in 1894 of Korea and the subsequent activities of the Japanese in that country, after which he cited the economic rivalry between Russia and Japan which led to the Russo-Japanese war of fifteen years ago.

"It was not until 1907," said Mr. McCormick, "that the protectorate over Korea was at last proclaimed. In the following year Marquis Ito categorically declared that Japan had no intention of annexing Korea. Two years later—fifteen years after Japan had fought China to assure Korean independence—in 1910, there were published to the world the abdication of the Korean Emperor and the annexation of Korea to Japan.

"It may be said in extenuation of Japan's perfidious aggression upon Korea that she only followed the example of Great Britain, which went to war with China in order to force her to permit the importation of opium, and, as an additional reward of victory, wrung from her the cession of HongKong. It may be said that in Korea Japan did only that which France had done in Indo-China, and that subsequently she mended her ways. But not so. During the course of the great war Japan twice broke her solemn undertaking with the United States, and, in deliberate, secret violation of her other international engagements, sought to reduce China to the state of vassalage in which Britain holds Egypt and into which she is drawing Persia."

The Senator next read what he termed was a chronology which involves France and Britain as well as Germany and Russia in the complicity of aggression against China. The Root-Takahira agreement of 1908, said Mr. McCormick, was pacific, unmilitary, and unselfish in its terms, but, he added, as soon as Europe was securely locked in the death grapple, and Kiao-Chau was in Japanese hands, the imperial Japanese Government made the boldest and most perfidious attempt it had ever made upon the sovereignty of China. Had China submitted to all the demands of Japan, he said, the control of China's military forces, her revenue in good measure, her internal administration, would all have passed into the hands of the Japanese.

"This is," said the Senator, "the Japan to whose easily spoken and easily broken word we are asked to confide the rights of millions of Chinamen.

Cites Map as Proof.

"Look at the map. Trace the boundaries and the history of the European invasion of Africa and of Asia and see upon what exemplars Japan has patterned her policy. Mark the confines of the dominions, mark the extending spheres of influence, of France, Britain, and Japan, the three imperial powers remaining. Their dominion now extends over a third of the habitable surface of the globe and under their sway live well-nigh 500,000,000 subject peoples, brought under this governance by force, and by force kept under its subjection. The covenant and the treaty which we are asked to approve 'consolidates the interests,' as the diplomats say, and guarantees the territorial acquisitions of the three principal powers holding dominion over subject peoples—Britain, Japan, and France."

Mr. McCormick next referred to British rule in India, and the treaty recently entered into between Great Britain and Persia, and said that the early years of British occupation of Egypt were "punctuated by promises of evacuation," and he said that the report quoting Under Secretary of State Polk as saying in Paris that he knows nothing of the British-Persian treaty makes it appear "that Mr. Polk's lack of information is as abysmal as that of Mr. Lansing."

"What is true of the British," added Mr. McCormick, "is true of the French and the Japanese dominions over subject peoples. They have brought material prosperity, but no democratic progress. Almost wherever you go among those myriad millions in Asia and Africa you find sedition and rebellion."

Concluding, Senator McCormick said:

"Great powers, political and financial, are eager to frighten and to coerce, to drive Senators to subordinate judgment to expediency. During the long months which followed the armistice was anything done by the Executive to reduce the costs of living for the people of this land? They were heavy in January and February as well as in July and August. No process was invoked and no appeal was made to lighten the burden then, but now we must hasten! In the awakening Orient, in China, and in those conquered empires yonder there are twice as many millions as there were in all the countries of Western Europe which were engaged in the war. If we shirk from our duty, if we consent to the guarantee of territories, if we consent that America shall be an instrument to repress revolution, we shall not only consecrate the wrongs of the past, but by our act we shall pledge America against conscience and judgment to take part in the great war which the treaty promises, our young will go forth to defend cities of which they never heard. In the high places of Asia the snow will cover the frozen bodies of Americans perhaps now unborn, and little girls today playing in the Summer airs about the door yards will mourn their sons, fallen in the desert wastes of Syria and Egypt."

JOFFRE-GALLIENI DISPUTE BARED

War Minister Was Greatly Worried Over Defenses of Verdun and Generalissimo Resented It

FEARED FOR REST OF FRONT

APPEALED TO PRESIDENT

But Premier Briand Supported the "Chantilly Junta," and Gallieni, Mortally Ill, Resigned.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—In a previous dispatch it was shown that responsibility for the Verdun defences rested primarily with General Herr as Commander from August, 1915, when the place became a "fortified region;" secondly, with General Dubail as Commander of the army group wherein Verdun was included, from August to mid-December, and finally, with Joffre as Generalissimo.

At the beginning of March, 1916, every concièrge in Paris would tell with awful secrecy how Herr had been shot by order of a drumhead court-martial for culpable negligence. A fortnight later, when War Minister Gallieni's sudden "illness" gave rise to conjecture, there was a variant of the story to the effect that Herr, disgraced but not executed, had rushed to Paris and demanded a retrial. Gallieni had refused and Herr had stabbed him—or there had been a duel—or anything else that the speaker's imagination and the nervous state of public opinion might suggest.

All this was rubbish. As previously stated, Pétain had exonerated Herr upon inquiry, presumably because the General's official records showed that he drew up a proper scheme of defense and requested the provision of men and material needed to carry it out.

Dubail Insisted Forts Were Useless.

As far as Dubail was concerned it appears that on July 15 he had received at Verdun a delegation from the Chamber Army Committee who had been disturbed by reports reaching Paris about unsatisfactory conditions there. Dubail had emphatically assured them of the uselessness of the forts against the giant German howitzers, and insisted upon the necessity of outer earthwork defences. He is said to have sharply reprimanded General Coutanceau, then commander of the fortress, who was also present, and who ventured to suggest that the Verdun forts could play a valuable part in the defensive organization. Color was given to this report by the fact that when Verdun became a fortified region a month later Coutanceau was replaced by Herr.

But the question of Dubail's responsibility pales into insignificance beside that of Joffre, who definitely assumed it in a letter dated Dec. 18, 1915, written by him to War Minister Gallieni. The circumstances in which this letter was written were as follows:

At the end of November, 1915, Colonel Briant, Deputy of Nancy, who was commanding the outlying position before Verdun—where he fell gallantly covering the retreat in the last week of February—visited Paris, and on Dec. 1 appeared, at his own request, before the Chamber Army Committee to reveal first hand details of the weakness of the defensive organization. The committee thereupon sent a delegation to Verdun whose report fully confirmed Briant's assertions.

The report was communicated by General Pedoya, President of the committee, to Gallieni as Minister of War. The latter wrote Joffre on the subject on Dec. 16, and in reply on the 18th the Generalissimo curtly assumed full responsibility. Both these letters and Gallieni's final reply, dated Dec. 22, were afterward read aloud in the Chamber secret session from June 16 to 22, 1916, by M. Benazet, Deputy of the Indre Department.

Gallieni's First Letter.

Gallieni's first letter runs thus:

"From different sources there are forthcoming accounts of organization deficiencies in the defensive arrangements in particular and notably in the region of Meurthe. The Toul and Verdun trench system would seem to be less complete than on the greater part of the front. This situation, if exact, may have most regrettable consequences. Any break-through by the enemy in these conditions would involve not only your own responsibility, but that of the whole Government.

"The most recent information of this war proves superabundantly that first lines can be forced, but that the resistance of subsequent lines is such as to check the attack, nevertheless, after the initial success. I shall be grateful if you will be so good as to put me in the position to give assurance that on all points of our front the organization of at least two defensive lines has been planned and carried out with all indispensable support in the way of passive obstacles—barged wire, artificial marshes, abattis work, &c."

Joffre replied that regarding Gallieni's inquiry as to alleged defective organization on certain points of the front and the assurance the Minister requested on the subject, he had the honor to inclose a copy of his instructions to army commanders dated Oct. 22 concerning the organization of defense lines. These instructions concerned, in particular, first, improvement of the first and second positions existing on the whole front and each including several trenches; second, organization behind these first and second positions of a system of fortified regions, part of which already were being organized at that time—Oct. 22. Joffre continued:

"The application of my orders on the subject has been constantly supervised by the army commander and group of commanders, who themselves are under the supervision of my staff officers. The defenses of our eastern fortresses have been transformed so as to enter this system of fortified regions where they present several successive lines of defense. All this organization, studied according to the plan of the ensemble, has been in process of realization for a long time and is completed on many points of the front."

The Generalissimo added in the form of a note to the last sentence:

"In this connection the construction of passive obstacles has been and continues to be delayed despite my frequent requests by lack of supplies of barbed wire. I can, nevertheless, give the Government assurance that on the whole front at least two principal defense position are provided with passive obstacles necessary to insure them all the resistance desired."

Joffre also inclosed maps showing, he said, "that in the regions cited in your communication of Dec. 16, there exists three or four defensive positions finished or on the road to completion." He added that measures had been taken to augment the mobility of the reserves and their transportation as rapidly as possible to any point where they might be needed, and he summed up:

Called Fears Unjustified.

"To settle the matter, I consider that nothing justifies the fears you express in the Government's name in your communication of Dec. 16."

In conclusion, the Generalissimo demanded that the reports which had given rise to the Minister's anxiety be communicated to him with the names of their authors. He expressed in the strongest terms his disapproval that officers under his orders, whether Deputies or not, should make this kind of allegation outside the regular hierarchic channels—a practice which he considered highly subversive of his authority and liable to affect the general discipline and morale in a very dangerous degree, adding:

"I refuse to be a party to the continuance of this state of things. I need the full confidence of the Government, and if the Government accords it to me it cannot either encourage or tolerate practices that diminish my commands and moral authority, in default of which I shall be unable to go on bearing its responsibilities."

On the 22d Gallieni replied that he had submitted Joffre's document to the Council of Ministers, who had recorded the Generalissimo's declarations respecting the differences already in existence and counted on him to carry out the work still to be done with all possible diligence. They requested that Joffre should undertake, or get undertaken, all measures of supervision and inspection he thought desirable.

The Minister had not referred Joffre's demand to know the complaints and their authors, but he concluded in an apologetic tone:

"The Government has full confidence in you. Of this it has recently given you outstanding proof by establishing in your person unity of command of the French armies on all fronts. Its desire for information concerning our armies from every viewpoint cannot possibly be regarded as a sign of lack of confidence toward you."

Strong as was Joffre's insistence upon the good condition of Verdun's defence organization and the thoroughness of its supervision, there was proof forthcoming even before the disaster at the end of February that both defences and supervision left much to be desired. In the middle of December Verdun was attached to the central group of armies commanded by de Langle de Cary, who probably did not regard the situation with the same equanimity as Dubail.

At any rate, in consequence of his reports, or perhaps through statements of the inspectors from headquarters, Joffre was led to send his Major General, Castelnau, on a special tour of inspection. The latter reached Verdun on Jan. 20, and was not long in discovering that matters were very far from satisfactory, especially in view of the German preparations—railroad construction, formation of munition dumps, concentration of troops and artillery and general activity—which had been already remarked by the French airmen.

Castelnau enjoined Herr to take such measures as were possible with the means at his disposal, and obtained immediate transfer to Verdun of a regiment of engineers, who set feverishly to work on Feb. 1. But they were hampered by the bad season, and the time before them in which to work before the threatened storm broke was all too short. And before long the patchwork defenses of Verdun crumpled under it like so much paper.

Gallieni was deeply stirred by the disaster, especially in view of Joffre's positive assurance on the subject in his letter of Dec. 18. If the defences were faulty at Verdun, about which there already had been so much discussion, what guarantee was there that other parts of the front were better guarded? In addition Gallieni felt himself personally responsible, for on Jan. 22 he had announced to the Chamber that the system of Parliamentary supervision at the front was henceforth re-established.

Gallieni was a man of the highest character, whose dominant qualities were justice, duty and devotion to country. Convinced by Premier Briand of Joffre's value, when the latter was proposed as a candidate for that supreme command over all the allied forces, which even then was recognized to be a prime condition for victory, he had set aside the ungenerous treatment he had received from Joffre after the Marne, and supported the Generalissimo with the utmost loyalty. He had even put up with certain infringements of his ministerial prerogative on the part of the "Chantilly Junta," as Clemenceau called it, which had crept in during the virtual dictatorship Joffre exercised during the first year of the war. But now, as it appeared to him, his course of action was clear.

Without entering into the question of Joffre's merits as a commander, Verdun had shown that it was impossible for one man to carry on the direction of the French armies in France and everywhere else and conduct—as Joffre was doing—negotiations with the allied staffs for such measure of co-operation as was possible and at the same time properly supervise the activities of the French armies in the western field. Already there had been an abortive attempt to solve the problem by the appointment of Castelnau as Major General to aid Joffre by conducting the field operations, but the Generalissimo had blocked it by employing Castelnau solely as a glorified inspector at Saloniki, Verdun, and so on. It was now considered by Gallieni that the safety of France demanded a solution. Joffre must give up the conduct of the field operations.

Sprang Bombshell on Cabinet.

With this idea, on March 17, he sprang a bombshell upon the Cabinet Council in the shape of a memoir, which later was communicated to a secret session of the Chamber in June by Deputy Maginot of the Marne Department.

The memoir declared that the high command—that is, Joffre or the Chantilly Junta, if one prefers the term—"owing to special circumstances now removed"—doubtless a reference to the Government's withdrawal to Bordeaux before the Marne—irregularly increased its scope of action both as regards certain French matters which properly came under the jurisdiction of the War Minister and in making independent arrangements with the Allies which were an infringement upon the sphere of diplomacy.

Instead of limiting these abuses, the decree of Dec. 3, 1915, appointing Joffre Generalissimo of all the French armies on all fronts, with Castelnau as Major General, had merely increased them, until the high command had come virtually to supplant the War Minister, its titular superior. In other words, Joffre was ignoring the National Government of which the War Minister was a representative and exercising a practical dictatorship.

The consequence was, continued the memoir, that the high command refused to admit control or supervision on the part of the civil authorities. It insisted that parliamentary control should function through it, instead of independently of it. It had nullified the appointment of a Major General, and finally at Verdun, where the War Minister had pointed out the lack of defensive organization, the high command had met his observations with the arbitrary statement that everything was satisfactory—a statement to which events had just given the most startling of contradictions.

To remedy this state of affairs the high command must be restored to the proper position it should occupy according to the regulations, but this change was impossible if observance of those regulations depended on persons who declined to comply with them. Therefore ended the memoir, firstly, the high command must be brought to confine itself to the conduct of military operations; secondly, the administrative direction which belonged to the War Minister must be given back to him, and thirdly, those chiefs who cannot adapt themselves to present circumstances must be eliminated.

For an account of subsequent events one has to depend on the statement made by the parties concerned to their respective entourage. Gallieni, in particular, was accustomed to relate to his chosen confidents with military precision details of events in which he took part.

It appears that the Cabinet was considerably divided. Painlevé, Minister of Public Instruction and Military Inventions, stoutly supported Gallieni, whereas Briand as firmly opposed anything that might lead to a crisis either of the Cabinet or high-command at a moment when public opinion was so grievously upset by the events at Verdun. The Premier even went so far as to suggest that Gallieni, whose good faith neither he nor any one else could venture to question, might be acting as the unconscious tool of the Parliamentary opposition—on this occasion and during the crisis in December which actually led to Joffre's removal Briand seemed to be actuated more by the desire to keep his Government in power than by any other motive.

Demanded to See President.

Gallieni indignantly repudiated the suggestion and demanded that he be allowed to lay the matter forthwith before the President of the republic in Briand's presence. An interview was arranged for that very afternoon, and for an hour and a half the three chiefs thrashed out the question between them—or, rather, Briand and Gallieni argued, for Poincaré is said to have occupied a passive rôle as arbitrator or mediator.

Gallieni repeated his previous arguments, adding that if he did not obtain satisfaction he would have no choice but to resign, and that in any event his ill-health and the necessity to undergo an operation within a few weeks made his resignation imperative, and that in thus ventilating the subject he had simply hoped to do France one more service before his retirement.

He must have been a pathetic figure, this old soldier who had given his whole life to his country, and now with death's hand upon him was making his last fight for what he believed to be her interest. But, as Joffre was to find later in somewhat similar circumstances, he was not a match for the supple politician that is Briand.

The Premier recognized, or affected to recognize, the justice of Gallieni's observations and asserted that he admitted the desirability of the proposed reforms—he only contested the wisdom of their application at the present juncture—now, if ever, to remove Joffre was a case of swapping horses while crossing a hazardous stream.

Gallieni replied that in that case his resignation was in the hands of President Poincaré, but there again Briand retorted that the resignation of the War Minister at this moment would have effects at home and abroad hardly less deplorable than the removal of Joffre.

In vain Gallieni reiterated the utter impossibility of allowing things to go on as they were, and his absolute refusal to do so. Briand spiked his guns by one appeal to which the General was bound to hearken—France's interest was at stake. Finally Gallieni agreed with bitter reluctance to compromise—he would wait until Briand found a successor as well as a means of announcing the change without arousing public alarm.

The following day Gallieni did not keep an appointment to appear before the Senatorial Army Committee. On the 9th he attended neither the National Defense Council nor the Cabinet meeting. On the 10th he published through the Havas Agency information to the Senators and Deputies that he would not hold the usual weekly reunion.

"In the chamber lobby everyone was asking whether he was still Minister or not, and none could answer. Then on the 14th appeared a decree appointing Minister of Marine Lacaze as "Interim War Minister during the illness of General Gallieni." Three days later on the 17th General Roques was appointed War Minister.

He is a mild, amiable man and a close friend of Joffre, who was left in tranquil possession of the High Command during Roque's tenure of office until December.

OPPORTUNITIES IN ACCOUNTANCY.

The demands for accountants and the opportunities in the profession are greater than they have ever been. Executives, bankers, capitalists—even the Government would be "all at sea" without the accountant. A recent demand for 750 accountants, 200 of the positions paying over $3,000 per year, is one example of the sort of opening which awaits qualified men. Prepare to take advantage of the opportunities in accountancy. Call for personal interview or write for Bulletin.

GIANTS DEFEAT ST. LOUIS TWICE AND DRAW HALF A GAME NEARER CINCINNATI

GIANTS WIN TWO FROM CARDINALS

Toney and Benton Pitch New York to Victory in Twin Bill, 5 to 2 and 4 to 1.

FOUR HITS MADE OFF MAY

St. Louis Twirler's Brief Lapse from Control in Second Game Decides Issue Against Him.

The Giants won two games from the St. Louis Cardinals up at the Polo Grounds yesterday while the Reds were winning one from Boston. Just for that the Giants gained half a game on Cincinnati and are trailing the leaders this morning by six and a half games. As the Giants probably will not win two games each day from now until the end of the season, one can readily see that Cincinnati needn't worry. The Giants have tried every means of beating the Reds, except an injunction, and there isn't a doubt but that Pat Moran could carry his club right through an injunction without leaving a trail.

The Giants took the first game yesterday, 5 to 2, and the second, 4 to 1. Toney pitched the first game and had the edge on Willie Doak because Doak got wild in the third and contributed a couple of bases on balls which aided New York in getting three valuable runs. Toney has entirely recovered from the heat prostration he suffered on his last visit to St. Louis, and yesterday's accomplishment was sweet revenge for him.

Rube Benton pitched the second game for the Giants and settled an old score with Jakey May, who has been giving the Giants a lot of left-hand trouble this season. May wasn't hit hard, but he hit two Giants with the ball, Young in the first inning and Kauff in the fourth, and the Giants were able to turn the mistakes into runs. They got only four hits off May and coined three runs out of them. The other Giants' run in this second affair came when Tuero was flinging.

Kelly in Chase's Role.

George Kelly, the tall, thin youngster, who was with the Giants in a pinch hitter's rôle last season, returned from Rochester yesterday and played first base in place of the crippled Hal Chase. Kelly has been breaking the fences in the International League, and McGraw brought him back to do the same thing around Harlem.

New York won yesterday through the good pitching of Toney and Benton. There is still a slump in the team's batting, but they do not have to have much slugging back of such flinging as the pitchers showed yesterday.

One of Jakey May's twisters winged Ross Young in the first inning of the second tilt and started the Giants in the scoring occupation. After Burns had fanned Young was hit, and Fletcher's single to right centre pushed him to third. Zimmerman hit a sacrifice fly to short right, Young scoring, when Schultz made a weak throw to the platter.

A heap of excitement by the Giants in the fourth. Zim ballooned to Lavan and Stock tossed Frisch out at first. Kauff had a flurried career during this inning. He was hit by one of May's stray tosses and stole second. Benny was caught flatfooted off second by May and kept right on to third. He slid under Baird and was safe. Kelly ambled and stole second. Snyder bounced a hot grounder through the infield and got a two-base hit out of the lucky crack, Kauff and Kelly scoring. Benton was safe on Lavan's fumble, and, when Snyder and Rube boldly essayed a double steal, Snyder was nipped at the plate.

Cardinals Score in Seventh.

The Cardinals began to distribute trouble around in the seventh inning, after two were out. McHenry whacked a double to left and went to third when Clemons got a hit to deep short. Baird whizzed a grounder at Zimmerman, which was too hot for Zim to grasp, and McHenry scored. Zim, for some unknown reason, threw the ball to second, where no one was expecting it, and Clemons sneaked around to third on the error. The danger ended when Lavan forced Baird, Fletcher to Frisch.

Benton pitched himself out of a basketful of trouble in the eighth. Jack Miller, batting for Mays, soaked a single to left and, as Miller is lame, Jack Smith was inserted to run for him. Benton then gave Schultz a pass. Heathcote's sacrifice coaxed the runners along to second and third. Stock lifted a fly to Kauff, but Benny got the ball back so promptly that Smith didn't attempt to score from third. Hornsby was up next, and he's apt to paste the ball anywhere at any time. Benton settled down, however, and Fletcher tossed the great Cardinal slugger out at first for the third out.

The Giants added one more in the eighth for good measure. With two out of the way and Tuero pitching Kauff came to life and swatted a double to right field. George Kelly obliged with his first hit of the day, and the bang to left sent Kauff over the plate. Kelly tried to horn his way to second, but McHenry chucked the ball to Stock and Kelly was exterminated.

Giants Start in Lead.

New York got busy in the opening inning of the first encounter. With one gone Young singled to centre and stole second after Fletcher had fanned. Zimmerman crashed a single to centre and sent Young home. Zim stretched himself too far off first and had an inclination to go to second, but changed his mind and tried to get back to first, dying in the attempt.

The Cards came up on even terms in the second, when, with one out, Vernon Clemons, the fat Cardinal backstop, poked a home run into the left field bleachers.

The Cards took a one-run lead in the third. Schultz singled to left and Heathcote forced him, Fletcher unassisted. Heathcote stole second, and went to third when Fletcher threw Stock out at first. Hornsby walked, and he and Heathcote put over a double steal, Heathcote scoring, while Hornsby kept right on to third when McCarty made a lurid toss to second. McHenry fanned and ended the Cards' ambitions.

That advantage didn't stick long, for in the same round the Giants started a merry-go-round and collected three more runs.

Timely Hit by Fletcher.

McCarty walked and Jigger Statz ran for him. Toney rolled a grasser to Doak, who tried to force Statz at second, but Lavan dropped the throw and all hands were safe. Burns got a pass and filled the bases. Doak kicked on Umpire McCormick's eyesight, but that didn't change the situation a bit. Young got a hit to short, beating Lavan's throw, and Statz registered. Fletcher spanked a single to right, shoving Toney and Burns home. Zim lined to Lavan, who doubled Fletcher at second. Frisch fanned for the third out.

New York added another in the fifth. Toney opened with a single to centre and went to third when Young soaked a double to left, after Burns had fanned. While Stock was tossing Fletcher out at first Toney crossed the plate. Young tried to steal home, but found the ball waiting for him when he arrived.

St. Louis made a slight threat in the eighth, but it didn't amount to anything. With one out, Heathcote doubled to left centre and went to third on Stock's single. Hornsby hoisted a foul to Gonzales and Kauff nabbed McHenry's rocket.

Curves and Bingles.

Red Ames, who used to be with the Giants when they were winning pennants, renewed old acquaintances. Red hasn't pitched a single game for St. Louis in New York this season. Red used to wear loud neckties in the old days, which brought New York a lot of luck.

Doyle and Chase, who are convalescing, did duty on the coaching lines. They didn't have much to do. When a team has good pitching it doesn't need much strategy.

Clemons, the Cardinal catcher, gets the home run fever when he hits the Polo Grounds. On his last visit he cracked the ball into the left field bleachers, the same as he did yesterday.

There was a gathering of 10,000 at the bargain bill yesterday and the most of them refuse to entertain the thought that the Giants will not beat out the Reds for the pennant.

Ferdie Schupp sported a St. Louis regalia and got a great reception when he walked to the St. Louis bench after the first game.

The big drop of the Giants at the bat is plainly seen in the sudden falling off of home runs from the New York bats. Home-running used to be a daily occupation with McGraw's men, and all of them, including the pitchers, used to smack the ball for circuit clouts. They haven't been getting any lately, however.

Rogers Hornsby, the star of the Cardinal outfit, is playing first base instead of Jack Miller. Hornsby has been the victim of more rumors than any player in the league. According to Western reports, McGraw has offered everything in New York for the player, except the Polo Grounds.

George Kelly, Bill Lange's nephew, who was with the Giants before, was recalled from Rochester to fill Chase's place at first while Hal is laid up. Kelly was a batting sensation in the International League and had a batting habit of .373. One of Kelly's best achievements with Rochester was four home runs and a double in one game a while back. This batting feat beat the record established by Ed Delehanty and Bobby Lowe. They got four home runs and a single in a game in the old days.

It was while pitching against the Cardinals in St. Louis that Toney collapsed in the sun. It was warm yesterday, but Toney didn't mind it. He allowed only six hits.

Kelly didn't get the range of the St. Louis pitching in the first game. He was at bat three times, going out at first each time. He got a hit in the second game.

Harry McCormick, who used to be the pinch hitter de luxe of the National League when he was with the Giants, seasons ago, witnessed both encounters. McCormick, who was an officer with the A. E. F., was badly gassed in France, but has recovered.

POOR START PROVES COSTLY TO DODGERS

Pirates Land On Grimes for Four Runs in First Inning and Win Game, 5 to 1.

In a game that was absolutely devoid of anything resembling a full-grown thrill the Dodgers were checked by "Bullet" Frank Miller's fast ball at Ebbet's Field yesterday, and the Pirates won by a score of 5 to 1. The best that can be said of the contest is that it was just a baseball game between two teams that are not going anywhere in particular in the National League jamboree, and the fans treated it as such. Probably 1,000 persons, who didn't have anything else to do, clicked their way through the turnstiles and watched the proceedings in placid silence. But once or twice during the nine innings were the rows of empty seats given a chance to unlimber their echoes, and then the applause was merely a ripple, scarcely of enough volume to warrant an echo emerging from its hiding place.

The score itself tells almost the whole story of how the Dodgers once more slid down the soapy chutes of defeat. Frank Miller was "right," and when he has his fast one burning the edges of the plate there are few ball clubs doing business along the big league highway that have a chance against him. The Robins were able to hit him, but he was mighty careful that hits were not made when they might do damage.

It has been the same old story with Brooklyn for quite a spell. Wilbert Robinson's brigade could not bunch hits sufficiently to turn them into runs. The fact that ten Brooklyn players were left stranded on the bases explains in great measure why Pittsburgh was able to amble to a more or less easily acquired victory. In each of four innings the Dodgers managed to inject two hits into the box score, but to no purpose, except in the first inning, when they squeezed one tally across the plate.

First Inning Settles Game.

The game was really lost in the first inning, when the Pirates got off to a flying start and registered four runs before the Brooklyn club had had time to get its bearings. Burleigh Grimes had not found himself when the Buccaneers began driving the ball to the far parts of the field. Before the cloud of dust had settled four of Bezdek's men had dug their spikes into the rubber.

The trouble started when Grimes couldn't make his curve behave and Bigbee drew a base on balls. It looked as if he might be able to pull himself out of the hole when Carey grounded to Olson, whose toss to Johnston forced Bigbee. Southworth, however, turned one of Grimes's slow ones into a fast one for a single which put Carey on second. This seemed to upset Grimes. He appeared to realize that his curve was out of gear and he grooved one for Whitted, who promptly drove it to deep centre for two bases. Carey rode home on the hit, and Southworth followed him across the plate when Myers fumbled the ball. Whitted was camping on third base by the time the ball was returned to the infield.

This wasn't all. Barbare, by way of keeping up the good work, bounced a hit past Grimes, and Whitted chalked up the third run. Cutshaw wanted to do things to the pellet by way of recalling the fact to Brooklyn that he once played there, but Grimes had his number and he struck out. Aided by a short passed ball, Barbare stole second, and from there it was just a romp for him to count when Terry punched a three-bagger into right field. Schmidt ended the rumpus by flying out to Griffith.

Dodgers Get One Run.

Brooklyn made a feeble effort to get back in the game in its half of the first inning but the net result of two singles and an error was a lone tally. After Olson had flied to Bigbee Johnson singled to centre. He scampered to third on Griffith's single to right and kept on to the plate when Schmidt dropped Barbare's relay of Southworth's throw-in from south field. Zach Wheat soared to Bigbee and Myers flied to Carey. It was the last time during the game that the Dodgers got within hailing distance of the plate.

In the third the Dodgers had an excellent chance to accomplish something material when Grimes led off with a sizzling two-base hit to right field but Olson, Johnston and Griffith were not equal to the occasion and went out in order. Again in the fifth inning it looked as if Brooklyn might get going when, with two out, Olson and Johnston both singled, but Griffith's effort resulted in a high fly to Carey in deep centre. Robbie's clan threatened in the sixth but once more a collection of two hits in the same inning was not sufficient to drive a run home.

Wheat led off with a single to right. Myers flied out to Southworth and Konetchy forced Wheat at second, Whitted to Cutshaw. Ward then singled and Koney pulled up at second but Otto Miller fouled out to Schmidt.

In the seventh inning Brooklyn collected a brace of hits, but in vain. There were two down, and the crowd had all but given up hope that the Dodgers would be able to overcome Pittsburgh's lead, when Johnston beat out an infield hit, and took second on Griffith's short single. Wheat forced Griffith, Cutshaw to Terry.

Pirates Get Another.

Not content with what they had accomplished in the first inning, the Pirates proceeded to take another run unto themselves in the third inning on a double, a sacrifice, and a single, not forgetting an error in judgment perpetrated by Otto Miller.

Southworth doubled along the first base line, and reached third on a prettily placed sacrifice by Whitted. He laid the ball down to Koney, but was out by a scant step when Johnston took Koney's throw at first. It was then that Otto Miller was guilty of a miscue that presented Barbare with a hit and permitted Southworth to score. Barbare dropped a bunt in front of the plate. Miller left the plate uncovered to field the ball, but collided with Grimes, who was also intent upon fielding the ball. The result was that neither of them succeeded in getting hold of it, and Barbare was safe at first and Southworth registered. That concluded the scoring for the day.

WHITE SOX BEAT SENATORS.

Score a 10 to 3 Victory by Hitting Erickson Hard and Often.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Chicago defeated Washington, 10 to 3, today, by hitting Erickson often and at opportune times. Cicotte had only two bad innings, in which the visitors were able to bunch hits, one of which was a fluke homer in the sixth by Picinich, which scored a runner ahead of him. Felsch was set for a throw to the plate, but the ball took a bad bound and rolled to deep centre.

PHILS DIVIDE WITH CUBS.

Open Gate Costs Quakers Probable Victory in Second Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—Leaving the clubhouse gate open probably prevented Philadelphia from winning both games from Chicago today. The locals won the first game, 10 to 2, and Chicago the second, 6 to 5, in eleven innings. In the ninth inning of the second game, with Philadelphia two runs ahead, Merkle doubled, and Deal's drive to left centre rolled through the gate.

In the tenth inning, with two on bases, Friberg, a Chicago recruit, leaped into the air after a hard run and captured Rixey's long liner a few yards from the bleachers. Chicago won in the eleventh on three singles and Deal's double.

SKEETERS ON SLIM END OF TWO SCORES

Tipple Pitches Both Games Against Colts, Losing First, 2 to 0, and Second, 7 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Aug. 20.—Jersey City started its final series of the season here today by losing a double-header to the Colts. The scores were 2 to 0 and 7 to 2. Dan Tipple, who pitched both games for the Jersey men, engaged in a hurling duel with Acosta in the first affair, but was hit hard in the second game. O'Neil's two-bagger, with two men on bases, won the opener for Rochester. Only one of Donovan's men reached third base in this combat.

Tipple had two bad innings in the closing contest, the Colts bunching seven of their ten hits in these rounds. Kane's hitting made both of Jersey City's runs possible in this game. He tripled in the seventh and scored on Cobb's sacrifice fly. Kane doubled in the ninth and came home on Zellar's single.

Rochester scored three runs in the first inning on three hits and a sacrifice fly. Rodriguez drove in three runs with a triple in the seventh, Zitman playing the ball poorly. The Cuban scored the fourth run of the inning on a single by Lamar.

YANKS BUY MANY PLAYERS.

Six Are New Additions and Seven Have Had Previous Trials.

The Yankees purchased and re-purchased a flock of players from the minor leagues yesterday and are already getting ready to build up the club for next season. Piercy, Vance, Markle, Ferguson, and Sanders have been members of the pitching staff before at various times. Of the thirteen players named, six are new and seven have been recalled.

Bob Meusel, infielder, was purchased from the Vernon Club of the Pacific Coast League. His latest batting average is .340 in 104 games. He has 25 two-base hits, 3 triples, and 7 home runs for a total of 213 bases. He has 19 stolen bases to his credit.

Ralph Pinelli, an infielder, was purchased from the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League. In 110 games Pinelli has a batting average of .253, with a total of 127 bases. He has stolen 37 bases. Warren Collins, a right-handed pitcher, comes from the Dallas Club of the Texas League. Frank Gleich, an outfielder, was purchased from the Saginaw Club of the Michigan-Ontario League. Dan Murphy, a catcher, was bought from the Toledo Club of the American Association. C. Murphy, a right-handed pitcher, comes from the Winnipeg Club of the Western Canada League.

William Piercy, a right-handed pitcher, was repurchased from the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League. Dazzy Vance, another hight-hander, was repurchased from the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League. Everett Bankston, an outfielder, was repurchased from the Greenville Club of the South Atlantic Association.

Cliff Markle, right-handed putcher, returns from the Salt Lake Club of the Pacific Coast League. Paul Carpenter, a right-handed pitcher, was repurchased from the Dallas Club of the Texas League.

Alex Ferguson, the right-handed pitcher, was repurchased from the Toledo Club of the American Association; also Roy Sanders, right-handed pitcher, was repurchased from Toledo, American Association.

MANY CLASSES IN EXHIBIT.

Newport Horse Show, Aug. 27-29, to Have 52 Divisions.

Fifty-two classes are carded for the twenty-third annual Newport Horse Show, to be held on Aug. 27 to 29, for the benefit of the Soldiers Blinded in Battle Fund. Including the seven championships, there are twenty-three classes announced for horses in harness, eleven for saddle horses, ten for hunters, four for ponies under saddle, and three classes for hackneys to be shown to halter, respectively for stallions, brood mares and pony stallions. All entries will close on Aug. 16 with the committee, Henry F. Eldridge, Prescott Lawrence, Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Dr. Thomas G. Ashton, box 372, Newport, R. I.

An interesting and uncommon class will be for park and road hacks for three prizes of $80, $30 and $10, to be divided for the two types. The entire entry will be judged on Thursday as park hacks, when beauty of conformation and ease and elegance of action will presumably be the points first considered, while on Friday they will all be judged again as road hacks, when speed, handiness and utility merits will be in most esteem. Exhibitors must enter and show in both divisions or else forfeit any share of the prizes. It may be that the same horses may be placed in both divisions, or, on the other hand, the judge may find radical differences in the qualifications to be deemed the most valuable in each type. Charles P. Williams of Stonington, Conn., will judge the harness horses for the third season, while Alfred B. Maclay will judge the saddle and R. Penn Smith the hunter classes. Last year the two also wore the ermine, but the former had the jumpers and the latter the classes under saddle.

The new definition of an amateur adopted by the Association of American Horse Shows, which will be in force at the National Horse Show in November, is announced in the Newport premium list. It reads as follows:

"Rule VII. An amateur is one who rides or drives for the love of the sport, not as a professional, or for a livelihood and who shall not have received any monetary consideration for his or her services, and shall not be professionally interested in the purchase, sale or trading of horses.

"The children of professionals shall also be debarred from riding or driving as amateurs. The status of an amateur shall be decided by the committee.

"Should a professional change his or her profession, or the child of a professional adopt another business than that of their parent, and desire to be classified as an amateur, he or she may apply to the Directors of this Association for an amateur rating, which at their discretion may be granted."

IMPROVING LAUREL COURSE.

Maryland Horsemen Pleased with Changes Now Near Completion.

Word comes from Laurel that the many planned improvements to the course of the Maryland State Fair Association are well on the way to completion for the race meeting that will be launched there Oct. 1. While the improvements are far-reaching, it is assured that they will all be completed by the middle of September. The work that is going forward is being done with the idea of making Laurel one of the most attractive race courses in the country, and the changes will do away with shortcomings that have been a cause of complaint ever since the track was built.

The stakes, already announced, are generous in value and framed along lines that have the approval of owners and trainers. This approval is in itself a guarantee that the sport will attract the best horses in training, and the prizes, together with those that come at the meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club at Pimlico, will induce trainers to keep their best horses in action until late in the Fall.

Among the changes referred to are the making over of the clubhouse, a thorough renovation of the grandstand, the building of a new entrance, an addition to the stand in the form of bleachers, which will give an uninterrupted view of the races for 2,000 patrons; a making over of the paddock, by taking out the centred stalls, which were a menace to both horses and horsemen, and the erection of nineteen roomy boxes close to the walls of the building, leaving a walking ring under shelter, where the public will have an opportunity to see the horses while they are waiting for the call to the post.

The Secretary's domain and the jockey quarters are being made up-to-date and there will be a large office for the use of the horsemen. A thoroughly equipped hospital is another important adjunct to the administration building.

Every stall on the grounds is being made serviceable. More than 100 of the old boxes have been demolished and four new barns of twenty-eight stalls each, with living rooms for the men upstairs, will take the place of the sheds that have been torn down. The grounds have been graded and made into long, well-sodded lawns under direction of Superintendent Keegan.

Redland Fans Acquire a Hunch.

Cincinnati baseball fans, unacquainted for fifty years with the pride that comes with having a first-class baseball team, are stepping all over themselves now with joy at the showing of Pat Moran's Redlegs. The followers of the team have fallen to playing hunches. Their strongest hunch was furnished during the series in Cincinnati with the Giants, when President John Heydler of the National League assigned four umpires to one of the games. This is being taken as a sure sign of a world's series at Redland Field in October, and Cincinnati fans are making their plans accordingly, totally oblivious of the fact that the Giants are in the league.

The Rutherford-Walniak team had a better score on the 1,000-yard range than the Gettys-Luce team, and took second place, with the Gettys-Luce team third. CAPABLANCA CHESS VICTOR.

Cuban Expert Adds Two Games to His Total in British Tournament.

HASTINGS, England, Aug. 20.—Two additional victories in the seventh and eighth rounds of the international victory tournament of the British Chess Federation at the Drill Hall here today gave José R. Capablanca a total score of 8—0, a game and a half better than that of Boris Kostich, the Serbian champion, who won in the seventh, but adjourned a game in the eighth round, which he will probably lose.

Capablanca first defeated Michell of London and then won from Conde of Mexico. Kostich scored a point at the expense of Yates of Leeds, but then obtained a bad position in his game with M. Marchand of Amsterdam. This leaves Kostich with a total score of 6½—½, with one pending. Sir George Thomas of London moved up among the leaders by winning both of his games, in addition to a third, which had been adjourned. V. G. Wahltuch of Manchester and Dr. A. G. Olland of Amsterdam added two points and are trailing Kostich closely. Other winners were A. G. Conde of Mexico and H. G. Cole of London.

Entries for Bouts Close Friday.

Entries close tomorrow for the amateur boxing tournament to be held at the Bensonhurst Yacht Club, Brooklyn, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Entries may be made at the Metropolitan Association headquarters, 290 Broadway.

Metropolitan Relays on Sept. 6.

The Metropolitan relay championships, national pentathlon, and steeplechase championships will be held at City Athletic Field, Newark, on Sept. 6. The date originally named was Sept. 13.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20.—In a thrilling thirty-six-hole match that was ended with a ten-foot putt that clicked into the back of the cup on the home green, Francis Ouimet of Boston toppled Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago from his throne as amateur champion by 1 up in the second round of the National Amateur Golf Championship today. After the complete rout of the New Yorkers yesterday, Chicago's chances were laid low in the dust today, for in addition to the defeat of the favorite son, Chick, Robert A. Gardner, twice former national amateur champion, was soundly trounced 5 up and 4 to play by Bob Jones of Atlanta, the stocky youth whom Gardner put out of the title chase at Merion by 5 and 3. Today also saw the last ember of metropolitan hopes quenched with ice water when S. Davidson Herron of Oakmont defeated J. N. Stearns, Jr., of Nassau by the wide margin of 7 and 5.

But the great battle and the centre of all interest was the Evans-Ouimet controversy. The meeting of the twain brought out an enthusiastic gallery that ran into the thousands, and also ran into the traps and ditches all over the course, eager to see every iron shot hit crisply to the pin, straining their ears to hear each putt as it dropped out of sight into the cup. By a strange combination of circumstances these two young amateur stars had never before met in a championship contest. Their tests of strength had been confined to four-ball contests and team matches. But here was the challenge direct, which the followers of each golfer awaited with confidence.

Each had won the national amateur championship, Evans at Merion in 1916 and Ouimet at Ekwanok in 1914. Each had also won the open title, Ouimet against Vardon and Ray at Brookline in 1913, and Evans at Minikahda in 1916. The Chicago golfer in 1916, by winning both amateur and open titles in the same year, reached a pinnacle of fame in golf never before achieved in this country, and only once in the history of the game abroad when the great John Ball of England accomplished the feat.

Nip and Tuck Battle.

Therefore the respective followers of the two players were out in force today and they saw a battle of Titans of the links, cleanly fought from the first tee to the last green, with first one player in the lead, then the other. Of the thirty-six holes that were played, thirteen were halved, twelve were won by Ouimet, and eleven won by Evans. It was a putt, and not putting, that lost the match for the Chicago champion, for if Evans tossed away several holes by missing short ones of three feet or less, he evened this up by holing some astonishingly long ones. When the final analysis was made up it showed that Evans had taken slightly less than two putts to a green through the whole thirty-six-hole journey, which is fairly good work for a supposedly weak putter.

By actual count Ouimet took less putts than his opponent, but that was largely due to a remarkable series of mashie and mashie niblick approaches that Ouimet made on the outward journey of the afternoon round where the ball came to rest so close to the pin that a blind man could have holed it with a snowshovel. This outward journey by the Boston youth was one of the most remarkable sustained efforts ever seen in this country. Par for this distance at Oakmont, one of the stiffest courses in the country, is 37, yet Ouimet finished the nine holes in 34 with a 6 on the ninth hole. This equals the record for this part of the course.

No golfer in the world could beat such playing as that, and Evans did particularly well to stay within hailing distance of the speeding Bostonian, who played eight holes in 28 strokes, or an average of 3½ strokes per hole. It was a great tribute to the grit of the defending champion that he did not wilt under this terrific fire, but he kept pegging away at his game, not always straight as he was wont to be, but right there fighting for his putt to go down at every hole. He gnawed down the lead of 3 up that Ouimet held at the eighth hole in the afternoon round to a vanishing point at the sixteenth or thirty-fourth hole of the match. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm as both got birdie 3's on the thirty-fifth green and drove high up and far away toward the home green, all square.

10-Foot Putt Wins.

The match was to end just as all links followers had dreamed and hoped, on the home green. Evans had a bit the best of the drive, so Ouimet played first for the green. He sliced just enough to catch a trap to the right of the green. Evans now had an iron shot for the pin, his favorite stroke at which he has always been a master. This time his mastery failed him momentarily and he hit a low ball that bounced around a trap to the left of the green and finally stayed up in a hollow bit of rough, just off the edge.

Ouimet climbed down into the trap, inspected the lie of his ball, and then climbed up on the green to survey the situation from that angle. It was not encouraging. The Oakmont traps have a nation-wide reputation which they have more than earned, but nerve and courage never failed the young Bostonian, and once more descending into the pit he pitched the ball up to within ten feet of the cup. Evans had a good chance to get inside this ball but he chipped over and wide of the pin. He putted first and ran a foot past the hole with a good try. Ouimet had a ten-footer to defeat his ancient rival. There were neither frills nor fashions to the manner in which he hit the ball confidently toward the hole. A second after it dropped into the cup. Evans reached out a hand to greet the victor of one of the greatest golf matches ever played in this country.

Evans started out in the morning with a beautiful 3, two strokes under par, at the first hole, but dillydallying in the traps at the second brought things even again, and Chicago's choice was 1 down at the third, where he took practically three putts. The 346-yard fifth hole gave Evans a chance to show what a real champion at the game can do if put right to it. He hooked his drive to the sandy bottom of a trap, pitched out dead to the pin and holed his putt for a birdie 3. On the short sixth he was just off the edge of the green on his tee shot with Ouimet well on. The Chicago golfer chipped right into the cup for a 2, and was 1 up when Ouimet took a 3. However, he was 1 down shortly, for the Massachusetts amateur champion took the next two holes in par figures, while his opponent was trapped at the seventh, and took three from the edge of the eighth green.

Both Play Strong Game.

The turn was reached with Ouimet 1 up, out in 36 to 37 for Evans. The New Englander added another hole to his lead at the tenth, though he hooked his drive to the wrong fairway. Evans pitched his second into a trap right off the green and took a 5 to a 4 for his opponent. Not a bit discouraged, the Chicago player bided his time and on the long twelfth hole, where in the qualifying round some 130 odd players made an average of 7½ strokes from tee to green, he holed a fifteen-footer for a birdie 4. All the holes were halved from this to the seventeenth, but it was nip and tuck all the way.

Each was watching for a chance to slip ahead of the other, and when Ouimet topped his drive at the seventeenth and was short of the green on his second, Evans squared the match with a 4, though he narrowly escaped disaster in pitching across a trap to the green. All square again, and that is the way they finished the morning round, when Ouimet sank a good ten-footer for his 4 after hooking his drive to the rough.

The morning cards were:

Ouimet—
Out	5	4	4	5	4	3	4	3	4	—36
In	4	4	5	4	4	4	4	5	4	—38—74
Evans—
Out	8	6	5	5	3	2	5	4	4	—37
In	5	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	—37—74

Gets Flying Start.

Then came luncheon, and after that "the deluge." Ouimet pitched up his approach to the second green within eighteen inches of the cup for a 3, he sank a twelve-foot putt for another birdie on the third, and, after being trapped on the fourth, he sank another putt for a half in par 5. He pitched another approach within three feet of the pin on the fifth, and holed that one and was 3 up with a par 3 at the sixth, when Evans took a 4 from the edge of the green. He came to the ninth hole, which he has made repeatedly in 4, with a 4 needed for a 32. His long brassie kicked treacherously into a trap at the edge of the green, however, and after several worthy but ineffectual efforts to get well out, he pitched on the green and conceded the hole.

The New Englander made a remarkable shot out of a ditch into which he drove with a good ball on the eleventh, but he shot over the green into a trap. However, Evans went over, too, from a fine lie on the fairway, and the hole was halved.

Ouimet missed a little bit of a putt for a win on the long twelfth, where he was nicely on the 3, while Evans was playing to the green in four via two bunkers. However, he made up for this by saving the short thirteenth with a good putt after he had pitched short into a trap.

At the fourteenth the hopes of the Chicago followers rose high as Evans squared the match when his opponent trapped his drive and put his second into another sand pit by the green. Evans hooked his drive to a lofty situation on top of a grass bunker. He played beautifully to the green, but was ten feet short on his approach putt. However, he holed the next, and that is what counts when the score is marked down. With a lead of 3 holes cut down to a single hole, and only four left to play, enthusiasm in the gallery rose to fever pitch.

Evans Squares Match.

The players were beginning to feel the strain, and the fifteenth was a comedy of errors, halved in 6, with both players in and out of trouble twice. One up and 3 to play, the Ouimet followers were wondering whether the late sickness of their champion would stand the gaff, and when he sliced his tee shot into the woods at the sixteenth their hopes were dashed to the ground. He came well out of the woods but skidded across the green into another trap, and Evans squared the match.

It was a wonderful uphill battle that Evans had fought. He had been down since early morning against one of the nerviest and finest golfers in the world, and persistency had brought its reward on the sixteenth green. Both almost drove to the 282-yard seventeenth green. Ouimet was away and pitched up within ten feet of the cup. Evans had to pitch over a trap to the pin, but he laid his ball up within four feet of the hole. When Ouimet curled his into the cup a roar arose from the crowd that was only equaled by the one that went up as Chick's putt went down for a half with a birdie 3. All square, they played away to the home hole, where the Chicago player saw his crown vanish as the "Great and Only" Francis, beloved of all New England, toppled him from his throne with a pitch from a trap and a putt for the match.

The afternoon cards were:

Ouimet, out	4	3	3	5	3	3	4	3	6	—34
Evans, out	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	3	5	—38
Ouimet, in	5	5	6	3	5	6	5	3	4	—42—76
Evans, in	5	5	6	3	4	6	3	3	5	—40—78

Jones Shows Form.

The contest in which Bob Jones, no more "Little Bobbie," but a strong, husky youth, humbled Bob Gardner in the dust was another fine battle from start to finish. Jones, anxious to avenge his defeat at Merion, jumped the field and won the first three holes hand running. He was 4 up when he took the fifth, but that state of affairs worries chaps like Bob Gardner not one iota. The man who was 5 down four separate times to Max Marston yesterday and finally won out was not to be bothered by three or four paltry holes to the bad. He took the seventh and eighth and was 2 down at the turn. After exchanging honors on the homeward journey, the Atlanta boy added another point to his advantage and was 3 up at the end of the first round.

The Chicago golfer was not a bit worried when his youthful opponent made it 4 up at the first hole in the afternoon round, where Gardner's tee shot found a trap and he took three to reach the green. He knew he would get some of these holes back, and he had one presented to him when Jones took three putts from no great distance away at the third green. A wonderful mashie shot placed within two feet of the pin from the rough gave the young Southerner a birdie 3 on the fifth hole, and three putts by Gardner himself, with his usually dependable brass-faced wooden putter, put the youngster 5 up. This margin was widened to 6 up at the turn, when the Chicago player went from one side of the course to the other in the rough.

When the tenth was halved in par 5, the former amateur champion found himself 6 down and 8 to play, a situation that required prompt attention and immediate action of the right kind. Jones kindly came to the rescue by driving into a ditch on the eleventh, pitching into a trap on his second, over the green on his third, short on his fourth and into a pocket on his fifth.

Gardner came to his own aid at the twelfth with a fine approach that he laid dead for a birdie 4. He had cut two holes from the lead and, after halving the thirteenth, he was 4 down and 5 to play. Jones hooked his tee shot into a trap and played out short. With a clear shot for the hole to cut down the lead by another point, Gardner made a fatal mashie pitch that disappeared into a trap to the left of the green. The caddie carefully searched the side of the bank for the lost ball. It was practically buried and the Chicago player had to get on his hands and knees in the trap even to see it and to play it he had to stand on the bank above and hit in the general direction of the ball. He took one terrific swing that dislocated several cubic feet of mud and grass with no other result. He peered down again to make sure the ball was still there, resumed his trapeze-swinging position and again smashed into the bank. Still no ball. One final despairing crash hurled sod and mud clear across the green, but the ball was buried still deeper than ever. Digging in with his hands, Gardner lifted it out and hurried over to offer smiling congratulations to the youngest winner in the tournament.

Four Champions Out.

With Evans, Gardner, Byers, and Travers out, four of the six former national champions have been eliminated. W. C. Fownes, champion in 1910, and Ouimet, 1914 winner, are the survivors.

Fownes defeated the conqueror of Travers, C. G. Waldo, Jr., of Detroit, by the margin of 6 and 5. J. N. Stearns, Jr., of Nassau, the sole survivor from the metropolitan district out of yesterday's debacle, was ruthlessly cut down today by S. Davidson Herron in the afternoon round. After fighting tooth and nail in the morning Herron had a lead of 1 up to the half-way mark. But starting in the afternoon he took four holes in succession and ran away with the match, 7 and 5.

Nelson Whitney of New Orleans, Southern amateur champion, who was looked upon as the dark horse of the tournament, was eliminated by W. J. Thompson, the Canadian golfer, by the wide margin of 7 and 6, much to every one's astonishment.

From present indications it would seem that Bob Jones and Ouimet are to meet in the finals, unless a typical golf upset takes place.

BURTON TO SAIL SHAMROCK.

Lipton Names Skipper for His Yacht in Next Cup Race.

LONDON, July 21, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Since his return to London from America, Sir Thomas Lipton has set about the task of completing his arrangements for next year's contest for the America's Cup in earnest, says The Yachting World. The most important decision so far arrived at, Sir Thomas told a writer in that periodical, is to send the 23-metre Shamrock to America early next year to act as a trial boat in the tuning-up spins of the challenger, Shamrock IV. Asked who would have charge of the British boat, Sir Thomas replied that W. O. Burton had consented to sail the challenger in the race for the America's Cup and also take charge of the 23-metre Shamrock.

"Naturally he will have his own professional skipper," Sir Thomas added. "Mr. Burton will also be responsible for engaging the crews of both boats, and, in fact, he will be in entire charge of the whole of the trials and the actual races on the other side. Charles E. Nicholson, her designer, is going over at an early date for the purpose of thoroughly examining Shamrock IV."

"Do you think any alterations are likely to be made in her?" Sir Thomas was asked.

"That is a matter which I am leaving entirely to Mr. Nicholson's judgment. Many experienced yachtsmen are of opinion that Shamrock IV. is far and away the best boat I have ever had to represent me in this great contest."

"If you lose this time, will you challenge again?"

"I have the greatest hopes that I shall be successful in this, my fourth attempt to bring back the cup, but if I am not successful I can only say that I shall give Mr. Nicholson an order to build another boat."

EXPERT TO AID BELGIANS.

Y. M. C. A. Chief Called to Assist in Olympic Plans.

Elwood S. Brown, who was in charge of all of the Young Men's Christian Association athletic activities during the war and who later was a director of the Inter-Allied games, which were decided in the Pershing Stadium at Joinville, France, has been called to Antwerp by the Belgian Olympic Games Committee.

The next Olympic is to be held in Antwerp in 1920, and ground for the new stadium there has been broken. The committee having charge of this event desired the benefit of expert experience and advice in making preliminary arrangements as well as systematizing their organization along the lines the A. E. F. adopted for the Inter-Allied tournament.

Efforts will be made by the committee to induce Central and South American countries to send entries. Heretofore Brazil and Guatemala have been the only countries in which a real effort has been made to win athletic honors in European contests.

TENNIS REFEREE CHOSEN.

Julian S. Myrick to Officiate in Title Matches at Forest Hills.

Julian S. Myrick, Vice President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, will act as referee of the championship matches in the absence of President George T. Adee, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia. Mr. Adee is improving slowly, but will be unable to assume the duties of referee.

As he will serve during the tournament, two points which have recently caused some discussion were referred to Mr. Myrick for an official ruling. In the case of the interpretation of a rule as permitting play of a ball which struck in court and then touched the back stop on the first bound, Mr. Myrick ruled that the ball could not be played. This decision is based on the theory that the back stop is not a fixture of the court in the sense intended by Law 21, which specifies the net, posts, umpires, linesmen, and their chairs as being fixtures. As it has long been general knowledge that a ball which strikes the backstop on the bound, after having fallen fair in the court, is unplayable in the majority of cases, the rule was interpreted to mean that the ball cannot be played.

The ruling will avoid any misunderstanding and was made so that every one can know in advance what the application of law 21 will be.

Another point referred to Mr. Myrick by Edward C. Conlin, Chairman of the National Tennis Umpires Association, was as to whether or not a point, once decided, can be played over. The ruling is that it cannot be replayed. There has been much discussion about this lately, and, while members of the Tennis Umpires Association have usually followed the principle confirmed by this ruling, it was brought up to avoid any doubtful cases being raised during the championship.

TENNIS SALE CLOSES.

Last Day in Which to Buy Season Seats for Title Matches.

Harry Parker, Treasurer of the National Tennis Championship Committee, in charge of the tournament at Forest Hills the week of Aug. 25, announced last night that today will be the last day for the advance sale of season tickets. There has been an urgent request that the sale be extended, so it was continued for today, instead of closing last night, as had been planned. There are still some good seats available, which may be had at 101 Park Avenue. Telephone Vanderbilt 111.

"The advance sale for the championship compares very favorably with 1916," said Mr. Parker, "as there has been a heavy demand for seats. There are a limited number of good seats to be had. I would advise those who wish to secure seats today to call for them personally, as this will simplify the whole procedure. Mail orders will be filled in the order of their receipt while tickets are on hand. No single day seats will be sold in advance."

TENNIS SCHEDULE READY.

All First Round Matches in National Tourney to be Played Monday.

Tickets for players in the national championship are being sent to them this week, with announcements of their first-round matches, showing the opponent's name and the court and hour of play. All first-round matches will be played Monday afternoon, three matches being scheduled on each of the courts that will be available.

Play in the junior, boys', and veterans' championships will begin on Tuesday, Aug. 26, having been advanced one day. The entry made this necessary in order to provide for all the matches that will be scheduled in connection with the seven championships.

DAVIS BEATS HALL IN TENNIS BATTLE

Californian Gains Straight-Set Victory at Southampton—Pell Yields to Doyle.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Two Australians, Norman Brookes and Randolph Lycett, and four Americans, C. S. Garland, Willis Davis, C. B. Doyle, and Dean Mathey, advanced today to the fourth round of the singles in the invitation tennis tournament for the new challenge cup of the Meadow Club. The visitors won their places by default, but Davis had to defeat Walter Merrill Hall for his bracket, while Doyle upset calculations by disposing of T. R. Pell in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2. Mathey won three matches in the course of the day, eliminating C. A. Barker, Harold Taylor, and L. E. Williams in turn, and Garland's victory was won at the expense of Gerald Emerson.

Nearly two rounds of the doubles event were completed, Pell and Davis, Lycett and Thomas, Tilden and Garland, Leroy and Mahan, and Hall and Beekman all coming through without difficulty, while Doyle and Morgan won a hard three set match from Baggs and Emerson, 6—2, 12—14, 6—4.

A place in the singles is being reserved for Gerald Patterson, and he will also appear in the doubles with Brookes, his partner in the newly won national title. Another strong combination, which will make its first appearance on the courts tomorrow, consists of the national singles champion, R. Lindley Murray, and Dean Mathey, who are drawn against Taylor and G. Donaldson.

Davis's Speed Beats Hall.

Interest in this morning's play centred in the Davis-Hall match, which was played in front of the clubhouse, but Doyle also received plenty of attention, as his superiority over Pell became more and more evident. Davis, whose strength this season has been rather an unknown quantity, started like a whirlwind against Hall, taking six games in a row for the opening set, before his opponent succeeded in scoring. The Californian's service was working with deadly effect, and he backed it up with the sharpest and most accurate volleying. Hall totalled only 10 points in this set, and could do no better than carry two of the games to deuce.

In the second session, however, the New York star began to get control of his deep drives and succeeded in keeping his opponent away from the net, using also some well placed lobs. At the back court game he was able to hold his own and won on service up to 4—3. Davis, however, had some extra speed in reserve, and, after scoring again on his own delivery, broke through Hall for the odd game with the loss of only 1 point, cleaning up the set and match, 6—4, with a final rush of severe serves and volleys.

The point score follows:

FIRST SET.

Davis	4	4	4	5	4	5	—26—6

SECOND SET.

Davis	2	4	4	4	3	6	4	4	4	4	—39—6

Doyle Leads All the Way.

The steady chopping of Doyle had Pell in trouble all through their match. The New Yorker's famous back-hand drive failed to work consistently against the low, skidding shots that the Southerner sent over, and he seemed unable to get close enough to the net to volley effectively. Winning the serve at the start, Doyle kept his advantage up to 3—2, and then broke through for a 4—2 lead, which put the opening set on ice. Service alternated in winning once more, and then the Washingtonian closed out the argument with a 6—3 score. The second went more easily, for, after the games had see-sawed to 2—all, Doyle proceeded to run four in a row, his unbeatable streak carrying him to a straight-set victory at 6—2.

The only singles match of the day to run into three sets was the meeting between Dean Mathey and Harold Taylor. The national junior champion gave the former Princetonian a great battle, squaring the match with a 6—3 victory after dropping the opener 6—4. In the rubber, however, Mathey's greater experience brought him a quick decision at 6—1.

The afternoon's play was largely confined to doubles, one of the best matches bringing together Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas, the Australians, and R. L. James and Walter Westbrook, who were runners-up in the Old Dominion and Canadian championships. The Americans lost a good chance for victory in the opening set, when, after breaking through Lycett's service on his errors overhead and the great defensive work of Westbrook, they failed to hold their own against the visitors' hard drives in the following game, James dropping his delivery for a 4—all tie. The set went at 6—4, when James missed an easy volley close up and Westbrook immediately afterward failed to handle a low one as he came in on his service.

Americans Take Second Set.

The second session was a curious record of unsuccessful serving. James lost on his first appearance, but Thomas was immediately upset for a counter-break. A double fault helped to put James again on the wrong end of a 4—2 score, but Thomas lost aagin and it was 4—all when Westbrook's left-handed offerings won. Breaks alternated against both Lycett and James, and the odd game went to the Americans, 6—5, when Thomas was beaten for the third time in succession. Westbrook then took the set, 7—5, by serving a love-game.

The rubber, however, was all in the Australian's favor. James lost his first service when his partner lobbed out, and the latter's first reverse on service sent the score to 4—0. Lycett was upset for the only game scored by the losers. James failed again by missing two low volleys, with Thomas serving, and the set and match ended with a 6—1 score, Westbrook lobbing out for the final point. Both the young Westerner and his veteran partner, however, showed sterling tennis in this match, Westbrook's driving and lobbing being particularly impressive.

F. C. Baggs and Gerald Emerson worked Doyle and Morgan to the limit in their encounter, the second set, scored at 14—12, being the longest of the tournament thus far. The new combination of Tilden and Garland made a good impression in two easy victories, while Pell and Davis looked strong in overcoming the sturdy resistance of Compton and Cecil Donaldson.

MURRAY DEFEATS WILLIAMS.

Champion an Easy Victor by 6-1, 6-3, and 7-5 in Finals at Greenwich.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 20.—Playing in better form than he has at any time during the past season Robert Lindley Murray, present champion, defeated Richard Norris Williams, 2d, in three straight sets on the grass courts of the Greenwich Field Club here this afternoon in the final of the annual invitation tennis tournament of the local club. The final score was 6—1, 6—3, and 7—5. The match was postponed from Monday on account of the rain, and there still remain two matches to be played off in the semi-finals and the mixed doubles some time in September.

Williams was not at his best in the match, being very erratic in the first set, which Murray won with apparent ease. In the second set Williams played frequently to the net and lost many points, but improved greatly in the third set, when he had five to two games on his opponent and a 40—15 score on the next game. Murray, by superior driving and clever returns, turned the tables and won the next three games, tying the score. Williams seemed to weaken and failed to score another game.

The last two games were won by Murray with but little difficulty. Murray played a much steadier game than Williams throughout, but his famous drives and serves, which time and time again seemed to baffle Williams, were largely responsible for his victory.

A large society gallery witnessed the match as well as several practice matches between William Johnston and Maurice McLoughlin, who are preparing for the tournament at Southampton. Murray left immediately after his match for Southampton, where he will play in the men's doubles there tomorrow.

TO SELL TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

J. W. McClelland Will Auction Nine Youngsters at Saratoga.

The scarcity of horses, with race meetings impending in Kentucky and Maryland that will be characterized by the running of overnight races ranging in value from $1,000 to $2,000, and stakes that will be worth all the way from $3,000 to $50,000, has put horsemen of all sorts on their toes at Saratoga. Selling platers change hands after every race in which there is a chance for bidding or the owners of winning platers have to protect them.

It is with interest, therefore, that horsemen are scanning the lists of the names of horses that are to be sold by auction later in the meeting. One of the most important sales to be held in the near future will be that of James W. McClelland. Mr. McClelland probably has more two-year-olds in his barn than any other horseman in the United States and he is the owner of many yearlings that require attention. Upward of thirty brilliantly bred budding racers that are to bear the McClelland silks next season have come up from Kentucky for breaking. Because of this congestion Mr. McClelland will dispose of nine two-year-olds that have been in training pretty much all season.

These youngsters are Far East, a bay colt by Delhi—Off; St. Germain, bay colt by Sea King out of Queen Dixon; Dinty Moore, bay colt by McGee out of Polly Grant; Penelope, bay filly by Sweep out of Josie Cohen; Nancy Ann, bay filly by Plaudit out of Mary Morris; Camalote, bay colt by Bourbon Beau out of Gold Maid; Glen Well, brown colt by Dick Finnell out of Paradise Won; Fair Charity, a bay filly by Horron out of Elizabeth Gilbert, and Gray Gables, a bay colt by Assegai out of Busy Lady.

RENO TO HAVE RACE MEET.

Will Offer a Fall Programme, with a Number of Stake Events.

There is to be a Fall racing meet at Reno, Nev., starting on Sept. 13. There are to be at least nineteen days of racing. Included in the program thus far announced is a $1,000 Derby for three-year olds. There is also to be a $500 Juvenile Championship Stakes for two-year olds.

The first day's racing will include the Opening Handicap, with a value of $400. There are to be overnight handicaps throughout the meeting. Practically all the racers at Cheyenne, Wyo., will go to Reno. Horses from the fair ground tracks at Spokane, Helena, and Sacramento are also expected to be present in numbers. Among the good ones that will be shipped from Cheyenne is the colt Yukon, owned by C. B. Irwin.

Trotting Jottings.

The uncertainties of racing are aptly illustrated by comparing Murphy's showing at Philadelphia last year and this. In 1918 he won half of the program with Chestnut Peter, Oro Fino, Budlight, David Guy, Directum J., Chilcoot, Miss Harris M., and Allen Watts. Last week, out of nine starts, Esther R. was the only one to show in front, while it was also the fist victory placed to her credit this year. Royal Mack put up a splendid battle with Wilkes Brewer and Prince Loree in the 2:06 trot, but was beaten in the final heat by the Nutwood Wilkes mare, which is being driven by Fred Hyde in her Eastern engagements.

Both Geers and Cox were out in the sunshine at the Belmont Park meeting, the former winning with Mollie Knight, Goldie Todd, and Kerrigan, while Cox, in addition to winning with McGregor the Great and Mignola as usual, drove Lu Princeton a mile in 2:02¼, the first half of the trip being trotted in 59¾ seconds. This horse will be up to record breaking form when he and Ante Guy meet in the $2,500 free-for-all at Hartford on Labor Day. Either one of them has a chance to lower the world's race record of 2:01¼, which Hamburg Belle made when she defeated Uhlan at Cleveland in 1909.

Lyman Brusle supplied the surprise of the week when he defeated Natalie the Great in the two-year-old trot with the J. Malcolm Forbes gelding Mr. Dudley in 2:12¾, while Grace Direct's victory over Frank Dewey in 2:06 shows that Cox's handsome pacer is losing the form which made him so conspicuous at the first meeting of the Grand Circuit in Cleveland, as well as at Kalamazoo and Toledo, where he won in 2:02¼.

Dodge continued his winning streak by coming through in front with Hollyrood Kate, and Garrison won with the McEwen gelding Harper.

The returns for the Philadelphia meeting show that, while no change has been made in the list of winning drivers, Cox is gradually creeping up to Murphy, and that Geers is a good third, and will probably keep climbing now that Molly Knight and Kerrigan are winning. Up to the close of the meeting Murphy was credited with twenty-one winning mounts this year, Cox with fourteen, and Geers ten. In the matter of money Murphy has won $26,594; Cox $22,811.85, and Geers, $15,607.25.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Weights for the united double event steeplechase to be run at Belmont Park Terminal Aug. 30 were announced here today. Twenty-four entries have been received. J. E. Griffith's The Brook has been assigned top weight by Handicapper Frank J. Bryan. The Brook will carry 169 pounds, if he starts. SCRATCHES SPOIL SARANAC HANDICAP

Purchase Has a Walkover in Feature Event at Saratoga—Only Two Other Starters.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Sam C. Hildreth's Purchase scored a ridiculously easy victory here today when he captured the Saranac Handicap at a mile, which was the feature on the day's card. Purchase was not even slightly extended at any time to defeat J. H. Rosseter's Passing Shower and J. J. Maher's The Trump, which were the only other starters.

The Saranac is a $3,000 event which in past years has attracted good fields of three-year-olds, among the best of the season, but today all interest in the race was lost when the field was reduced to three starters, two of which had no chance to win. The presence of Purchase, which rose suddenly to fame this season through his victory over Sir Barton, caused owners of other horses entered to scratch until the race was not even a contest. While the owners may have felt justified, they very evidently had little consideration for the patrons who came out to see a race and not a walkover for one horse.

Of the nine horses which had been named on the program today, Commander J. K. L. Ross's War Pennant was regarded as the most likely contender, with Walter M. Jefford's Routledge also well thought of. W. R. Coe had named Over There, but elected to run this colt in another race. However, there was promise of competition as long as War Pennant, which has run some good races in high-class fields, remained in the event. War Pennant has shown a liking for the mud, and it is common gossip at Saratoga that the colt was being prepared with the idea that he could take the measure of Purchase. He had an advantage of seven pounds in the weights and this appeared to be the chance he had been trained for.

When War Pennant was scratched, which was at the last minute, Purchase at once became a prohibitive favorite. He was quoted at 1 to 7, and, considering his opposition, that could be said to be a long price.

Just a Gallop for Purchase.

Passing Shower was 6 to 1, and The Trump went begging at 20 to 1. As a matter of fact, there was little support for any of the horses. The race proved to be just a gallop for Purchase. When the barrier was sprung Passing Shower went to the front and set a fast pace for the first quarter of a mile, with Purchase second. At this point Passing Shower was drawn back and The Trump went into the lead, Knapp still holding Purchase under double wraps in second position and following the pace closely. Through the back stretch it was all Knapp could do to keep Purchase from running away from the others.

Half way around the far turn Knapp decided to let his mount have his own way about the race, and Purchase came up on The Trump so fast that it seemed the latter had stopped. Purchase picked out the best part of the track and came on at a canter, while The Trump fell back several lengths.

Passing Shower had had a rest through the back stretch, and Johnson now sneaked up on Purchase until he had his mount within half a length of the leader. Knapp saw him coming, gave Purchase a nudge, and the big chestnut colt stepped away from the challenger and came over the finish line with a length and a half to spare. He could have made it ten lengths had he been extended, for he was still under wraps and the others were tired.

How easily Purchase ran his race was indicated by a comparison of the time made in the three mile events of the day. Purchase ran the mile in 1:42 1-5, while Over There covered the same distance in a previous race in 1:40 4-5, and Wood Trap came along in the fifth race and ran the mile in 1:40 3-5. The race gave Purchase no opportunity to add to his prestige and indicated nothing except that he has been kept in good condition and will be ready when he meets a real rival.

Over There Defeats Recount.

A much better contest was provided in the second race, the North Creek Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward, which was won by W. R. Coe's Over There. This was his second victory in two days. A number of good handicap horses went to the post against Over There, among them Andrew Miller's Recount, which took the place from Samuel Ross's Crank. Elmendorf, Escoba, Rose d'Or, and Vancouver were other starters.

Over There went into the lead going through the back stretch, and was never seriously threatened. Recount ran a good race and was always close up to the leader, but lacked the speed to overtake the son of Spearmint. Escoba was again a disappointment and failed to become a contender at any stage. Vancouver, which is owned by W. S. Kilmer, broke down early in the race and finished pulled up. It was discovered the gelding had been severely cut, and he may not race again this season.

The North Shore Stable's Woodtrap ran another of his good races and easily won the Clemons Selling Handicap at a mile, defeating Wilfried Viau's Camoufleur, which was an odds-on favorite. F. D. Wier's Tetley was third. Both Woodtrap and Camoufleur are mud runners, but the recent victory of the Viau colt was impressive and he was well supported. Woodtrap left the barrier in front and was never headed. He set a fast pace, and when Camoufleur attempted to come up in the stretch Woodtrap was just getting well under way and had plenty of speed left to win handily.

Shillelagh, 2d, Is Graduated.

The Beach Stable's Shillelagh, 2d, which has been knocking at the door of victory for some time, finally graduated from the maiden class in the third race, a five-furlong dash for two-year-olds. Shillelagh was a 15-to-1 shot in a big field. R. McKeever's Cormoran was second and John Sanford's Jean Bullant took third. The three made a spectacular finish coming down the stretch almost abreast, but Shillelagh drew away near the finish line.

J. W. McClelland's The Trout was another two-year-old to graduate from the maiden class, winning the last race, which was also a five-furlong dash. The Trout beat W. F. Polson's Peace Pennant, which took the place from Padriac, owned by James MacManus. W. R. Coe's David Harum was a strong favorite but failed to get away in front and never was a contender.

MURPHY HAS A BIG DAY IN HOME CITY

Poughkeepsie Reinsman Drives Three Winners in Grand Circuit Opening Up the Hudson.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Thomas W. Murphy signalized the opening day of the 1919 Grand Circuit Meeting in Poughkeepsie here today by driving home three winners in the four events in which he had entries. The Poughkeepsie reinsman piloted Royal Mac and Direct C. Burnett to easy straight heat victories in The Knickerbocker 2:06 trot and The Hudson Valley 2:06 pace, and topped off his afternoon's work by taking the 2:20 trot with Doctor Nick. Considering the track, which was still heavy from recent rains, time performances were creditable.

The third event on the program, the 2:12 trot, went to Peter Worthy after a hard battle with Labe Riddell, which broke through on the winner and took the second heat by inches in a driving finish. Prince S. captured the 2:15 trot for amateur drivers.

The crowd was the largest first day attendance in the history of Grand Circuit racing in Poughkeepsie.

PEOPLE MENTALLY BROKEN

Recently Returned British Observer Says Collapse of Germany Is Not Realized Outside.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—It is natural that people should ask many questions of one who has come out of Germany after a stay there of nearly five months. "Has Germany really changed much?" is perhaps the query which is put to me most frequently. It is a somewhat hard question to answer briefly, for there are many particulars in which the Fatherland seems scarcely changed at all. War and revolution appear to have swept past and altered nothing by their tempests. But in other directions five months are scarcely sufficient to accustom one to the tremendous changes which have taken place.

Not many days ago I had occasion to walk along the Siegesallel, and it was something of a surprise to see workmen busy in that vainglorious Valhalla spring-cleaning the pompously posed statues of the ex-Kaiser's ancestors. The revolutionaries of any other country would surely have made short work of such glaring reminders of the past with which they had broken. One evening I tried to obtain a seat at the Deutsches Theatre, where Shakespeare's "Coriolanus" was being played, but the house was sold out. A theatre which was flourishing with "Charlie's Aunt" was likewise booked up, and at the Theater des Westens—I think it was—someone was playing Mimosa San for the 2,000th time. The English musical comedy, "The Geisha," with its untranslatable lines preserved in English, had been running continuously in Berlin since the revolution, with a crowded house every night.

Capital is "Boxing Mad."

Large restaurants and cafés all over the city are lively with the music of all nations. It is boxing which perhaps attracts the people most of all. Berlin, indeed, may be said to have gone boxing mad, and he must be a great enthusiast who can keep count of all the different championships in the noble art which have been fought. Unter den Linden during the sunny midday hours and in the evening, with its cafés and restaurants, motion-picture houses, and shops, and shady centre Wald, is as gay as ever it was. The shops make a tremendous display of articles of luxury to catch the war profiteer, who, I think, flourished more in Germany than in all the other great waring countries put together.

Night life, despite restrictions and official edicts, flourishes exceedingly, with its gaudy and material gaiety made possible by gambling dens, dancing halls, cabarets, bars, and grillrooms. Gambling has seized hold of Berlin's gilded age and youth to a terrible extent. The dens where baccarat is mostly played are secret places, known only to the initiated, for the watchfulness of the authorities makes Tibetan exclusiveness necessary, but they exist by hundreds, and really unbelievable amounts of money are won and lost nightly. No, in all those things Berlin has not changed much.

But turn off Unter den Linden into Friedrichstrasse, and the other, the changed Germany, still strikes you as forcibly as ever it has done since the revolution. There you can buy matches—very bad ones—at 4 pence a box from a man who, still in his shabby "feldgrau," was once in one of the famous Guards regiments. There you recognize how far war has broken and reduced a nation once so great and formidable. All along the street you will find many of his one-time comrades selling all sorts of things. It is in Friedrichstrasse that one meets the vanguard of starving, broken Germany—the poor hawking or lounging in the streets, the bourgeoisie in offices and shops, both classes starving and their ranks being thinned terribly by death.

The other evening I walked along Friedrichstrasse. In the course of a quarter of an hour I saw four people faint and fall down. That speaks plainly, as do the following statistics regarding Berlin: In 1913 the number of births was 40,833 and the number of deaths 28,067; in 1917 the number of births was 18,725 and the number of deaths 34,122. These figures concern only the civilian population. Go into the quarters of the city where those two classes live and you will find the rations less satisfactory now than ever.

The Bourgeoisie Suffers Most.

The bourgeoisie is, I think, more heavily hit by circumstances than the working classes. The latter often have the benefit of special rations for heavy work, and their expenditure is naturally less than that of the middle classes, against whom in Germany, as elsewhere, everything conspires. I know a family of three which before the war lived well inside £500 a year. It now spends on food alone, although exercising the greatest economy, £100 a month. Tea, sugar, butter, and all the common necessities of life have to be purchased secretly at something like twelve times their pre-war cost or have to be done without. There is no fat; so think what most household cookery is like. The bread is still as bad as ever. Real coffee is an almost forgotten thing. You see people staring curiously at pieces of toilet soap in the shop window. You can imagine, therefore, how general health must suffer. Coals are indeed "black diamonds"; gas must be husbanded with the utmost care.

Prices on the whole, I think, tend to rise, and, although all parts of the country do not suffer equally, matters are bad enough everywhere to produce one general effect. Beaten far more completely than the outer world even yet believes, Germany, with about one-third of the food she had before she let war loose on the world, is a nation broken not only physically, but mentally. The mental fatigue of the people in general is such that as a rule they simply believe the last thing they hear or read. I have attended many meetings where political subjects were discussed. The whole audience would applaud one speaker and then just as heartily cheer the next, although he took exactly the opposite attitude. Germany is suffering from a bad mental breakdown.

Austria's Action Causes the Withdrawal of Orient Express

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The Orient Express, which has been operating for the past four months, has been withdrawn. The departure of the train was canceled yesterday, but beginning this evening the cancellation was made permanent, so far as present conditions appear. The suspension of this service, it is announced, was caused by the Austrian Government's refusal to supply a locomotive to haul the train over Austrian territory, alleging lack of coal.

GREEKS OF THRACE APPEAL TO AMERICA

200,000 Refugees Protest Against Action of Our Delegates in Paris.

RIDICULE BULGARS' CLAIMS

Only 6 Per Cent., They Say, Occupy Territory Which It Is Proposed to Cede to Them.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Aug. 20.—The attitude of the American peace delegation on the Thracian question is causing profound astonishment and dismay to the Greeks of Thrace, inasmuch as it ignores and violates the very principles for which President Wilson and the American people stand, namely, the right of self-determination and condemnation of the old diplomacy whereby lands and populations were disposed of without being consulted.

It is a well-known fact that of the total population in Bulgarian and Turkish Thrace the Turks and Greeks together form 85 per cent., and the Bulgarians only 6 per cent., and that the latter are nowhere in compact groups. Nevertheless, the American delegates are obstinately insisting, against the unanimous opinion of the other members of the Supreme Council, in putting this absurd minority in control of the country against the avowed will of the overwhelming majority, on the plea that Bulgaria needs an outlet on the Aegean Sea.

But this outlet can be provided without giving Bulgaria political control of any Thracian territory, inasmuch as Greece offers all facilities for Bulgarian commerce, not only at Thracian, but also at Macedonian, ports, and this offer can be secured and solemnized by international guarantees.

But, aside from these facts, it is monstrous that Bulgaria, who fought for three years with all her strength on the side of absolutism and militarism, and thereby prolonged the war, should now be championed by America, the home stronghold of democracy, while Greece, who revolted against her former King and his pro-German autocracy in order to fight on the side of democracy and placed all her resources at the service of the Allies, should see her unredeemed children robbed of their right of self-determination through American opposition.

We are sure this attitude of the American delegates cannot meet the approval of the mass of liberty-loving American people.

It is entirely true that the Bulgarian people were entrapped into the war against their will by their rulers and hence are not responsible for this and other crimes against civilization. If they had had any sympathy with the nations fighting for the world's liberties they could have revolted against their rulers, like the Greeks; but, on the contrary, all parties and the entire press of Bulgaria applauded and supported with enthusiasm their rulers' policy and conducted the war with unparalleled ferocity in every part of the peninsula where the Bulgarian armies penetrated, as has been attested by international investigation. Hence they should be dealt with with the same severity as the Germans.

Therefore, we, the refugees of the Greek race from Thrace, numbering nearly 200,000 souls, driven from our homes by Bulgarian and Turkish savagery to seek a temporary refuge in Greece until the end of the war, protest indignantly against this attempt to frustrate our legitimate claim to freedom for our native land, and we hereby appeal to the conscience and justice of the people and press of the United States, asking them to assert once more the great principles of liberty and self-determination, now apparently ignored by the American delegates in Paris, and to declare their will that the Thracians shall not be handed over again to Bulgarian tyranny and misrule. Here we voice the wishes and sentiments not only of the Greek population of Thrace, but also of the Turkish inhabitants, whose leaders have already put their wishes on record in writing at Paris.

The artificial and unjust solution proposed by the American delegation will only create immediate trouble and future wars. If peace is to settle down upon the Balkans it will be possible only by the application of the principle of self-determination and by strengthening the democracies of the peninsula.

We are sure the American people will refuse to be the cause of such injustice as is proposed in the Thracian settlement by their delegates in Paris.

REPORT SEVERAL DEAD IN VIRGINIA WRECK

Norfolk & Western Train, with Passengers Bound Here, Is Derailed.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 21.—A number of passengers were reported killed and many injured in the wrecking of fast train No. 2 of the Norfolk and Western Railway near Boyce, Va., forty-five miles from here at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Five cars were reported to have left the tracks, including two Pullmans en route from southern points to New York. All were reported badly wrecked.

The train, en route from Roanoke, Va., to Hagerstown, was said to have been running at a high rate of speed. When a few hundred yards north of the Boyce Station one of the cars jumped the track, resulting in the derailment of four others. Urgent calls for physicians were sent to Berryville, White Post and Boyce, and a special also carried physicians to the scene from this city.

AUSTRIANS' ACTION MAY DELAY TREATY

Peace Mission Says It Must Submit Final Text to Vienna Government.

WEIMAR WORKING FOR PEACE

Bill to Give Effect to Treaty Terms Is Introduced in the National Assembly.

PARIS, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.)—The Austrian delegation told the Supreme Council today that it would be necessary to take the completed text of the treaty to Vienna and to submit it to the Assembly for approval before the delegates could sign it. This suggestion brought expressions of surprise from members of the Council, as it had been thought that the Austrian delegation had full powers. The Council is urging the Austrians to make some arrangement to sign the treaty withou taking it to Vienna.

The signing of the treaty, as a result of this unexpected development, it was said, might be postponed until well into September. The completed treaty text will not be given to the Austrians, it is generally understood, for at least two weeks, and if they insist upon taking it to Vienna before signature that will probably add ten days to the delay.

Premier Clemenceau, who has been on a brief vacation in La Vendée, is expected to return to Paris tonight and to sit with the Supreme Council tomorrow.

The Council is endeavoring to hasten completion of the Bulgarian and Hungarian treaties.

The Supreme Council yesterday appointed a committee with the special duty of answering the Austrian note concerning Austrian interests outside Europe. The American member of the committee is Mr. Dreisel. The Chairman is Jean Gout of France.

Herr Sue, a prominent German Socialist, will arrive at Versailles soon to take up with allied authorities questions connected with the delivery of coal by Germany.

Mme. Theodoroff, wife of the head of the Bulgarian peace delegation, has arrived here with her children.

BERLIN, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—A bill providing ways and means for carrying out the peace terms was presented before the National Assembly at Weimar yesterday with the approval of the Imperial Council. It is a far-reaching measure, the purpose of which is to set definite limits and establish control of all sorts of activities in commerce, finance, and industries bearing on the means of meeting the responsibilities laid upon Germany by the conditions of peace.

It empowers the Government, for instance, to demand and enforce industrial, mercantile, and forest work closely concerned with the work of paying indemnities. The Government is authorized to demand information about wages and material and may inspect the books, papers, and business documents of firms, as well as fix prices, adjust labor conditions, and supervise the efficiency of industrial equipment. It also imposes penalties up to three years' imprisonment and a fine of 50,000 marks for illegal payments of money.

EX-KAISER TO MOVE IN FALL.

Expected to Take Possession of the Huis Doorn in Early Autumn.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 18.—Negotiations for the purchase of the ex-Kaiser's new residence, the Huis Doorn, have been completed. It is not yet known when he will move, but it will probably be in the early Fall, as the former owner of the estate, Baroness von Heemstra de Beaufort, has stipulated that the new house which she has purchased shall be ready by that time. There has been considerable excitement in the vicinity of Amerongen and Doorn for some days in view of the rumors of the ex-Kaiser's intention of buying the estate. He visited Doorn last week and since then the negotiations have been proceeding quickly.

In well informed circles here the idea is prevalent that he has changed his mind regarding his plans for returning to the Fatherland and has decided on a policy of "wait and see" in the hope that the project for his trial may finally fall through.

The Huis Doorn is a beautiful estate dating from the fourteenth century. It has changed hands many times, but has always belonged to people well known in history.

AMERONGEN, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—The former German Empress personally selected "The House of Doorn," which William Hohenzollern has purchased, as the future home in which she and her one-time imperial husband hope to settle down and live the lives of country gentlefolk in Holland.

Although the deeds for the sale of "The House of Doorn" were signed only last Friday at Amerongen by the Baroness van Heemstra de Beaufort, the owner of the estate, and the ex-Emperor's secretary, von Isleman, former Empress Auguste Victoria decided in favor of the purchase of the Doorn estate early in August, when she made a visit to Doorn.

The house, though rich in history and imposing in appearance, has only twelve rooms, in addition to small chambers for servants. From the main highway tramline, which is only 200 yards away, a view of the house, in the midst of a grove, is presented to all passers-by. The front of the house is accessible only through the gatekeeper's lodge. Fronting the building is a rose garden and a park filled with stone-benched shady nooks and a stagnant pond filled with water lilies. The ivy-covered building resembles an old English country house.

The House of Doorn was finished in 1356, and was fitted out in order to serve for the Knights of St. Martin. It was damaged in the strife in following years and was rebuilt in the seventeenth century. The estate once consisted of 800 acres, but it is said that only about 60 acres were included in the sale to William Hohenzollern. The price has not been stated.

The former Empress's heart again is troubling her. Dr. Foerstner made frequent visits to the castle of Amerongen yesterday and today.

EX-KAISER'S HEALTH GOOD.

His Physician Declares Catarrh Is His Only Ailment.

AMERONGEN, Aug. 4, (Associated Press.)—Recent reports from Germany and other places have given rise to the belief that the former German Emperor is seriously sick, suffering from a general breakdown as a result of worry.

The correspondent, who has seen the former monarch nearly every day since the armistice was signed, is in a position to state that the one-time war lord is in no sense of the word a broken man. His general health is excellent and his body is kept in good condition by his daily three hours of wood sawing.

Dr. Carl Foerster, the former Emperor's body physician, who has given up his entire private practice in Germany in order to remain in faithful attendance upon him, says the abdicated ruler has no constitutional disease whatsoever. In fact, Foerster declares, the former ruler is remarkably healthy, both physically and mentally. The only thing with which he is affected is the weakness of the mucous membranes of his ears, throat and nose, which renders him liable to frequent catarrh.

One of these attacks of catarrh has been the cause of the breaking off of the ex-Emperor's wood-sawing exercise during the past three weeks. When he ceased operations on the timber on Count von Bentinck's estate in mid-July the one-time Emperor had sawn just a little more than 6,300 trees into logs.

36,000 American Troops in France by Sept. 1, Says Baker Praising Speed of Demobilization

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Secretary Baker declared today that the demobilization of the American Army had been one of the "greatest accomplishments of the war."

"The demobilization record to date is one of the most splendid successes of the war," said Mr. Baker. "It ranks favorably with the greatest achievements of the war. In one month alone we brought home more than a third of a million men, this with little help from the British and French shipping that had largely been withdrawn at that time. The British and French took more than 50 per cent. of our men overseas, but almost single-handed we brought back as many as 364,000 men in the month of June, more men than were ever transported overseas in a single month.

"Demobilization during the present war has far eclipsed the work either of the civil or the Spanish wars. To date we have brought back from overseas more than 1,888,000 men. We have demobilized all but about 500,000 of our 4,000,000 men.

"In one month after the signing of the armistice we had demobilized 351,203 men and 16,000 officers. In 1898 it took ten months to muster out 197,397 of the 216,256 officers and men serving when the American forces in the Spanish-American war were at their peak. Certain units were demobilized from the Philippines even later than that. In the civil war the strength of the volunteer army was 1,034,064 when demobilization began. It took from May 1, 1865, to Nov. 1, 1866, or eighteen months, to muster out this force. In approximately two and a half months after the armistice we had mustered out 1,023,884 men and 62,000 officers, thus more than equaling the eighteen months' record of the civil war.

"There are at present approximately 350,000 emergency troops to be discharged. There are less than 100,000 men now in Europe, and under present plans there will be less than 35,000 men in France on Sept. 1.

There are already more than 100,000 new enlistments and about 85,000 new enlistments are needed to bring the enlisted quota of the army up to the authorized 225,000 strength.

"Further figures on enlistments in the regular army show that 21,671 of the men newly enlisted have expressed their preferences as regards places of service. Of these 12,754 have expressed a desire to serve in Europe; 37,344 want to serve in the infantry, while 11,878 express a preference for the cavalry."

FIRST DIVISION WILL PARADE HERE

TO BEAR FULL WAR OUTFIT

Pershing Expected to Review the First Fully Equipped Division to March at Home.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Aug. 20.—As the last element of American troops were leaving the Rhine this morning word came from the United States War Department that the 1st Division, U. S. Regulars, is to be paraded in New York and Washington in full wartime equipment. No returning division of the A. E. F. has as yet paraded in the United States in full equipment. Troops have been transported home separate from their guns and their war paraphernalia. But the War Department has decided to give the American people the sight of one full division with all its equipment, and the 1st Division—first to land in Europe and last to go home—has been selected for that honor. Equipment sufficient for the division has reached the United States, and as soon as the 1st can be assembled on the other side it will be fitted out just as if it were going into battle, and then be placed on exhibition. The first ships to sail carrying the 1st Division men sailed yesterday from Brest.

The 1st Division will give an excellent picture of an American division in full trim. Infantry ranks will be complete, the artillery will have all its guns and caissons, the hospital corps will have all its ambulances. Everything will be in line down to the field kitchens and "delousing" plant. The 1st will give the folks back home their only chance to see what an American division of 30,000 men, with all its tools of war, looks like.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The 1st Division of regulars, the first American combat unit to arrive in France following the entrance of this country into the European War, will arrive in New York the middle of September, probably during the same week of General Pershing's own landing at that port. This famous division, which fought with such gallantry in all of the major operations in which the Americans took part, will parade in New York City and General Pershing probably will be one of the reviewing officers.

General Pershing cabled the War Department today that he intends to sail from Brest on the transport Mount Vernon, which sails for New York Sept. 1.

The 1st Division, totaling about 28,000 officers and enlisted men, began moving to embarkation ports in France last Friday and the first of the combat units are expected to arrive in New York the latter part of next week. As the units arrive they will proceed to Camps Mills and Merritt where they will remain until the day of the parade. After the parade in New York the division will be transferred to Camp Meade and on or about Sept. 27 will parade in this city with President Wilson as the chief reviewing officer. The division returns under the command of Major Gen. E. F. McGlachlin. The division will return with all its battle equipment, including artillery.

This division, composed of troops of the U. S. Regular Army, is justly proud of its claim as being "first division in France, first in sector, first to fire a shot at the Germans, first to attack, first to conduct a raid, first to be raided, first to capture prisoners, first to inflict casualties, first to suffer casualties, first to be cited singly in general orders, first in the number of division, corps and army commanders and general staff officers produced from its personnel."

It was composed of the 16th, 18th, 26th and 28th Infantry Regiments, the 5th, 6th and 7th Artillery Regiments, the 1st Engineer Regiment and train, the 2d Field Signal Battalion, and the 3d, 4th and 5th Ambulance Companies and Field Hospital.

The 1st Division was 220 days in the front line. It captured 163 officers and 6,304 enlisted men of the German Army. In material it captured 119 pieces of field artillery, sixty-two trench mortars, and 413 machine guns. Its casualties totaled 21,612 men, of whom 4,411 were killed or died of wounds. The replacements sent to the division totaled 30,206 officers and men. The soldiers of the division won 356 Distinguished Service Crosses.

KIDNAP EXPRESS DRIVER.

Man Dragged from His Wagon by Auto Bandits.

A truck belonging to the American Railway Express Company and its load of merchandise, valued at several thousand dollars, was stolen from the driver and his helper late last night, according to the story the two men told the police. They said that four men in a large auto committed the crime, which occurred at Watt and Greenwich Streets.

Maurice Griffin of 31 Commerce Street, a driver employed by the American Railway Express Company, was found lying in the street at Forty-seventh Street and Tenth Avenue shortly before midnight by Patrolman Thomas Flynn of the West Forty-seventh Street Station. Still later Harry McEwen, the helper, appeared at the Beach Street Station and told the police of the robbery.

Griffin said that four men in an auto had driven close beside his truck and that two of them had suddenly leaped to the seat where he was driving. They dragged him into the touring car, he continued, and then had attempted to drug him. He fought them off and finally they threw him to the road just where Patrolman Flynn found him. McEwen also declared he was dragged into the touring car and later thrown out. Neither man had any idea what happened to the truck and its load.

BRITISH TRADE MOVE AMAZES AMERICANS

LOOK FOR A JOKER IN IT

Inclined to Think This Will Be Found in Regulations to Protect "Key Industries."

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Lloyd George's announcement of the removal of general restrictions on imports after Sept. 1 has taken American traders by surprise and left them rather bewildered. It was so much more than they had expected that some were inclined today to look for a joker in it.

"If the present license system had been renewed or if we had been permitted to double our imports, we would have been satisfied," one big automobile man said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "but, considering how strong British manufacturers are in Parliament, it seems impossible to believe entire freedom of imports is really intended. It may be you will find a nigger in the woodpile in regulations for protection of 'key industries' to prevent dumping."

Another view taken today is that the Premier's policy is framed with a disciplinary idea. He sees that British manufacturers, and still more British labor, must be awakened to the seriousness of the country's industrial situation, and that it will be all the better for a little injurious competition.

"Lloyd George realizes," said one of the advocates of this theory, "that production costs must come down, and labor especially must work harder, but he will never allow American competition to increase sufficiently to threaten the existence of any British industry. If that were to happen, the Board of Trade would find some means of reimposing restrictions."

"Meanwhile, do you consider British conditions are sufficiently stable to make it safe for the American exporter to seek a market over here?" he was asked.

"We shall know better," was the answer, "in a few days, when the list of key industries is published. But considering the difficulty in this free trade country of reimposing restrictions if ever these are relaxed and the possibility that in a few months' time there will be a change of government, and not improbably a Labor Ministry, I think American trade would be quite justified in taking the risk."

The main difficulty of extending American sales in Great Britain, in the view of Americans as well as of the Premier, is the state of exchange. They are very doubtful whether considering the amount of foodstuffs England must buy from the United States there will be any rapid recovery, and they do not see that there are a very large number of American manufacturers who would be willing to abandon the flourishing home market in order to compete with the British on their own soil, subject to handicaps of heavy freight rates and the position of exchange.

Consequently the American Chamber of Commerce here has set itself, frankly for selfish reasons, to encourage British manufacturers to invade the American markets. It caculates that if they would sell in the United States the exchange situation would be alleviated, and that would give American trade a much better chance in the British market.

Interviews with a representative of the British manufacturers show that they are very much disappointed with the abolition of the import restrictions, but the free trade Westminster Gazette is not satisfied. It declines to offer premature congratulations, and says:

"With his three proposals for restricting foreign trade the Prime Minister is on slippery ground and very little push from the protectionist wing of his party will send him glissading to the bottom. If the motive power of the Government is protectionist, almost all industry can be embraced under the three heads of dumping protection for key industries and the special provision through the powers given to prevent undue importation of goods supposed to have an advantage over home manufacturers owing to differences of exchange."

ERZBERGER FATHERED FLAME-THROWING PLAN

German Conservatives Expose the Hypocrisy of His Attacks on Militarism.

GENEVA, Aug. 19.—Erzberger's campaign on revelations against the Prussian militarists has led the German Conservative press to show up the present apostle of pacifism and democracy in his former warlike rôle. It was Erzberger who took the inventor of the flame thrower, a certain Herr Fiedler, under his special protection and induced the Minister for War, General von Falkenhayn, to adopt this ruthless weapon. The following letter from Erzberger to Falkenhayn is published:

"BERLIN, Sept. 17, 1914."

"Your Excellency will allow me to submit herewith a memorandum concerning a flame thrower invented by Herr Fiedler. The matter is already known to your Excellency, but I consider the further suggestion to make use of the new invention from airships to be a very happy one. All considerations of international law and humanity, which were all very well in times of peace as a subject for conversation in the salons of Berlin, must now, in my opinion, be absolutely discarded. We must gain victory also over England, and I believe this invention is eminently calculated to realize precisely this aim."

The Germans never used flame throwers on airships because the plan proved impracticable; but Erzberger's advocacy of their use in Zeppelin raids is certainly piquant.

COUNCIL IS ASKED TO END COAL FAMINE

Poland and Other European Nations Seek Its Aid to Increase Output.

FIGHTING PREVENTS MINING

Labor Disputes and Unsettled Boundaries Are Factors in the Huge Shortage.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Henry Adams was something of a prophet when he said in his "Education of Henry Adams" that coal was to be the future king of the world. There was some recognition of that fact today when the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference turned aside from the lesser kings and archdukes to consider the menacing and deplorable coal situation existing in Europe today because of the inability of various nations to agree on their boundaries and settle down within those boundaries and go to work. Attention was given to the matter in response to a request from two sources—the Poles, and representatives of various other European nations who have taken Hoover's advice to organize a European Coal Commission.

The Council's attention was particularly called to Silesia, where the present mine production is negligible as compared to what it might be. There is a strike of mine laborers there, but that is only part of the difficulty. There is also fighting in Silesia between Germans and Poles, and Spartacide disturbances besides, the net result being that the mines cannot be worked, regardless of the fact that the European coal shortage is now estimated at 24,000,000 tons a month.

The Supreme Council is asked to do something immediately to improve the situation. Naturally the Council is desirous to comply with the request, but it has not yet decided what method will be effective. There is no suggestion that troops be sent to compel order, but a proposition is now under consideration to send a military commission of investigation representing the five big powers. There is hope that the mere sending of such a commission will serve to improve conditions.

Europeans are no longer blind to the serious coal situation, which threatens to produce as much distress—or more—next Winter because of lack of fuel as in any Winter during the war. They realize here, after a long period of skepticism, that the United States, with its coal obligation to South America, cannot export to Europe 5 per cent. of what is needed.

Speaking of coal, there is an interesting question as to what is going to be considered the function of the Executive Council of the League of Nations at the outset of the League's existence. This question, only academic at present, may grow into a controversy and have a direct bearing on the fixing of the boundaries of the Sarre Valley. Needless to say, until those questions are settled and the administration of the valley is in smooth working order, the Sarre coal industry cannot be expected to reach its full capacity.

There are three points in the German treaty which have an important bearing on this question. The treaty provides within itself that it shall be in force as soon as three of the big powers have ratified it. The Sarre Valley section of the treaty contains this stipulation: "A commission composed of five members—one appointed by France, one by Germany, and three by the Council of the League of Nations, which will select the nationals of other powers—will be constituted within fifteen days from the coming into force of the present treaty, to trace on the spot the frontier line."

Hence, in reference to the Sarre Valley, the treaty requires that something be done within fifteen days after the treaty is put in force by the Council of the League of Nations. That part of the treaty which is the covenant of the League says the Council shall consist of representatives of the United States, France, the British Empire, Italy, Japan, and four other member States. But the treaty will be in force undoubtedly much longer than fifteen days before all the five big powers have ratified it and thereby qualified for membership in the Council of the League.

For example, England has already ratified it. Similar action is expected soon in France and Japan; so the Treaty of Versailles will probably be in force long before the American Senate finally ratifies it, and thereby automatically puts the United States into the Executive Council of the League, and the fifteen-day limit on the Sarre Valley provision will have expired.

So there is the question: Can this time limit be ignored, despite the very plain language of the treaty, or may the Executive Council of the League of Nations exist and function without representation of all five of the big powers, despite the very plain language of another part of the same document?

197 Hiding in Germany May Never Be Taken—Stowaway Wants to Come Here.

COBLENZ, Aug. 20.—In the final clean-up of the A. E. F. the problem of the man absent without leave is no small one. There are several thousand American soldiers loose in Europe after going away from their units without permission. Some of these will never be garnered, but army officials are doing their best to reduce the number to a minimum.

There is a special problem in those soldiers who leave their units in Germany, don civilian clothes and, speaking the language of the country, drop out of sight of other Americans. One hundred and ninety-seven of these are being sought. Several hundred American soldiers, after being discharged, are staying in Germany rather than go home. These are fully within their rights. It is the men who are still in the army for whom officials are looking.

Army agents, looking for A. W. O. L.'s, yesterday arrested John Bailey, aged 16. The youth said he had stowed away almost two years ago with the 42d Division, of which his father was a member. He played camp follower until his father was killed in July, and a month later, after he had joined his brother in the 26th Division, his brother, too, was killed. Young Bailey then hooked up with the 32d Division, following it into Germany. When the 32d left for home he drifted to Coblenz and joined with a company of military police. This company went home last week, the commanding officers refusing to take the boy, who was not on the rolls. When arrested yesterday young Bailey was turned over to the headquarters at Coblenz, which will send him back to the States. Bailey says he has no relatives, but wants to go to a friend in New York.

France Gets German Coal.

Leave Our Dead in France, Advises General Pershing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—General Pershing, in a cablegram to the War Department, has expressed the opinion that the bodies of American soldiers who died abroad should be left near where they fell.

"I believe that, could these soldiers speak for themselves, they would wish to be left undisturbed where, with their comrades, they fought the last fight," General Pershing said. "Those who rest in England gave their lives in the same cause and their remains represent the same salvation as those who lie on the battlefields.

"The graves of our soldiers constitute, if they are allowed to remain, a perpetual reminder to our Allies of the liberty and ideals upon which the greatness of America rests. I think the sentiments above outlined are held by many who have given this subject thought. These sentiments should appeal to the relatives and friends. I recommend that none of our dead be removed from Europe unless their nearest relatives so demand after a full understanding of all the sentimental reasons against such removal, and further recommend that immediate steps be taken for permanently improving and beautifying our cemeteries."

W. A. DUNLAP AND FIRST WIFE REWED

Late Hatter's Son Remarries Lulu Freer Dunlap After Divorce of Many Years.

NOW RICH MINE OWNER

His Second Wife, a Manicure, Whom He Wed in 1907, Divorced Him in France in 1914.

William A. Dunlap, a son of the late Robert Dunlap, who made a fortune in hats, was remarried on Aug. 11 in the West to his first wife, who was formerly Miss Lulu B. Freer of Monticello, N. Y. The statement of his marriage taking place on Aug. 11 was made from the residence of his mother, Mrs. Dunlap, 43 Fifth Avenue, last evening. Mr. Dunlap and his first wife were divorced years ago, not long after their first marriage, which took place in 1895. Twelve years later, in the Spring of 1907, he married, a few days after their first meeting, Miss Lavender J. Byers, a handsome manicure of about 17, employed in the shop of Mary E. Peart in New York.

In 1912 Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap went to England to live, she having been born there. On their return visit here in 1913 the customs officials seized jewels and gowns, claiming duty to the amount of $50,000. The Dunlaps had made no effort to conceal the property, as they claimed they were nonresidents. After months of controversy and legal proceedings, in May, 1915, Mrs. Dunlap gave a check for $26,148 to the authorities and her promise to pay the Government $10,000 more the following January, the total making the full amount of the duty she would have had to pay had she not attempted to bring the jewels and furs in without declaration, in the belief that she was not taxable. Part of the jewels were held as security for the $10,000, and the rest were returned to her, she agreeing to take them out of the country with her.

Nothing had been published until now that Mr. Dunlap and his second wife had been divorced, but Mrs. Lavender Dunlap, the second wife, who lives in Garden City, L. I., said last evening over the telephone, in response to inquiries, that she obtained a divorce in Paris in 1914 from Mr. Dunlap, alleging incompatibility. Her daughter Lavender, now about 10 years old, lives with her.

Mr. Dunlap, who was associated with his father in the hat business until the latter's death, then branched off to the buying of mines, and in addition to the fortune made in hats he has now acquired another in mining properties. He and the first—and last—Mrs. Dunlap have not returned to this city.

ALBANIANS CABLE APPEAL TO SENATE

Ask Its Protection Against "Imperialism" of Italians, Greeks and Serbs.

PARIS, Aug. 20, (Associated Press.)—The Albanian delegation to the Peace Conference, headed by Monsignor Louis Bunca, has sent by cable an appeal to "the President of the United States Senate" and Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, asking for protection against the "imperialism" of their neighbors.

The Greeks, Italians, and Serbs are constantly encroaching on Albanian territory, according to the Albanian representatives, who urge that a plebiscite be granted to determine the boundaries of Albania. The appeal reads as follows:

"In this critical period of Albania's history its delegation addresses itself to the sentiments of justice of the United States Senate, imploring its powerful support of the rights of the Albanian people. Albania, after struggles to recover its liberty and after being deprived of half of its territory in favor of its neighbors, in 1913 established an independent State. Just as Belgium's neutrality guaranteed by the great Powers was violated, so was Albania's from the beginning of the war, first by Allied troops, then by enemy armies.

"Albania was transformed into a battlefield and knew the horrors of war. It saw itself covered with ruins, and thousands of its children perishing with hunger. At the proclamation of the principle of the rights of peoples, issuing from America, the Albanians took up arms to fight alongside of the Allies in an effort to save their country.

"After the Entente victory, which signified the triumph of right and justice, the Albanians formulated and presented to the Peace Conference their national claims. They had the certainty of seeing the restoration to their country of the Albanian territories incorporated into the neighboring States as a result of the Balkan war.

"For the inhabitants of these territories who went through the horrors of the Greek invasion, and who today are still delivered, as they were in the past, to premeditated massacres of extermination by the Serbs, the Albanian delegation asked several times from the Peace Conference the right of a plebiscite under the guarantee of American troops; but, instead, they see their country today menaced with dismemberment.

"In the application of the secret treaty of London of 1915, Italy insists, with force, upon annexing Valona, with the large hinterland; Greece claims northern Epirus, and Serbia claims the northern part of Albania. Thus, when the Jugoslavs, the Italians, and the Greeks deal with Fiume, Dalmatia, and Thrace, the right of the principle of nationality prevails, but they refuse to acknowledge the same when they deal with their pretensions in Albania.

"The cry of distress of the Albanian people is smothered by the powerful imperialism of their neighbors. The hope which the Albanians have fixed their eyes upon is America, and from her again they expect salvation. All Albanians prefer American assistance to guide them in their political life.

"In the name of this martyred people, the Albanian delegation prays that you raise your voice to save their country from catastrophe and secure their independence."

REDS PUSH SUCCESS AGAINST KOLCHAK

Anti-Bolshevist Forces Have Abandoned Tiumen, East of Siberian Border.

RADICALS CAPTURE ILETSK

Even Cadet School Reserves Have Been Sent Against Kolchak's Army.

DENIKIN MAKES GAINS

Takes Three Towns in the South on the Dnieper—Rumanians Ready to Join.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Dispatches from Omsk today confirm advices which reached London on Aug. 14 that the retreating anti-Bolshevist forces of Admiral Kolchak have abandoned Tiumen, 150 miles southwest of Tobolsk and just east of the Russian-Siberian border, which was one of the Admiral's main bases of supply during his advance into the rich mining districts to the west.

On the eastern front also the Red forces have occupied Iletsk, forty miles southwest of Orenburg, after a fierce battle, according to an official statement sent out by wireless from the Soviet Army headquarters at Moscow.

Reports from Petrograd received in Stockholm say that the Bolsheviki have even sent the cadet school reserves against Admiral Kolchak, in pursuance of a plan to exploit to the utmost their successes on the northern front, which are considered the most important. The main ammunition dump at Nizhni-Novgorod, which supplies the troops fighting against Kolchak, has been destroyed by an explosion, believed to have been planned, these reports add.

An official announcement from Moscow admits continued retreat of the Red army in the south and the occupation by General Denikin's forces of Kherson, Nikolaieff, and Cherkasy, on the Dnieper River below Kiev.

It is reported that some of the most prominent representatives of the anti-Bolshevist movement will meet within a few days in Stockholm to plan an offensive on a large scale against Petrograd, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen. General Judenitch, in command of the Russo-Esthonian army operating against Petrograd, and General Lianczow already have arrived in Stockholm and conferred with General Skoropadski, former Hetman of the Ukraine, says the correspondent.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Rumanian military authorities are preparing for an offensive east of the Dniester River for the purpose of joining forces with General Denikin's army in Southern Russia, according to the Echo de Paris.

WANT TROOPS BROUGHT HOME

Relatives and Friends of Soldiers in Siberia Petition the President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A delegation from Chicago bearing petitions signed by 100,000 relatives and friends of 4,000 Illinois men now serving with the American forces in Russia, called at the White House today to urge that the troops, composing the 27th and 31st Infantry regiments, be returned home immediately.

The visitors did not see the President, but Secretary Tumulty said he would make an engagement for them later.

Representative Rhodes, Republican, of Missouri, asked the Secretary of State, through a resolution today, to inform the House how long American troops would be retained in Siberia.

Two other questions asked by Mr. Rhodes were how many Japanese and Italian soldiers were in Siberia, and what was the Siberian policy of Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan. His resolution stated that the War Department had said there were 8,500 American troops now in Siberia, while Great Britain and France "had none." Mr. Rhodes wanted to know why England and France had no soldiers there, the statement that there were none in that country being his own.

"Has the Japanese Government defined its Siberian policy according to its agreement, and, if so, what is that policy?" asked the resolution.

The request made to Secretary Lansing for the information contained the qualifying phrase "if not incompatible with the public interest."

REDS ASK AID OF GERMANS.

Want Them to Reorganize Railroads in Soviet Russia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Confirmation of reports that the Bolshevist authorities in Russia are conducting important negotiations with the Germans was received here today. According to this information, German and Bolshevist interests want the Germans to undertake the reorganization of the railways in those parts of Russia under Red domination. The roadbeds are said to be in a deplorable condition, and the rolling stock, such as remains in operation, has greatly deteriorated, with the result that a large part of the railway organization is in a very demoralized condition.

Furthermore, information has reached official Washington that a German corporation, the name of which is not disclosed, is negotiating with the Central Soviet at Moscow for the purpose of obtaining large and important land concessions.

RECAPTURE 2,000 REDS.

Siberian Troops Surround Escaped Prisoners and Kill 200.

OMSK, Aug. 5, (Associated Press.)—Two thousand Bolsheviki and Magyars who had escaped from prison camps at Krasnoyarsk were surprised on July 30 by Siberian troops, 200 of the prisoners being killed and the rest, with the exception of 60, being surrounded and captured, according to a Czech report.

The prisoners had planned to attack the prison camps from a hill, but were defeated. Czech troops prepared to cooperate with the Siberians against the Bolsheviki and Magyars, but their assistance was not required.

Extends Japanese Fishing Rights.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Japan and the All-Russian Government at Omsk, it was learned here today, have concluded arrangements to extend Japanese fishing rights provided for by the Portsmouth treaty, which settled the Russian-Japanese war. The fishing clauses expired last month.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Liquidation of Speculative Holdings Causes Stocks to Fall —Money Rates Up.

Sales of speculative holdings of industrial stocks, accumulated during the advance of the Spring and early Summer, were made in quantity in yesterday's dealings and came upon a market in which the demand was timid. The product of offerings of this sort and of a fairly large amount of short stock was a sharp decline in the afternoon, which left in its trail net losses extending from 2 to 5 points. It was noticeable that it was primarily an industrial market; no more than a half dozen railway issues receded as much as a point, and in most cases the changes in this department were of moderate fractions. A number of the steel and miscellaneous issues recorded new low records for the current movement and the further the session progressed the weaker was the support in the way of general buying orders.

There were several influences to which might be ascribed the primary reasons for the day's selling. Broadly considered, however, that market acted exactly as others have in the past when the undoing of an extravagant speculative campaign for the rise has gained force with the passage of time. For several weeks there has been little in the way of constructive news and developments to offset a deal of unsettling matters, and it would be reasonable to assume that the weariness of traders in a desert of cheering expectations has had a cumulative effect in the selling of margined stock. It has happened more than once that the reaction from an overdone advance has been carried to as great extremes as was the preceding rise, a result which many seasoned speculators are looking for in the present market.

The factors which were considered especially disturbing in yesterday's occurrences were the survey at Youngstown, Ohio, of the strike vote in the steel industry and the fresh break which occurred in the foreign exchange market. Although local officers of steel companies evidently saw no reason to change their recently uttered opinion that a heavy vote of the union members to strike would not mean a broad slackening of operations, the stock market community was apprehensive of the effect of the vote on sentiment. Again the discussion of labor conditions had a place of pre-eminence in brokerage offices and the bears made the most of it. News that the count of ballots showed 95 per cent. of the voters in favor of pushing their demands to the furthest did not reach the Street until after the day's business was ended. From all available records, it appears that union members constitute considerably less than 50 per cent. of steel workers, and as many of the employes, both union and nonunion, are interested as partners in various corporations, the chances hardly favor a concerted strike throughout the country's mills.

Sterling exchange opened 4⅛ cents to the pound lower than Tuesday's closing quotation at 4.14¼, a break sharp enough to make bidders exceedingly chary of making purchases. Later the decline went about 2 cents further for sight drafts, with a late recovery to 4.16. Francs and lire were also weak. In the absence of a comprehensive program for extending credits to the European countries the persistent shrinkage in the exchanges is expected by bankers to go further, with effect on American exports which cannot yet be estimated. Sterling at yesterday's lowest level displayed a discount of 15 per cent., while the discount on francs was in the neighborhood of 37 per cent. It needs no elaborate presentation of economic data to show how the present movement, without the presence of measures to offset it, is bringing a heavy handicap upon buyers of goods in our markets for shipment to Europe.

Call money became firm again after a part of the day's loans had been arranged at 4 per cent. The rise to 6 and 6½ per cent. in the afternoon was accompanied by reports of the flow of money owned by interior banks into the commercial paper and short-term security markets. This would be a natural outcome of the recent level of 3½ per cent. for call money, as the lenders could do considerably better in short paper.

Bourse Heavy on New York Advices.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The Bourse opened heavy on New York advices, but improved later. Three per cent. rentes sold for 61 francs 45 centimes for cash. Exchange on London was bought at 34 francs 5 centimes. The 5 per cent. loan brought 87 francs 75 centimes. The dollar ranged from 7 francs 98½ centimes to 8 francs 3½ centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Closes Weak.

Throughout most of yesterday trading on the Stock Exchange was rather listless, but in the last hour there was a pronounced selling off of prices, with a number of issues closing at new lows for the present movement.

Overhanging the market situation was the impending vote at Youngstown on the question of a strike by union employes in the steel industry. The prediction which came over the ticker shortly after 2 o'clock from one labor leader that the vote would show more than 90 per cent. in favor of a strike unless certain demands were granted was doubtless one factor which caused a selling wave.

The foreign exchange situation was another factor of sympathetic influence. There is not any great amount of stock in American companies held abroad, so that any selling which might come from overseas would be inconsequential as affecting prices here. Such selling as there is reaps a nice profit in, say, sterling, presuming that the stocks were purchased when exchange was on a normal basis.

Calling of Loans.

When the market was weakest reports were circulated of wholesale calling of loans by local and by interior banks, and it was a favorite explanation for the breaks in certain stocks that loans secured by these stocks were being liquidated as a result of bank demands.

In fact, there was some calling of loans, but it was not on the big scale that some frightened longs imagined. That such calling as was in progress was being carried on with any idea or intention of discriminating against the stock market seems improbable in view of the natural reasons existing. Call money at 4 per cent. is not the attraction to bankers that it might be if Treasury certificates were not to be had at 4½ per cent. It is a simple matter of dollars and cents. When the call rate is high, say at 6 per cent., it attracts, and when it gets down under the Treasury certificate and prime acceptance rate it is not attractive, for the banks can make more in the latter than by lending their available funds at the call rate.

Bank Acceptance Rates.

It was learned yesterday that J. P. Morgan & Co. have reduced the rate at which they will make demand loans on bankers' acceptances from 4½ per cent. to 4 per cent. Other institutions which make a practice of lending money on acceptances, so far as could be learned, did not alter their rates, but it is to be expected that if the new Morgan rate remains others will follow. This action is a direct result of the recent ease in the general money market, although it probably is also partly a reflection of the activity in acceptance buying, which has been great of late and has pretty well cleaned out the portfolios of the dealers. In the last five business days the demand for prime acceptances has been enormous, and yesterday some of the largest dealers said they were having difficulty filling the orders which have been pouring in.

⁂

Foreign Selling Here.

As usually follows when there is a break in stock prices, there were reports yesterday of rather large sales of securities for foreign account. These sales, it was said, were for British and French and also for German interests. British and French sales, it was further reported, were going on at the rate of about $2,000,000 a day. No figures were mentioned in connection with the reports of German sales.

Such sales, it may be, are being put through, but they can hardly be much of a factor in the present market. Further, it seems unlikely that they can be carried very far, for reliable information is that Germany is virtually barren of American securities, while the holdings in England and France can not be extensive. It also seems unreasonable to suppose that after their huge sales of the last few years these countries would be anxious to further denude themselves.

No Arbitraging.

While the removal of restrictions on dealings on the London Stock Exchange is likely to make that market a much more lively place than it has been these last five years, it is still too early to look for a resumption of arbitrage dealings between New York and London. That they will be resumed in time is considered highly probable; even that they will be resumed on the old "joint-account" basis is regarded as something more than a mere possibility, despite opposition in some quarters, but the day when that will happen is not yet. London, it is understood, is opposed to this for the time being, and there are hardly the facilities for doing the business now.

⁂

More Ajax Rubber Stock.

A decline of 10⅛ points in Ajax Rubber was one of the heaviest recorded in yesterday's trading. A factor of influence may have been news that the company was to issue 36,000 shares of treasury stock which will be open to subscription by stockholders of record Aug. 30 at $70 a share. The new issue has been underwritten by Prichitt & Co. The proceeds of the sale will be utilized to enlarge the company's business.

⁂

Keystone Tire Declines.

Keystone Tire and Rubber shares were under pressure throughout yesterday's trading, with a precipitate decline in the afternoon. The loss was 11 points, the issue closing at 70, as compared with a high for the year of 126¾, on July 14. Little support has been accorded the stock recently.

⁂

Keystone Tire Declines.

While local railroad operators and bankers were chiefly interested in the new proposals of the Association of Railway Executives yesterday before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce in Washington on remedial legislation, the conference between Director General of Railroads Hines and the shopmen on the subject of wage increases was not lost sight of. Sentiment as to the outcome of the conferences seems to be divided. Many managers believe the shopmen will receive increases. A few railroad men were inclined to doubt that Mr. Hines will grant the increase demanded without a thorough hearing.

⁂

Other Cities Want 8-Cent Fare.

That New York traction companies are not alone in their effort to prove increased fares necessary to their future welfare was indicated by reports from Pittsburgh that engineers representing the Pittsburgh Railway Company estimate revenue requirements in 1920 will be approximately $18,700,000. This, they estimate, would be possible if the average street car fare were a trifle less than 8½ cents. Company engineers are reported to have estimated the physical value of the property at about $70,000,000; engineers for the city have placed it at less than $50,000,000.

⁂

International Paper Moves Lower.

While the 1⅛ point decline in International Paper shares yesterday was attributed in large part to professional selling, there were rumors in some quarters that the company's expenses are running at an increased rate, and that new financing which will have to be arranged before the end of the year will probably cost the company more than heretofore. Recent rumors that earnings were sufficient to warrant an increase in the dividend rate, and as the result of which the stock was moved steadily forward, were nothing but rumors, it was learned, and there is little likelihood of an increased dividend for some time to come.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE SETS NEW RECORDS

MORGAN GOING TO LONDON

Will Confer with Financiers on His Vacation—French Mission Seeking a Loan Here of $200,000,000.

Foreign exchange rates continued to fall yesterday when demand sterling sold as low as $4.12¼ to the pound and cable transfers on London sold at $4.13. Franc bills got down to 8 francs, 22 centimes to the dollar, and Italian exchange was quoted at 9.57 lira to the dollar. These are all new low records. In the afternoon the market recovered somewhat from the minimum figures, but was still weak. The volume of business was on a decidedly reduced scale.

Rumors that important conferences were being held between bankers and Government fiscal officers with a view of taking some action to correct the situation could not be confirmed, in fact, were generally denied, and it was said that nothing was contemplated for the present. If anything is done, it was contended, the initiative will have to come from Washington. Bankers yesterday declared that the Government has the sole power to move and that the matter is now so large that private enterprise cannot correct it.

J. P. Morgan will sail for London early next week. Mr. Morgan's departure, it was said, has no special significance. It was explained that in pre-war years the financier was in the habit of going to England in the late Summer for a vacation, and now that the war is over he is resuming his former practice. However, it is believed likely that Mr. Morgan, while abroad, will see many of the leading financial powers, and it is considered possible that as a result of his conferences on the other side some definite plans for financial stabilization will eventuate.

Reports that the French financial mission, now in this country, had approached leading banks here with a proposition for extending to France a loan of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 were heard. Bankers who have done business with France disclaimed any knowledge of definite proposals, but admitted that the French mission is very anxious to arrange credits and that some tentative conversations had been held. But the opinion was virtually unanimous that no decisive steps will be taken until the Peace Treaty is ratified. This, it was said, applies to all of the European countries.

A cabled report from Berlin quoted an officer of the Deutsche Bank as saying that a few small credits had already been arranged for the benefit of German commercial interests in the United States. This was denied by bankers here, but it was said by one banker that approximately $10,000,000 had been advanced to American merchants who have sold goods to Germany within the last few weeks. One shipment of 20,000 bales of cotton was recently financed, involving about $3,000,000. This cotton, it was learned yesterday, reached Hamburg several days ago. All of the financial transactions thus far arranged have been backed by merchandise, it was said, and none of the credits have been extended to Germans, but have been advanced to American exporters.

Inquiry among dealers in bank acceptances disclosed the fact that there are a few foreign bills afloat in the New York market at the present time. Most of these bills are for relatively small amounts, and the aggregate was said to be probably less than $5,000,000. Most of these bills are based on shipments of foodstuffs, with a few based on exports of general merchandise. The total is so small that the whole volume is hardly a factor in the present situation.

PREDICT $4 STERLING.

British Importers Puzzled How to Pay Their Bills Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—New York Exchange fell today 7 points, from $4.19 to $4.12, and the city is wondering how much further it will go. Now that the peg has been taken out, there seems nothing to stop it, and a drop to $4, or even further, is freely prophesied. Lloyd George's speech, indeed, is blamed for the last two days' sensational drop.

British importers have now to consider how to cover their New York commitments for produce such as cotton, tobacco, and wheat, the demand for which cannot be greatly curtailed, and there seems little doubt that there has been a rush to buy American exchange before it declines further.

Still, national protection for British industries, which the Premier put at 15 per cent. as a result of the exchange position and heavy freight rates, seems likely to be considerably increased.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent could find no financial expert today who would venture an opinion as to how far or how long the decline would extend. If international trade were running normally some alleviation would be expected from the fact that exchange on Paris, Rome, and other allied capitals is very favorable to London, but commerce is going so lamely that the ordinary compensating forces have lost their strength. Moreover, to make England's position still more trying, exchange with European neutral countries is steadily turning against her.

STANDARD GAS DIVIDENDS.

13 Per Cent. to be Paid on Preferred Stock by New Issue.

Directors of the Standard Gas & Electric Co. yesterday passed a resolution to liquidate the 13 per cent. of accumulated dividends on the preferred stock in common stock at par. They also voted to pay the regular quarterly 2 per cent. cash dividend on Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Aug. 30.

The statement of operations for the first six months of this current year shows earnings, after deductions for operating expenses and estimated Federal taxes, of $1,377,011, less interest charges of $486,645, leaving a balance of $890,365. After payment of the preferred dividend of $443,961 there remained a balance of $446,404, equal to 3.52 per cent. on the common stock for the half year, or at the rate of slightly more than 7 per cent. for the full year.

Tobacco Company Passes Dividend.

The Porto Rican American Tobacco Company has passed its quarterly dividend which was due at this time. The payment has been 3 per cent. in script since May, 1918. Prior to that the dividend rate was 4 per cent quarterly. Labor troubles during the first six months of the year are held accountable for the passing of the dividend. Practically all of the company's plants in Porto Rico were idle. Since Aug. 1 these plants have been running at capacity. Large orders are said to be on hand.

TO FORM NEW COMPANY.

J. L. Replogle Said to Head New Vanadium Organization.

Further details in connection with the purchase of the American Vanadium Company by J. Leonard Replogle and Charles M. Schwab were reported in the financial district yesterday. It was stated that others interested in the taking over of the property were Allan A. Ryan, E. R. Tinker of the Chase Securities Company, and Joseph De Wyckoff.

The company owns vanadium mines in Peru which are said to contain the bulk of the known vanadium ores in the world, and therefore controls a large percentage of the vanadium supply. It is understood that J. L. Replogle will head a new company which is to be formed.

One of the interesting features of the deal is the probable taxation of holders of the original company stock which, it is understood, will be liquidated at approximately $1,000 a share.

Neither Mr. Replogle nor Mr. Schwab had returned from the West yesterday.

TO TRAIN BOND SALESMEN.

Henry L. Doherty & Co. to Instruct Students Free.

It was announced yesterday that the bond department of Henry L. Doherty & Co. will open a school for security salesmen in the near future. The first class will be early in September, and will be conducted along the lines of instruction as applied in the law schools of the country.

The plan for the course calls for few lectures and comparatively little textbook work, but provides for free discussion of the principles of security salesmanship by the director and students supplemented by summaries of the principles studied and practical experimental work.

Instruction in the school will be furnished without expense to the student, and, in cases where the student is employed an effort will be made to arrange hours of instruction so that there will be no interference with such employment. It is planned to give certificates of graduation to those who successfully complete the course mapped out.

Following a special meeting of stockholders of the New Netherland Bank of New York, it was announced that the proposed increase of capital from $300,000 to $600,000 was authorized. The new stock will be offered to shareholders at $210 a share.

CITY'S 1920 BUDGET TO SET A NEW MARK

Requests for Salary Increases Point to Greatest Expenditure in Town's History.

ESTIMATES NOW COMING IN Brooklyn Park Department Asks for $238,383 More Than 1919 Allowance.

Requests for salary increases in a number of city departments in the 1920 budget estimates made public yesterday by the Board of Estimate indicate that the budget for next year will be the largest in the city's history. Only a few of the departments have put in their estimates so far, and others will be made public from day to day until the list is completed.

Practically all of the larger city departments have yet to be heard from, but each department is expected to go far beyond its allowance for this year. The advances in the estimates given out yesterday were mainly for pay increases.

The largest increase requested so far is from the Brooklyn Park Department which wants $238.383 over its allowance for 1919. The smallest increase is from the Mayor's office, amounting to $1,400. The request for the Supreme Court, Kings County, is for $401,400, an increase over the present year of $10,050. The County Court, Bronx, wants $51,300 for next year. Its allowance for 1919 was $44,820 and $900 of the increase is wanted to pay visiting judges assigned by the Appellate Division. The request of the Commissioner of Jurors of the Bronx is $115 under the request for 1919, when the total allowance was $1,436. This year the request is for $1,321.

The adult part of the Court of Special Sessions for this year was allowed $256,570. For 1920 the Justices request $295,006.50, an increase of $38,436.50, the net increases, due to salary increases, being $19,045, and the increases due to new positions amounting to $15,000. The County Clerk, Bronx, was allowed for this year a total of $76,005. For the coming year he requests $82,095, a net increase of $6,090.

The estimate of the Commissioner of Jurors of Queens County shows a net decrease of $44 under 1919; while there is an increase in personal service of $1,100 over 1919, it is made up in requests for other than personal service. The Board of Aldermen requests for next year $301,232. For this year the allowance was $289,533. In the Tenement House Department the allowance for this year was $622,201. For 1920 the department requests $1,116 less.

For 1919 the Law Department was allowed $982,280, but this was increased by transfers from other funds and authorization of special revenue bonds amounting to $82,180. For 1920 the Corporation Counsel requests $1,082,865, a net increase of $20,405. The District Attorney of Kings County requests $195,575 for next year, a net increase of $28,725, the increase is personal service amounting to $20,725. The amount allowed the District Attorney of New York County for this year was $523,644. For the coming year District Attorney Swann requests $553,828, an increase of $30,185. Of the increase, $29,734 is for personal services.

The Surrogate's Court of the Bronx requests an increase of $13,704. The Board of Child's Welfare in 1919 received $1,664,904, including special revenue bonds and transfers from other accounts. For the coming year $2,087,530 is requested, an increase of $422,626. Of this amount, $412,445 is for new pension allowances and $10,380 for personal service. The Surrogate's Court of New York County received $218,535 for this year and wants $249,950 for next year. The Register of Bronx County asks for an increase of $20,322. The County Clerk of Kings County was allowed $111,636 for 1919, and wants $122,620 for 1920.

The New York Public Library for 1920 requests $1,058,592, an increase of $293,386. The Department of Parks in the Bronx requests $523,480 for 1920, an increase over the present year of $22,223. The Sheriff of Bronx County requests an increase over this year of $27,601. The Register of New York County requests a net increase of $30,353, of which $28,362 is for personal service.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission was allowed this year $196,760. For the coming year it requests $205,235. The Brooklyn Botanical Gardens requests an increase of $93,331 over the 1919 allowance, the increase for personal service being $31,749. The Central Museum, Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, requests for the coming year $104,200. Its allowance for the present year was $88,000.

The total budget for the coming year must be signed by the Board of Estimate before Oct. 31, at midnight.

A Threatened Steel Strike.

Late yesterday word from Youngstown was that the vote as to a general strike in the steel industry showed 95 per cent. in favor of this action. The term "general strike," as used by the labor leaders, is somewhat misleading. The steel industry at present shows less than 50 per cent. of the workers as members of unions. The vote, therefore, means that something nearer 40 per cent. of the industry has voted in favor of a strike if certain demands are not acceded to.

In some instances non-union workers have made it known that they are entirely satisfied. Furthermore, the question relating to a strike was so indefinitely worded in its relation to the demands which are to be made that many workers doubtless voted in a perfunctory manner. One part of the question asked, "Do you want better living conditions?" Officials in steel companies have maintained for several weeks that they were little perturbed by the labor situation.

START WAGE CONFERENCES.

Hines Confers with Wilson After Meeting Shopmen's Representatives.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The prediction is made here tonight that an early agreement will be reached between the Railroad Administration and the railroad shopmen in regard to wage adjustments. Conferences were begun today by Director General Hines and the accredited representatives of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, headed by B. M. Jewell, acting President. Late in the afternoon, Mr. Hines visited the White House and discussed the demands made by the employes with President Wilson.

Mr. Hines made it known that he hoped to reach an early decision which would avert the danger of further trouble. He would not discuss his talk with the President but made the following statement regarding the conference with the shopmen's representatives:

"In opening the conference the Director General made it clear that as the representative of the President and of the public it was necessary for him, before acting on the demands for increased wages for shopmen on railroads, to have before him adequate information covering the subject in order to determine whether all or any part of the requests of the shopmen for increased wages were justified by the facts. He explained that he had obtained such information as was available from the railroad managements, including the facts they had obtained from other industries. In order to develop these facts further, he stated that he understood the claims of the shopmen raised the following questions:

"1. Are the wages now paid shopmen in railroad employ on a fair basis compared with the wages paid shopmen doing comparable work in private industries outside of the railroads?

"2. Are the wages paid railroad shopmen comparable with the wages paid shopmen doing similar work in shipyards, navy yards and arsenals under government control and is employment in the shops of the railroads in fact comparable at all with employment in the shops of these other governmental agencies, particularly with regard to the wages established in these other governmental agencies during the war period?

"3. Does the increased cost of living at the present time, as compared with the pre-war period and the increases in wages given to shopmen on railroads in the same period, justify further advances in wages to railroad shopmen?

"Taking up these three propositions separately, the representatives of the shopmen claimed (1) that wages of railroad shopmen are materially lower than the wages paid shopmen in outside private industries and that even since the signing of the armistice material advances in wages had not been given to shopmen employed in such outside private industries; (2) that the wages paid shopmen in shipyards, navy yards and arsenals under government control have been and are materially higher than the wages paid shopmen on railroads, and that the two industries are comparable because the basis on which the wages in these outside governmental industries have been based had no direct connection with the war, but had direct connection only with a fair basis of wages prior to the war and increases in the cost of living since that time; and (3) that the demands for increased wages paid railroad shopmen did not rest primarily on the increased cost of living, although it was an important contributing factor, but rested primarily on the proposition that the wages of shopmen ought to be increased so as to be more in line with wages for similar work in other industries.

"The minimum rate for machinists in shops on railroads was fixed in July, 1918, at 68 cents per hour, effective Jan. 1, 1918.

"In concluding the conference the Director General said that he would give consideration to all the facts presented by the representatives of the railroads and would endeavor to reach a final decision in the near future."

COTTON HAS LOSING AND IRREGULAR DAY

HEAVY SALES AT THE START

Continued Drop in Foreign Exchange Has Pronounced Effect on Trade.

Reacting from its splurge of Tuesday afternoon, the cotton market yesterday developed considerable weakness and throughout the trading session maintained a heaviness which was discouraging to the few remaining bulls and resulted in the loss of nearly all of Tuesday's gains of 85 to 95 points. At the close yesterday the market was only 17 to 25 points above where it left off on Monday. Furthermore, the tone at the close was decidedly poor, and there was nothing either within the market or without to encourage new commitments for the rise, and the technical position, to judge from the opinions expressed around the ring, was not improved as it usually would be after a day of consistent and persistent selling, for most of the selling was said to have been of long cotton, with only a modicum of short selling.

At the start rather considerable sales for Liverpool and Southern account caught the market, and with no fresh support appearing call prices showed initial declines ranging from 17 and 15 points in October and December to 30 to 35 points in the 1920 options. There was irregularity after that for a time and prices rallied to within 10 to 25 points of the Tuesday closing, but the rally was short-lived and lacked impressiveness which might have inspired new commission house and other speculative buying, and when the scattered buying had subsided the market turned downward again and did not stop until prices had gone off 70 to 78 points on the day. In the late afternoon there was a slight rally and the close was up 15 points or so from the maximum declines.

The new weakness in foreign exchange and the fall in many security prices exercised an influence on cotton yesterday. The former had a pronounced effect on trade sentiment where, it has been expected, something would be done to stabilize exchange, while the decline in stocks undoubtedly kept Wall Street houses from giving much attention to the cotton market.

Of the two influences, the exchange market is unquestionably the greater, for there is a popular theory that Great Britain and the Continent will have to curtail cotton purchases unless exchanges are restored to something more closely approaching normal. How tenable this theory is remains to be seen. Of course, very low exchanges add considerably to the cost of foreign buying, but, on the other hand, the foreign demand is so urgent that it is likely to offset the depreciation in foreign credit.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

GERMAN SMUGGLING SENDS MARK LOWER

Illicit Trade Over the Rhine Now Out of the Control of the Government.

BERLIN, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—As a result of the continued downward trend of the German mark, the Food Controller has ordered the discontinuance of purchases in Holland and Denmark. While the action is ostensibly based on the pretext that supplies already under contract meet most urgent needs and that these sources of supply may be temporarily dispensed with in view of increasing arrivals of overseas shipments, official concern over the exchange situation is held to be directly responsible for the Controller's order.

Newspapers, in discussing the problem, declare the western frontier has virtually ceased to exist in view of the unchecked influx of American, English, and French commodities across the Rhine. Illicit traffic through "the hole on the Rhine" is said to have assumed such proportions as to preclude the possibility of customs or other control. As a volume of trade increases, the amount of the German money required to finance it moves at an accelerated pace and results in the further depreciation of the mark, which, it is alleged, is being slaughtered by speculators, smugglers, and others seeking to remove their fortunes from the surveillance of Mathias Erzberger, Minister of Finance.

That the edge of the occupied zone is a lucrative field for operations is demonstrated by inspections of travelers' baggage on trains arriving here from the Rhineland. Officers find smuggled goods in large quantities, being principally most delicate articles of luxury which bring good prices in Berlin. This city's share, however, is only a small fraction of the Entente wares reaching in and Germany by devious routes and being brought at a rate which places a heavy burden on the already much-abused mark.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Belief that indications pointed to the certainty of the strike by the union workers in the big steel plants and further new low levels for British, French, and Italian exchange were the chief factors leading to the heavy liquidation. Keystone Tire was offered down to 69¼. United States Steel common fell back to 98⅝, Crucible to 133⅝, and Bethlehem Steel B to 79⅝, all ending at about the lowest figures. The food shares averaged losses of about 3 points, while the copper issues ranged from 1 to 2 points below Tuesday's final levels.

(2) To consider and take action upon subdivision (b) of said resolution of the Board of Directors, declaring it to be advisable that the authorized first preferred stock of the Company be increased from seven hundred thousand (700,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each, to one million (1,000,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each.

(3) To consider and take action upon subdivision (c) of said resolution of the Board of Directors, declaring it to be advisable that the general or common stock of the Company be increased from four hundred thousand (400,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each, to two million (2,000,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each.

(4) To consider and take action upon subdivision (d) of said resolution of the Board of Directors, declaring it to be advisable that Article III of the amended certificate of organization be amended so as to read as follows:

"III. The total authorized capital stock of the corporation is $300,000,000, divided into 3,000,000 shares of the par value of $100 each. Of such authorized total capital stock, 1,000,000 shares, amounting to $100,000,000, shall be first preferred stock, and 2,000,000 shares, amounting to $200,000,000 shall be common or general stock. From time to time either class of stock may be increased or new classes of stock created according to law, and may be issued in such amounts and proportions as may be determined by the Board of Directors and as may be permitted by law. The holders of the first preferred stock shall be entitled to receive semi-annually or quarterly all net earnings of the company determined and declared as dividends in each fiscal year, up to but not exceeding eight per centum per annum on all outstanding first preferred stock before any dividend shall be set apart or paid upon any other stock of the company, but such dividends upon the first preferred stock shall not be cumulative, and the first preferred stock shall not be entitled to participate in or to receive any profits or earnings other than, or additional to, such dividends. In case of the liquidation or dissolution of the company, the holders of the first preferred stock shall be entitled to receive cash to the amount of their first preferred stock at par before any payment in liquidation is made upon any other stock, and shall not thereafter participate in the property of the company or in the proceeds of liquidation. The amount of capital stock with which said company is to commence business is the sum of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, of which 500 shares are to be first preferred and the remaining 500 shares general stock. TO MAKE WARSAW POLAND'S NEW YORK

City Architect Here to Study Transportation, Subways, and Modern Housing.

WILL PURCHASE MATERIAL

Polish City Plans Include Central Railway Station, Viaducts, and Bridges.

Ladislas Michalski, City Architect of Warsaw, who has been sent to this country by the Polish Government to study transportation, construction, subway building, and modern housing, said yesterday that it is planned to modernize Poland along American lines, and for that purpose an expenditure of $100,000,000 is contemplated, to extend over a period of twelve years.

Before leaving for Boston yesterday Mr. Michalski, at the Hotel Belmont, explained the projects that are being planned to make Warsaw the "New York" of the new nations of Eastern Europe. The plans for the remodeling of the city have been drawn up by a committee of the leading architects and engineers of Poland.

Subways will be built for passenger traffic, and viaducts and bridges will be constructed over the Vistula River to bring all railroad passenger trains into a union station in the centre of the city. The construction of houses and apartments for all classes, particularly workingmen, will be begun immediately, as Warsaw is in dire need of 40,000 single-family houses.

"Greater Warsaw today has a population of 1,000,000 people," said Mr. Michalski, "and it is necessary that its development, from now on, be directed along most modern lines. For that reason a City Planning Committee has been organized, and includes some of the leading engineers and architects in Poland.

"The projects which the committee has determined on have received the approval of the municipal and national Governments, and I am in the United States on a six months' tour of the principal cities to collect data on which we will proceed with our reconstruction. I intend, also, to obtain information regarding the costs of certain electrical equipment here which we will need in the construction of our subways.

"Within two years we intend to begin the construction of a subway north and south through the city, which will be five miles long, connecting the suburbs of Muranow and Mokotow. Next year, or as soon after as practicable, a central railroad station will be built as a terminus for all passenger railroad traffic. At present, trains to Germany, Austria, and Western Poland, enter the new city, but trains to Kieff, Petrograd, Moscow, Danzig, and Odessa have their termini at Praga, a suburb of Warsaw, across the Vistula River. These railroads are the broad gauge Russian lines. To bring these lines into Warsaw proper, a bridge will be constructed over the Vistula, and a combination viaduct and tunnel will cross the city, for a distance of three miles.

Industries to Expand.

"Praga is the manufacturing centre of Warsaw, owing to the fact that the Russian railways systems have their termini there. It lies very low, and its northern and southern extremities are flooded at seasons of high water. We contemplate the digging of a ship canal to encircle Praga. It will have a semi-circular radius of eight miles, reaching into the Vistula at either end. Factory lands will be laid out on the banks of the ship canal. This will enable Warsaw to expand her industrial enterprises along the most complete and modern lines.

"I am extremely anxious to study expert housing systems as developed in the United States, particularly the application of labor-saving devices. Poland has the necessary raw materials for constructing the houses which we need so critically, but we expect to purchase here the concrete mixers, woodworking machines and other labor-saving devices, and we also want to learn the rudiments of quantity production in houses."

In discussing the cost of the subways, tubes, housing plans and the proposed extensions of the surface street car systems of Warsaw, Mr. Michalski said that the figures had been obtained previous to the fall in the value of the franc and the mark. At the present time, he said, the cost is problematical, but the funds will be forthcoming from taxes and from municipal bonds. Labor in Poland is cheap and steel and construction material will be available in large quantities.

"Germany has made us bids to commence work on our subways and our street car extensions," he continued. "But we are anxious to avoid commercial relations with the Germans because they are a dangerous influence.

"We want to buy our supplies from the United States and to adopt American plans of construction. Germany is offering to restore in materials the equipment which she took from our electrical light plants and street railway systems during the war, but we are demanding cash so that we can make our purchases where we desire."

Mr. Michalski referred to the fact that the best description of the New York subway system from an engineer's standpoint, which he had been able to purchase in New York was in German, printed in Germany, though sold in New York.

Mr. Michalski's trip to Boston will include the inspection of the subways of that city and the housing arrangements of various manufacturing concerns in Massachusetts. He will return to New York in three weeks and will then go to Chicago and other cities of the Middle and Far West.

TAX COURSE AT COLUMBIA.

To Open Evening Classes in Income and Profit Levies.

Columbia University announced last night that an evening course dealing with the problems involved in the administration of the United States income and profit taxes and the income tax of the State of New York will be given during the Winter session by the Department of Extension Teaching, beginning Sept. 3. The instructor will be Robert Murray Haig, associate professor in the School of Business.

The course is designed to aid tax administrators, or those contemplating entrance into the service, who may desire to make a detailed study of the complicated statutes and their operation; bank employes and employes of trust companies whose duties involve rendering assistance to taxpayers in preparing their returns; accountants who desire an exact knowledge of this field as part of their professional equipment; lawyers who may find the subject matter useful in advising clients regarding tax matters, and corporation officers whose duties include the preparation of tax returns.

SHAKEUP AT ELLIS ISLAND.

18 Immigration Men Dismissed, 16 Sent on Vacations.

Just as passenger service from abroad was beginning to assume some of its pre-war proportions orders were received from Washington yesterday which resulted in a general shakeup among the immigration forces at Ellis Island.

Eighteen men were dismissed and fifty-six members of the inspection staff received indefinite vacations. Fourteen inspectors were reduced to the grade of clerk, with corresponding reductions in salary of from $500 to $700 annually. Several other inspectors were dropped to the grade of watchman.

The change was a surprise to the employes. In the absence of Frederic C. Howe, Commissioner of Immigration, Superintendent Percy Baker declined to discuss the order.

One employe said there had been much dissatisfaction because the force had not been paid since May.

Fur Auction Closes.

The auction of the Metropolitan Fur Exchange was concluded yesterday, and the total for the two days was said to have reached $1,000,000. Better qualities offered yesterday resulted in increased prices being obtained. Advances were made on a number of the offerings, including hares 50 per cent., marten 20 per cent., Jap mink 20 per cent., cross fox 30 per cent., red for 20 per cent., fisher, otter wolf, weazel, and coney 10 per cent. each. South American, Japanese, Australian, and gray fox increased 20 per cent. The next auction of the exchange will be held on Sept. 30.

⁂

Second Hands in Gray Goods.

Second hands again dominated the local gray goods market yesterday, though the business they did was not large. Most of it was for nearby delivery. Additional sales of 39-inch 68-72s were made at 19 cents, and 38½-inch 64-60s again brought 15½ cents. Buyers paid 13 cents for 38½-inch 60-48s. Some trading was done on 5.50-yard sheetings by second hands at 13 cents, though some of these goods were bought also at 12¾ cents. Fifteen cents was paid for 4.70 sheetings, while on standard four-yard goods 18 cents was asked for 56-60s and 16 cents for 48 squares. Fine-yarn cloths were quiet, but steady. Sateens were in a little better demand, but prices did not improve any.

Pheasant Breast Hats for Fall.

One of the most popular items in the local millinery houses featuring expensive goods consists of Fall hats of pheasant breasts. They are shown in a number of beautifully shaded colorings. Though this type of hat is rather "trying," the colors being pretty brilliant, they are expected by buyers to achieve a certain amount of popularity. Small, close-fitting toques in shallow turbans and sloping sides are favored, they being made entirely of pheasant breasts with a few tail feathers curling gracefully over the back or side. In some hats pheasant is combined with duvetyn, the two going together very acceptably. Suede, in natural brown and light sand, also goes well with this plumage.

Want Industrial Chemicals.

Judging from the demand for industrial chemicals, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, there is much optimism among the country's manufacturers. They are buying their basic chemicals freely, and do not hesitate to enter into contracts for future delivery. The market is strong and rising, due to the paucity of spot stocks. In the dyestuffs, coal-tar crudes—especially benzol and toluol—are higher, and the prices for intermediates are also rising. The tendency in the oil markets is downward. Great activity is shown in the market for crude drugs, and more than thirty important items showed marked changes—mostly upward—in the last week.

⁂

Staple Furs Rising in Price.

Staple furs of all kinds are very much wanted, and at advancing prices, according to the market report issued by Funsten Bros. & Co. of St. Louis. Northern furs of all kinds, holdings of which are smaller than in other years at this time, also are in active demand. Foreign furs of most kinds are wanted, too, and are meeting with ready sales. The report also says that conditions in Russia are such that only light importations can be expected from there for some time. These and other trade signs point to high prices at the Fall auction sales, which will be held in St. Louis beginning Sept. 10 and in this city beginning Oct. 6.

⁂

Early Selling of Fall Garments.

A feature of present selling in the retail stores is said to be the early start made on the purchasing of Fall garment lines. It was stated yesterday that either the public has been impressed with the talk of higher prices later on or that a real scarcity of Fall garments exists. As far as prices are concerned, however, the disposition in the early purchases seems to be toward the higher grade merchandise. This early buying is understood to have encouraged retailers to the extent that they will be ready soon to place re-orders on later styles. Some re-ordering of the sort is being done now.

⁂

Went Too Heavily Into Futures.

The tendency to "put up a good front" is not restricted nowadays to big retail companies. Some of the smaller stores starting in business are spending money lavishly to make a showing and attract trade. One out-of-town concern, however, has just pulled itself out of financial troubles caused by too free a use of capital to obtain an artistic store effect. An investigation showed that half again the amount of money was invested in fixtures as was in stock, with the result that the business was soon in difficulties. As the credit man who examined the business stated: "Fixtures can scarcely be considered liquid assets, and it is not always a wise move to tie up so much money in a display."

⁂

Seems Sure of Supplies.

While the clothing and garment trades as a general rule are worried over the small quantities of cloth which the mills have announced they will produce for the Spring season, the same degree of anxiety does not seem to exist among the large users of fabrics. The head of one large clothing concern, for instance, appeared yesterday to be satisfied that his organization will be well taken care of, and the same statement was made by the owner of a large coat and suit business. Houses of this character in years gone by received rebates from the large mills at the end of the season, and it is intimated in the market that some arrangement now exists whereby they have been guaranteed sufficient goods for their needs.

⁂

Staples May Be Offered Later.

The rumor persists in the local piece goods market that some of the leading mill organizations that have merely put out fancy goods for the Spring season may have another opening of staples later on in the season. It is thought that, once the mills are well into operation for the Spring, a way may be found to produce additional yardage in the way of staples. The time set for second openings is placed in December. The chief reason for the restricted output is said to be the uncertainty of production, and if the outlook becomes better the mills may find themselves able to sell greater quantities than are now offered to the cutters-up.

⁂

Gem Necklaces Going Well.

An excellent business is being done in the local jewelry trade in necklaces and sautoirs made of various kinds of semi-precious stones. Among the most popular ones are those made of agate, lapis lazuli, rose quartz, amazonite, &c. Amethyst is also good in this form. The call for fine rubies and sapphires is pleasing to the trade, but the scarcity of really prime gems is handicapping business to some extent. Pearls are selling well, despite sharply increased costs and especially so in necklaces. The call for fine jade is greater than can be filled.

$5.50 SHOES FETCH $12.

Some Workers Make $120 a Week, Boston Jury Hears.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Inquiry into the high cost of shoes by the Suffolk County Grand Jury today developed that some shoe workers have been earning $120 a week. These instances were said to be few, but it was testified that many made $60 a week, while the average was about $40. Unskilled help, formerly paid $12 to $15 a week, have profited most, lastboys getting as much as $30 a week.

It was said that a pair of shoes sold by a manufacturer for $5.50 was displayed in a store 400 yards from the factory marked at $12.

The Grand Jury finished its shoe price inquiry today and is expected to make its report Friday.

HERRICK SEES PERIL IN PLAN OF PLUMB

Is Long Step Toward an Autocracy Which Would Threaten Liberty, He Says.

INCREASES PUBLIC BURDEN

Would Add $17,000,000,000 to Huge War Debt—Need Federal Help, Not Control.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Myron T. Herrick of this city, member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, asserts in a statement issued today that "the turning over of the vast system of railroad lines to the control of the Government and, through the Government to the control of organized labor, would be a long step toward the establishment in this country of an autocratic power that would imperil the liberties of the American people."

He said the plan of the railroad brotherhoods for Government ownership and operation of rail lines would in the end defeat the purposes for which the brotherhoods were established, and would involve a huge addition to the public debt, as the value of the roads was estimated at $17,000,000,000. Mr. Herrick favors the plan presented to Congress by the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, under which a fixed percentage return to the roads is provided and excess of profit above 6 per cent. is divided between the Government, the employes and the railroads.

Mr. Herrick, who formerly was Governor of Ohio and later Ambassador to France, said in his statement:

"The railroad situation, already sufficiently complex, has been further complicated by the propaganda launched by the railroad employes through the officers of their organizations, opposing the return of the roads to their owners, and demanding purchase and operation by the Government. The deficit incurred in less than two years of Federal operation is already more than $500,000,000 and is mounting at the rate of $2,000,000 a day. Directly or indirectly, the burden of that deficit falls on the people.

"The experience of the last two years with the railroads, as with the telegraph and telephone lines, seized after the close of the war, is ample proof that there is neither efficiency nor economy in Government control.

"Aside from those considerations the turning over of the vast system of railroad lines to the control of the Government, and through the Government to the control of organized labor, would be a long step toward the establishment in this country of an autocratic power that would imperil the liberties of the American people.

"Furthermore, the acquisition of the railroads by the Government would involve a huge addition to the public debt. Their value is estimated at $17,000,000,000. To add that vast sum to our already large debt would weaken the Government's borrowing power, depreciate further the outstanding issues of Government securities, and increase the rate at which the Government can borrow. The war has already added $20,000,000,000 to the public debt in the short space of two years.

"If the Government had not so mishandled the railroad problem in the years before the war, the railroads would never have fallen behind the general industrial development of the country and would have been in shape to meet the abnormal physical and financial demands which the war made upon them. The question now is, therefore, not merely that of returning the roads to their owners, but of returning them under such conditions that they can catch up with the progress of the nation.

"In 1907, the late James J. Hill, constructive railroad man of wide vision, estimated that not less than $1,000,000,000 per year should be invested by the railroads in new equipment. The business of the country has grown enormously since that time, which would, as a matter of course, add very greatly to the total of this estimate. Yet we find that from 1909 to 1914 the amount annually so invested was actually less than two-thirds of the Hill estimate, and since that time less than one-third of the yearly amount set for 1907 by Mr. Hill."

THOM FIGHTS PLUMB PLAN.

Impracticable, He Says, and Conflicts with Supreme Court Ruling.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, appearing before the House Interstate Commerce Committee, today attacked the Plumb plan for tripartite control of the roads under Government ownership as an impracticable system which the American people, when fully informed, would surely reject.

Mr. Thom devoted his testimony largely to an attack on the Plumb plan, asserting that its provision for retirement of private capital would deprive the railroads of one-third of the lines' book value.

This provision, he added, also would be in conflict with Supreme Court decisions, because it provided for a legislative reservation as to what values should be excluded in determining what the Government should pay to the rail owners. Congress, he asserted, could make no such reservation, because the determination of value is purely a judicial question.

Wage features of the Plumb plan, Mr. Thum said, might be judged from past and present demands of rail employes, considered in the light of the employes' full control over the wages, which he contended they would have under the plan.

Government regulation of railroads was blamed by Mr. Thom for the present condition of the lines. He asserted that the regulation has been "repressive and corrective" and had not taken into consideration the maintenance of efficiency. He added, however, that he did not ask that regulation be diminished, but that it be made successful, adding that the great problem before Congress was to stabilize the railroad business so that private investors would be attracted by rail securities.

Corporation or Co-Partnership

"SHALL we incorporate or shall we conduct our business as a partnership?" is a question many business firms are considering.

Both forms of organization have advantages—the question of their application must rest on individual circumstances.

In these days of taxation on personal incomes and on the earnings and excess profits of corporations the manner in which each form of taxation affects a particular case is of vital importance.

The question is one for consideration by men schooled and trained in tax problems.

WAR PROHIBITION UPHELD BY COURT

Judge Hand Rules That the Law Stands Until the Treaty of Peace Is Signed.

WINERIES LOSE CONTEST

U. S. Court Approves Law, Which, He Says, Protects Idle Soldiers from Resorting to Stimulants.

Federal Judge A. N. Hand yesterday denied the application of Scatena, Lawson and Perelli, owners of wineries in California, for a temporary injunction restraining the Federal officials here from attempting to enforce the war-time prohibition law pending the trial of an action for a permanent injunction. Judge Hand decided that the war is on until the treaty of peace is signed, and that the emergency that caused Congress to enact the law still exists.

In their complaint the plaintiffs set forth that they owned a vineyard of eighty acres in California, and that at the close of business on June 30 they had in stock upwards of 500,000 gallons of saleable wine, valued at about $550,000. The product of the plaintiff's business, it was alleged, produced a return aggregating $1,500,000 a year. The complaint said that the enforcement of the law would result in the disorganization of the business and the reduction of the value of the plant to its salvage or junk value.

This is the first decision in this suit and one other of a similar character, brought by Samuel Seabury. Both suits, it was said, were brought to establish the status of wineries throughout the country. There is no similarity between these suits and the actions instituted by brewers, for the reason that there is no question as to the intoxicating qualities of wine. The plaintiffs alleged that the act prohibiting them from continuing their business is unconstitutional, and that the enforcement of the law as a war-time measure is unnecessary because the war is over. Part of Judge Hand's opinion reads:

"So long as the treaty of peace is not ratified there is some chance of the resumption of hostilities, though I place but the slightest weight upon this. A war emergency, however, of serious import arises in respect to the period of demobilization. During that period there has been and still is a stream of enlisted men coming into and remaining in the United States. The great stimulus engendered by the popular excitement which attended the war and by their expectation of having to combat their country's foes, has disappeared and a more or less purposeless and dull routine has followed as the inevitable lot of the young soldiers. Under such circumstances men are especially s[illegible] to all the temptations which a lack of immediate definite purpose as well as a certain relaxation of discipline are likely to entail."

After calling attention to the restlessness of the great number of men who recently lived under great excitement and the proneness of these men to indulge freely in stimulants, Judge Hand said that Congress, and not the courts, had the sole right to deal with the emergency. The opinion calls attention to the fact that the law was enacted to conserve the man power of the nation and to increase efficiency in production, and then it reads:

"I think it plain that Congress had among its objects the regulation of the liquor traffic during the period of demobilization. That was a critical period, more critical in some respects than that of active hostilities. If Congress thought that drastic prohibition during a period when there would probably be considerable lack of employment would be advantageous, it was within the war power, in my opinion, for it to adopt legislation which would care for these conditions arising so immediately after the war itself."

PUTS BLAME ON JAPANESE.

Chinese Official Report Says They Provoked Fighting at Chang-Chun.

PEKING, Aug. 17 — (Associated Press.)—The official report to the Chinese Government regarding the conflict between Japanese and Chinese soldiers on July 19 at Chang-chun, Manchuria, it was said in Government circles today indicated that the Japanese provoked the trouble. There is no definite proof of who fired the first shot, but the Chinese say that the fact that Japanese soldiers with fixed bayonets and loaded rifles forced an entry into the Chinese military encampment shows that they were the aggressors.

The Chinese report says 18 Japanese were killed and 17 wounded, and 12 Chinese were killed and 14 wounded. It is added that 100 Chinese soldiers are missing, but it is believed that many of them fled and have feared to return.

The Japanese Embassy at Washington announced that the Chinese Government, as a result of the incident at Chang-chun, had dismissed from office three leaders of the Chinese soldiers, and had reprimanded the Governor General of Kirin Province. The statement said that the conflict was provoked by the Chinese, who fired upon the Japanese. Nineteen Japanese were killed and 17 wounded seriously.

KAISER'S COUSIN A HOARDER

Prince Friedrich Leopold Had Stores of Food and Coal in His Castle.

BERLIN, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—At a meeting of the citizens of Teltow, a suburb of Berlin, today, there was a discussion of the conduct of Prince Friedrich Leopold, cousin of former Emperor William, who remained there instead of leaving the country. It was alleged that he had engaged in illicit trading on a large scale and had hoarded large quantities of food.

Local authorities recently searched his castle, confiscating great supplies of food which were distributed among hospitals, but when they attempted to bring action against the Prince they were told from authoritative quarters that he was immune, being a member of the royal family. Prince Friedrich has also stored a huge quantity of coal and other fuel with which to heat his castle during the coming Winter. The castle has 140 rooms and sixteen bathrooms. No decision as to what will be done with the Prince was reached at today's meeting.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK IN STEEL

The Iron Age Sees No Likelihood of Serious Labor Obstruction.

In its weekly survey of the steel industry The Iron Age considers that while strikes may come, as they have in the last month, there will be no general or long continued stoppage of production. Attention is called to the fact that the labor union in its talk of strike has been careful to suppress the fact that the unions in various mechanical lines are but a fraction of the whole body of employes.

The publication says further:

"The labor situation at Cleveland and at the Lake Superior ore docks is much improved, but is not yet cleared up. The American Steel and Wire Company's railroad employes at Cleveland have returned.

"It is significant, in view of the widespread steel works campaign for union recognition, that that demand of the wire company strikers at Cleveland was withdrawn.

"There has been a rapid resumption of blast furnace and steel works operations at Gary and South Chicago on the ending of the railroad shopmen's strike, but the steel workers' decision in that district is a factor of uncertainty, in view of the special activities of union organizers there.

"Sentiment against price advances in finished steel is growing."

Proposed Settlement of His Prussian Civil List.

BERLIN, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—A bill has been submitted to the Prussian Cabinet which provides that 170,000,000 marks shall be handed over to former Emperor William as a total settlement for the civil list he lost "through forced abdication," according to a Weimar dispatch to Die Freiheit.

The Cabinet has not yet reached a decision, it is said, because the scheme is opposed by Herr von Braun, the Minister of Agriculture.

Meats in Storage Not "Hoarded"

Live stock is a seasonal crop—like cereals and grains.

It is "ripe" and is marketed in larger quantities in certain months. This causes a natural oversupply at one time and a natural shortage at another.

During the time of oversupply Swift & Company places some of the meat in cold storage, against the season of short production.

This is a necessity in order that the nation's ration of meat—58,000,000 pounds every day in the year—may be forthcoming as the consumer requires it.

This is not hoarding, not price manipulation, not market control. It is mere common sense.

United States Bureau of Markets' figures of stocks of frozen and cured meats July 1 are being used as a basis for Department of Justice investigations in many cities. When properly analyzed, based on Swift & Company's stocks, these figures show:

62 per cent (approximate) is pork and beef cuts, etc., cured and in process of curing. It takes 30 to 90 days in pickle or salt to complete the curing process.

12 per cent is frozen pork, of which more than three-quarters is to be cured in the next few months.

7 per cent is lard. This is a normal supply and only four-fifths of a pound per capita, and much of it will have to go to supply European needs.

19 per cent is frozen beef and lamb, and miscellaneous meats, part of which is owned by the Government and was intended chiefly for overseas shipment. If this were all diverted to domestic trade channels it would be only 2½ lbs. per capita—a 5 days' supply.
